Reds Smash 12 Miles Past Oder River in New Silesia Drive

GAIN ON 50 MILE FRONT; CAPTURE 4 STRONGHOLDS

Germany Reports Russians 30 Miles from Capital.

LONDON, Feb. 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The Red army has stormed across the Oder southeast of Breslau in Silesia and penetrated 12½ miles beyond its west bank on a 50 mile front, Moscow announced last night. German reports said the water barrier protecting Berlin and the heart of the reich had been crossed by the Russians in two other sectors as well.

Broadcasts from Berlin placed Red army units west of the Oder northeast of Berlin, perhaps less than 30 miles from the battered capital, and also northwest of Breslau in the area of Steinau, a Silesian city which the Germans said they had evacuated.

The Russian announcement of the crossing in Silesia and the capture of four "powerful strongpoints of the German defenses" broke the silence that blanketed operations of Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine army for several days.

Silent on Zhukov Drive.

But Moscow was silent regarding Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army, deployed along the Oder farther north. The soviet war bulletin's only reference to this army was a statement that it had captured a Lt. Gen. Luebbe, commander of the 433d German infantry.

Aside from reporting minor gains in East Prussia and Budapest, the Moscow bulletin ignored all the eastern front except the Silesian sector.

Konev's drive across the Oder, it said, captured Brieg, 24 miles southeast of Breslau; Ohlau, nine miles northwest of Brieg and on the Oder's west bank; Grottkau, south of Brieg and 10 miles west of the Oder, and Thomaskirch, southwest of Ohlau and seven and one-half miles southwest of the river.

Konev Holds Long Line.

Konev's front west of the Oder thus extended from captured Oppeln, capital of upper [southern] Silesia, northwest to Breslau, capital of lower [northern] Silesia.

This offensive had been reported earlier by Berlin commentators, who said it might indicate a drive on Dresden, 160 miles to the west, as well as a move to outflank Breslau.

In the northern sector Berlin said the river had been forced at six or more places in the Kustrin-Frankfurt sector, northeast and directly east of Berlin.

Official announcements from Moscow place Marshal Zhukov's army 32 miles from Berlin at Zellin, on the Oder's east bank.

Frankfurt Entered, Nazis Say.

The German Transocean agency said the newest Russian bridgeheads were at Furstenberg, 14 miles south of Frankfurt and at a point a little more than three miles south of that city. It said another "temporary" crossing was made north of Frankfurt.

Zhukov has broken into the outer defenses of Frankfurt itself, said one German military commentator.

A military spokesman for the German D. N. B. agency stated, "On a front stretching from Kustrin to Frankfurt, the enemy's main forces already are in action," indicating Zhukov's armored columns were backed by infantry, artillery, and tactical aircraft.

There also were enemy announcements of sharp encounters around Stargard, far to the north, where Zhukov's right wing was reported within 20 miles of the Baltic port of Stettin.

In Hungary, Moscow indicated the Russians might be surging toward the Austrian border.

In East Prussia, groups of Germans were falling prey to roving Russian units. Most of East Prussia is under Red army domination, but its capital, Koenigsberg—like Budapest—is proving a formidable bastion and it may require days of close-quarter fighting to reduce it, Moscow dispatches said.

NAZI TELLS HOW BERLIN BURNED AFTER U. S. RAID

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—Berlin was described tonight by a Transocean [German] news agency reporter as still burning from last Saturday's 1,000 plane raid by American Flying Fortresses.

"I dictate my dispatch in the cellar of a house which on Saturday stood like a rock in a sea of flames," the reporter said. "Bombs dropped all around the house. My typist-secretary is wearing her air raid precaution dress.

"Typewriters rattle in the cellar. Telephones ring incessantly and from time to time one hears smoldering beams crashing to the ground. The subway races past my cellar with a noise similar to that of a land mine. We do not pay any attention to this, but newcomers immediately fall flat on the ground to protect themselves.

Smoke Hangs Over City.

"Thick smoke columns from still burning fires and glimmering embers hang over Berlin.

"Most of the rubble has been cleared from the roads," the German writer said. "Burnt out street cars have been removed and bomb craters have been more or less filled in. Fire fighting still is in progress at some points. First aid and salvage squads are working continuously to extricate wounded and trapped persons from crushed buildings. Skilled workers repair the water pipes. Electric wires are being laid. Berliners can be seen walking thru the streets carrying paper and cardboard for their former windows. As long as I live I will remember Sunday, the day after the attack. Tens of thousands came from the suburbs to lend a hand wherever necessary."

Can't Stop Reds, Germans Told.

Germans were told by their own propaganda spokesmen that the Russian offensive could not be stopped at present.

Col. Ritter von Schramm, D. N. B. commentator, said, "More territory will have to be yielded to further penetrating Russian masses and in general they still have the initiative."

Prepare for Last Stand.

BERN, Switzerland, Feb. 6 (AP).—New arrivals from Germany reported today that tremendous new stocks of supplies were being poured into mountain strongholds in the Munich area, where Adolf Hitler is preparing a last ditch defense.

Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, these sources said, will join Hitler in his mountaintop stronghold at Berchtesgaden after he conducts the defense of Berlin. He will aid in the command of thousands of fanatical Nazis expected to fight to the last to defend the Fuehrer.

FIND DIVORCEE KNIFED TO DEATH IN MAJOR'S ROOM

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 6 [Special].—The divorced mother of two girls was found stabbed to death today in the apartment of an army major, who was unconscious on the floor in critical condition from an overdose of sleeping tablets.

The tragedy was discovered after the major, Stanley W. Duncan, 46, Glendale, Cal., army pilot in World War I., telephoned his wife, Gladys, in Glendale about a "terrible tragedy" in his apartment. The dead woman, Mrs. Dorothy T. Vivell, 35, was a stenographer.

Police Inspector Al Corrasa said a hunting knife was found on the roof of a lower adjoining building. A sheath fitting the knife was found in Duncan's apartment, Corrasa said.

Petrillo Union Labels Music School Unfair

New York, Feb. 6 [Special].—The National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., has been placed on the "unfair list" of the American Federation of Musicians, a move designed by the union to strip the school of the services of its faculty and to present the strongest possible barrier to a resumption of concerts by the National High School orchestra, it became known today.

The union's step, the climax of a two year controversy with the school, was regarded as the labor group's answer to a bill by Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.]. The bill, specifically intended to make illegal any interference with such programs as the Interlochen radio concerts, was passed Friday by the senate and is before the house.

The action of the union, of which James C. Petrillo is president, is virtually the most severe that the American Federation of Labor affiliate could take against the school.

A Blow to Teachers.

If Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, professor of music at the University of Michigan, who is head of the camp, or other members of the faculty should attempt to work at the school, they would face union suspension, which would prevent them from accepting commercial employment of any sort. Many teachers at the school, which operates during two summer months, depend on such engagements during the rest of the year for the bulk of their annual income.

The strategy of the union is to make it impractical from a business standpoint for a radio chain to carry the Interlochen concerts, even if the Vandenberg bill becomes law, it was understood.

If the four national networks or an individual radio station should carry the school's concert, they would be liable to lose the services of musicians on all programs.

Revealed in Letter.

Disclosure of the union's move took the form of a letter sent to the heads of the four national radio networks, informing them the school had been placed on the "unfair list" by action of the federation's international executive board on Jan. 19. The letters were signed by Leo Cluesmann, international secretary.

Altho Petrillo could not be reached for comment and other union officials refused to discuss the case, it was ascertained that a determining factor in the executive board's action was the campaign waged against the union by the school and by Dr. Maddy.

HOSPITAL BARS JAP WOMAN AND DOCTOR RESIGNS

Dr. Selig A. Shevin, 47, a physician with offices at 6700 Stony Island av., resigned last night from the staff of Jackson Park hospital, 7531 Stony Island av., of which he had been a member for 17 years, because, he said, the hospital refused to admit an American born Japanese woman patient he sent there.

The patient is Miss Toyoko Murayama, 19, a domestic at 4000 Lake Park av.

Dr. Shevin's resignation followed a staff meeting at the hospital last night at which all other staff members present voted confidence in the hospital superintendent, Lucius W. Hilton, who refused to admit Miss Murayama.

Hilton explained that Miss Murayama was not an emergency case, that she could not afford a private room and would have had to be placed in a ward with five other women, and that the hospital is not an endowed institution, but a private corporation.

Dr. Shevin said Miss Murayama has donated blood to the Red Cross, that two close relatives are in the United States army, and that a brother is about to be inducted.

HOUSE TO HOUSE FIGHTING RAGES AS 3 YANK COLUMNS CLOSE IN ON ENEMY

Capital's Business and Finance Area Put to Torch.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 6.—True to their promise, the Japanese tried to burn Manila last night.

The entire business and financial district was in flames as the unbelievable climax to three days of destruction by the fleeing Japanese, and, except for a dozen gallant Filipino firemen and two providential changes in wind, the Japs might have made good their pledge.

"The Americans will come to Manila, but we will burn the city, and you Filipinos will not be alive to see them," the Japs had said.

Many Blocks Ruined.

The Japs started last night's major fire in the Escolta district of modern department stores, offices, and banks, all almost completely abandoned by the Filipinos.

[The Escolta proper is a business street in Manila paralleling the Pasig river. It is about eight blocks long, between the Santa Cruz bridge and the Jones bridge. Buildings crowd upon each other along the street as they do along the river front and streets back from the Pasig.]

As the blaze spread to the residential area, the Filipinos grabbed strange assortments of personal belongings and pulled, dragged, and carried them up the streets.

Cipriano Cruz, Manila's fire chief who refused to admit the fire was too big for his one truck and fewer than a dozen firemen, said many city blocks now lie in ruins.

To add to the fire department's difficulties, the Japs had blown up the city's water pumping stations and the mains were empty.

Describes Burning City.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 6 (AP).—The removal to a hospital of the last liberated internees to leave Bilibid prison—one a little boy holding a Teddy bear and excited over getting a ride in a truck—while embers of burning Manila fell about them was described today in a broadcast.

Arthur Feldman, Blue network war correspondent, went with the evacuation convoy from Santo Tomas after watching Manila's business district blaze Monday night while standing atop a tower at the university.

"The buildings of the university, which had been a prison for thousands of Americans and allied internees for over three years, shivered and shook from twilight on Monday thru most of the night," Feldman said, "and when I looked at Manila in the gray light of Tuesday morning [after the Bilibid evacuation] there were still occasional explosions."

[Feldman said in a later broadcast it was certain that many persons perished in the downtown district.]

George Thomas Folster, NBC correspondent, said the Japanese planted drums of gasoline under many buildings and the fires there got off to a roaring start.

HOW MAYWOOD'S MEN FOUGHT TO LAST ON BATAAN

[This is the sixth of a series of articles relating the story of Pvt. Charles Jensen, 6528 S. Hermitage av., a member of Company B, Maywood tank battalion; Pvt. Norman J. Lev., 5023 N. Lawndale av., and others captured on Bataan and rescued Jan. 30 by army Rangers and guerrillas from prison in Camp Cabanatuan.]

BY PVTS. CHARLES JENSEN AND NORMAN J. LEV.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE RANGERS ON LUZON, P. I., Feb. 6.—Maywood, Ill., can well be proud of its B company, 192d tank battalion. I wasn't a member when the company was the Maywood National Guard outfit. I'm proud that when I was drafted in April of 1941 I was sent to it as a medic. [This was Jensen speaking.]

We were at Fort Stotsenburg, near Clark field in the central Luzon plain, when the war started. Later we were moved north to Lingayen to protect the beach there.

We had our first action Dec. 22 just below the pass leading to Baguio, Luzon's summer capital. But let Louis Zelis, 3137 42d pl., Chicago, tell it. He was in it.

Tank Charges Japs.

"The Japs had just landed at Lingayen, and we went down to stop them," said Zelis, who was released with the other prisoners in last Tuesday night's Ranger raid.

"We were told they had only small arms and baby tanks. Our light tank—I was driver—and two others charged them. The first we knew, an anti-tank shell knocked off the window shield. I turned to get off the road. Another shell knocked out one track, and we plowed into the field in a wide arc. Then another went thru the engine and a fourth jammed the gun turret. Fire broke out in the engine, but we smothered it.

"Five or six tankettes [the Japs' baby tank] rolled up the road. They stopped, and a couple of Japs climbed out and started toward us very cautiously. They peered thru the shattered shell and saw we were still alive. They ran back to their tanks. Our lieutenant asked us if we should surrender or try to shoot it out with our pistols and escape. We decided to surrender, hoping we would soon find a way to freedom.

Tied Our Hands.

"We waved a towel. An English speaking Jap said for us to come out. We did. They tied our hands and put us on the back of the tankettes.

"They treated us right well—then. They brought us to a village. A colonel questioned us about our strength. We said we didn't know. He had us put in the bandstand in the village park and we spent our first night there.

"The next day they questioned us some more and then put us in a store. We stayed there several days, and then they put us in a

MacArthur Credits Yanks for Foe's 'Greatest Defeat.'

MANILA, Feb. 7 [Wednesday] (AP).—Three American columns were liquidating the Japanese in a tightening three way trap today while fires still raged in Manila's business district.

House to house fighting was in progress in some sectors as the Yanks of the 1st cavalry, 37th infantry, and 11th air borne divisions closed in for the final mopup.

"The trapped and frustrated Japanese garrison has wantonly set fire to the downtown business district along the Escolta and is practicing general sabotage destruction which has no relation to the military operations," MacArthur announced.

Asks Divine Services.

MacArthur told his men in a general order that "you have inflicted the greatest military defeat in its history on your enemy."

"You have redeemed a country's pledge to recapture its lost land," he said. "You are restoring to the east its destiny. You have fulfilled the sacred mission for our hallowed dead.

"For this we thank God."

MacArthur requested that divine services be held thruout the sea, land, and air command.

The 11th air borne spearhead pushing into Manila along two routes met stiff resistance around Nichols field, at the extreme southern edge of the municipality.

One of the very few American planes lost in the Luzon campaign was downed by anti-aircraft fire over Nichols field yesterday.

Move Yards on Bataan.

Yanks advancing southward along the eastern edge of the Bataan peninsula, which forms a jaw of Manila bay, were moving only yards at a time against Japanese fighting from bamboo thickets and jungle.

The enemy is isolated on Bataan and in northeastern Luzan, and has no hope of escape or reenforcement, but there is still fighting ahead—possibly hand fighting—for American forces of liberation before their task in the Philippines is completed.

In Manila alone there remained the dirty and dangerous job of digging the blasted Japanese out of their positions. Small groups of the enemy were holding out behind barricaded doors and from rooftops.

Softening up Manila bay defenses, army Liberators dumped a record load of 180 tons on Corregidor fortress, where Japanese are reported to have fled from the Manila area.

Repulse Foe in North.

In ground actions on northwestern Luzon, Yank forces repulsed a Japanese night counter-attack northeast of Rosario, south of the Philippine summer capital at Baguio, inflicting heavy casualties.

San Jose, important highway town on the enemy's last road life line of the central Luzon plain, was captured by the Americans, who also seized most of the town of Lupao, to the south. Progress was made thruout the northern sector.

Eleven Japanese tanks were destroyed in the general area.

[Tokyo radio reported that Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, Japanese commander in the Philippines, was now resorting to "thorogoing defense guerrilla warfare." An imperial headquarters bulletin acknowledged only that Americans had penetrated "a corner" of Manila.]

Airdromes still in Japanese hands also were pounded in widespread air activity which reached again across the China sea to hit Formosa.

[American troops have landed on the Island of Poro in the Camotes sea between Leyte and Cebu, the Japanese news agency Domei reported yesterday. The Japanese said about 3,000 United States troops made the landing. An earlier report said that American troops landed on Jolo Island in the Sulus, which is southwest of Poro.]

G. I.s 'Dine' in Manila White House

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 6.—There is a strong odor of bully beef cooking today in beautiful Malacanan palace, home of the Philippine president. G. I.'s sprawled on its historic lawn and peered from its open windows. From across the river came occasional shots of Japanese snipers answered by bursts from American machine guns.

Earlier in the day American artillery had driven the Japs' 91 mm. mortar battery from a position almost directly ahead of Malacanan. The floors of the palace were littered with glass and plaster messed about by the enemy mortar and gun fire. But a tour thru the sumptuous, heavily carpeted rooms showed no important damage.

A portrait in oil of Japan's former Premier Tojo had been removed from its hanging place and was resting against the wall in a small room.

The palace, which is conveniently located across the street from famous San Miguel brewery, was ringed with American tanks and machine guns. In the tower, which commands an excellent view of the city, five Yanks sipped coffee from the presidential tea set and kept watch.

Jose Laurel, former chief justice of the Philippine Supreme court, who was installed by the Japs as puppet president, occupied the palace and adjoining offices when the Japs were here. He was able to persuade the Japs not to occupy the buildings themselves and there has been no looting. The offices are fitted with the latest model American typewriters.

Test 'Tail-First' Fighter Plane

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—A fast, highly maneuverable fighter plane that appears to fly backward is being tested by Curtiss-Wright corporation, G. W. Vaughan, president, disclosed today.

First flown in July, 1943, at Scott Field, Ill., the odd looking XP-55 airplane-in-reverse developed at Curtiss-Wright's St. Louis plant early in the war has been cloaked in military secrecy until today.

Engine Behind Pilot.

The whole thing does look backward compared with conventional design. One 1,275 horsepower Allison engine and the pusher propeller are behind the pilot; the wings also are near the rear; the elevator control surfaces found in the tail assembly of a present day plane are forward; the rudders are mounted near the tips of wings which angle sharply from beneath the single place cockpit.

Curtiss-Wright claims these advantages for the tail-first plane:

Speed equal to or greater than in conventional planes of equal power; improved longitudinal control and maneuverability; improved visibility for shooting the nose mounted guns; less noise in the cockpit and less fire danger to the pilot; better handling at high speeds since elevators bite cleanly into the wind instead of into the wake of the wings.

Can Dump Propeller.

Another new wrinkle is a device that enables the pilot to dump the propeller in emergencies so he won't run the risk of being struck by its blades as he jumps.

Technically speaking, the XP-55 [X for experimental, P for pursuit] is a low wing, all metal pusher type. It is to be known as the Curtiss-Wright "Ascender" and, Vaughan said in his announcement, is one of several experimental types "which are expected to make a significant contribution to future aircraft design projects of the army air forces."

Details of how fast the plane will climb and how fast and how high it flies are among performance figures still restricted by the army.

MAYWOOD YANK, SAVED, REPORTS 7 IN UNIT SLAIN

Loss on Bataan Small, Mother Hears.

Only seven of the members of the famed 192d tank battalion, made up almost entirely of Maywood men, were killed during the fighting on Bataan, said a report received from Manila yesterday. Originally it was believed that all but 36 of the group were killed in battle or died while in Japanese prison camps.

The report was received by Mrs. Dorothy MacDowell, 612 S. 21st av., Maywood, who said that she had been informed that her son, Lt. Matthew MacDowell, 32, a member of the battalion, had been reached by the army from Bilibid prison in Manila. Lt. MacDowell is the first Maywood member of the tank group known to be liberated.

Believes Many Are Alive.

Mrs. MacDowell said that her son was quoted as saying that he believed most of the 192d group was still alive, altho he did not know the fate of all of the battalion members after the group surrendered on Bataan.

Almost inarticulate in their joy at learning of Lt. MacDowell's safety, the MacDowell family spent yesterday afternoon telephoning to other Maywood families who were awaiting news of loved ones captured with the 192d unit.

The last previous word Mrs. MacDowell had of her son was a war department telegram in Novmber that said a Jap radio broadcast carried a message from Lt. MacDowell. The broadcast, which quoted Lt. McDowell as saying he was well and had received a package from home, indicated that many members of the 192d battalion had been moved to prison camps on the Japanese mainland.

Joined Army Four Years Ago.

Lt. MacDowell joined the army four years ago after serving for some time as a member of the national guard. He was sent to the Philippine Islands just before the outbreak of war in 1941. He was graduated from Proviso High school and formerly worked at a west side factory in the shipping room. His sister, Mrs. W. B. Hilliard, whose husband, Corp. Hilliard, is with the army in India, lives with her mother.

Another report indicated that several nuns and priests who received their training in Chicago seminaries and convents may also have been rescued from Bilibid prison and the Santo Tomas interment camp.

One of them is believed to be Sister Eunice Mary, an Episcopal nun of the Order of St. Anne, who was formerly in the St. Anne school and convent, 1125 N. La Salle st. She left Chicago in 1934 to go to the Episcopal Convent of St. Anne in China. The convent was bombed by the Japanese in 1938 and Sister Eunice went to the Easter school in the Philippines in 1941.

OFFICER ON 170 AIR MISSIONS IN FAR EAST HOME

Lt. Budd E. Revesz, who has come unscathed thru 170 air missions over some of the world's most hazardous terrain, is home on leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Revesz, 3432 Bosworth av. He was on transport duty between India and China and was required to fly over the Himalaya mountains and over enemy-held territory.

Lt. Budd E. Revesz.

Lt. Revesz, 21, is a graduate of Lane Technical High school and a former student at North Central college, Naperville. He left North Central to join the army in February, 1942, and went overseas in November, 1943.

He holds the distinguished flying cross, the air medal, a unit Presidential citation, and the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with battle star. His brother, Guy, 18, also is in the army air force and is in training at Keesler field, Mississippi.

HOW MAYWOOD TANK COMPANY BATTLED JAPS

truck and brought us to Tarlac. They told us if one tried to escape all would be killed.

"We worked at a hacienda, getting it ready for the American generals and colonels whom the Japs expected to capture soon. After Bataan and Corregidor fell, they transferred us to Cabanatuan. My three tank mates have all been sent to Japan."

Three Day Fight at Cabanatuan.

Our battalion began a series of delaying actions, guarding the rear as the infantry pulled back to Bataan. [Jensen resumed the tale.] Our first big fight was at Urdaneta, but we really did ourselves proud at the town of Cabanatuan, which then was just a spot on the map to us. Our fight at Cabanatuan went, on and off, for three days. You can still see the wreckage of five Jap tanks.

We arrived in Bataan New Year's day. We were the last.

At first we were in the line across Bataan. But the tanks were'nt very good in the jungles, so we were assigned to defend the west coast. The only other tank battalion on Luzon moved to the east coast.

We had a field day when the Japs tried to land at Agloloma bay, on the southwest tip of Bataan, Feb. 15. They did get ashore, but with the help of the infantry we slaughtered them, and in five days had the beaches clear again.

Retreat Was On.

When the big break-thru came on the eastern part of the front across Bataan on April 7, we hurried down the west coast, passed Mariveles, and started up the east coast. But the retreat was on. The road was so jammed with trucks coming our way it took us two hours to go a half kilometer [about five-sixteenths of a mile]. Our commander saw it was hopeless.

We had only 19 tanks left in the two battalions of the 100 with which we started the war. We were in front of the infantry when the surrender came. We blew up our tanks and turned ourselves in.

That's the history of B company from Maywood. As I said before, Maywood can be proud of it. I'm proud to have been able to have served with it.

HOUSE SENDS FELICITATIONS TO MacARTHUR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] today sent this congratulatory message to Gen. MacArthur:

"At the suggestion of the house of representatives, unanimously expressed, I send to you and the valiant officers and men who serve with you our grateful thanks for the courage and effectiveness in bringing freedom to the Philippines and further glory to American arms."

The message was ordered by the house yesterday when it received word of the liberation of Manila.

REPORTS GAS STATION LOOTED.

George Lickton, operator of a gasoline station at 2532 E. 75th st., reported yesterday to police that burglars took a money changer containing $35, gasoline coupons good for 400 gallons, and five tire certificates from his station.

PRISONER CARDS RECEIVED.

Mrs. Mary Zelis of 3137 42d pl. said last night that she had received about three weeks ago two Red Cross prisoner of war cards from her son, Pvt. Louis Zelis, 32. He informed her that he was well and thanked her for gift packages from her and his wife, who lives at 4842 S. Springfield av.

Pvt. Zelis, a graduate of Kelly High school, enlisted in the army in January, 1941, trained at Fort Sheridan and at Fort Knox, Ky., and was sent to the Philippines in November of that year.

TYPEWRITER STOLEN.

Burglars broke into Otto Fromm's home at 4906 Deming pl. yesterday and stole a typewriter and a radio.

JAPS RECROSS RIVER IN TOUGH DEFENSE OF MANDALAY, BURMA

KANDY, Feb. 6 [Ceylon] (AP).—An indication that the Japanese intend to make a strong stand around Mandalay, second city of Burma, came today as troops which previously had been withdrawn to the south bank of the Irrawaddy crossed back to the north bank. The Japanese pocket on the north bank, however, was almost obliterated by quick action from allied fighter bombers and by blows from British troops.

The allied bridgehead on the southern bank of the river north of Mandalay was heavily shelled, a bulletin announced. The Japanese also have been employing massed artillery in an effort to break thru British lines on Ramree Island, but it was disclosed that British units which landed on the southern end of the island several days ago now are advancing inland.

R. A. F. bombers and fighters spent the day attacking Japanese concentrations north of Mandalay.

KOBE ATTACKED BY SUPER FORTS, SAYS JAP RADIO

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Single B-29s dropped a "small amount" of bombs and incendiaries in the Kobe area on Honshu Island yesterday, said a Tokyo radio report. Following these sorties, the broadcast added, two other B-29s penetrated the Kobe vicinity without dropping bombs. They apparently were checking on damage from Sunday's major Super Fortress raid on the Kobe-Osaka district.

Munitions Minister Shigeru Yoshida admitted damage to Japanese aircraft factories by American B-29s, said a Domei agency broadcast.

"There were some damages up to now," he told a committee of the house of peers, "but due to efforts of the officials and the people we were able to keep up production." The committee discussed a plan to move some factories underground and others to remote mountain regions.

AN EXPATRIATE WORLD STATER WOOS MISSOURI

Humber Presses Plan in 9th Legislature.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6 [Special].—A program for surrender of American sovereignty to a world state, already indorsed by the legislatures of eight states, will come up for action Feb. 16 in the Missouri legislature, at the conclusion of an intensive four month campaign.

The Missouri house is scheduled to vote on a joint resolution which declares, among other things, that "it is better for the world to be ruled by an international sovereignty of reason, social justice, and peace than by diverse national sovereignties."

The resolution indorses the principle of what it terms "The Federation of the World" and calls upon Missouri representatives in congress to work for passage of a measure committing the United States to the same principle and requesting the President to call "an international convention" to formulate a constitution.

Author Expatriate Lawyer.

"The Federation of the World" is the brain child of Robert Lee Humber, 47, expatriate international lawyer, who quit Paris 60 hours ahead of the German occupation in 1940 and since then has been working in the United States for adoption of his super-state plan.

Humber, who is a native of North Carolina and a former Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England, has been concentrating his efforts on state legislatures for the last four years. In 1941 he induced North Carolina to adopt a resolution virtually identical with the one now pending in Missouri.

The New Jersey legislature passed a similar measure the same year. Other states which have given approval are Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Alabama, which voted in 1943, and Virginia and Louisiana, which passed resolutions in 1944. In addition, in four other states—New York, Florida, New Hampshire, and Montana—resolutions urging on congress a need for an international organization to keep the peace were passed.

These latter four resolutions were regarded as drawing their inspiration from the Humber plan, altho they are more general in terms. Missouri is the No. 1 state on Humber's 1945 legislative program.

Opened Drive in October.

Inquiry here into Humber's Missouri activities today disclosed he came to St. Louis early last October to address a "St. Louis Win the Peace Forum." This organization had been in existence about a year and previously had sponsored talks by Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.], Sumner Welles, and Raymond Gram Swing.

Humber made such a "wonderful impression" on the forum, members recalled today, that he literally captured it, turning it into an organization primarily devoted to furtherance of his plan for a world state. The forum voted to reconstitute itself as "The Missouri State Committee for World Federation," under the presidency of F. R. Von Windegger, president of the Plaza bank here.

"We have a membership of about 15,000 thruout the state," Von Windegger said today. "No dues are required. We regard as members the persons on our mailing list, all of whom were placed there at their request."

Made 30 Speeches in State.

Humber made a whirlwind two week tour of the state, speaking before civic organizations and luncheon clubs in most of the state's larger cities, it was said. He delivered 30 speeches during this time.

Humber made a direct appeal to the state legislature soon after it convened last month. He received permission to address the house of representatives. The house invited members of the state senate to sit in, and many did so.

He called on the legislature to accept his thesis that "mankind must pool its resources of defense if civilization is to endure."

The standard Humber world federation resolution was introduced in the house by Rep. Murray Thompson [R., Webster county], speaker pro tem, and Rep. John Enders [R., Perryville].

Lacks Committee's Approval.

The resolution was sent to the resolutions committee, whose members, it was learned today, voted last week to send it back to the house without recommendation.

Windegger said he has been informed the measure will be called up for action by the house Feb. 16 and he anticipates considerable debate.

"I don't like to count my chickens before they're hatched," Windegger said.

No opposition to the resolution was expressed by persons appearing before the resolutions committee, it was learned, altho Lee Meriwether of St. Louis, president of the Jeffersonians, sent a letter to the committee urging its defeat.

He Calls It Surrender.

Meriwether said the Humber plan calls for member nations of the world federation "to suppress their military, naval, and air forces, retaining only a constabulary for police purposes, and charged this is a proposal to "give away with the pen the independence Washington won for us with the sword."

"We may well strive to devise a practical plan to curb future Hitlers," Meriwether said, "but let us not again commit naval suicide. Until a practical plan to preserve peace is devised, let us rely on our own strong arm for national safety."

Charles A. Lee of St. Louis, professor of education at Washington university and former state superintendent of schools, appeared before the committee in support of the Humber plan. He described the "world federation" as a "vast benign government of which we already all are citizens and don't know it."

Humber's Own Description.

Humber sums up his ideas about the nature of his proposed world federation in the preamble of the resolution.

"The organic life of the human race is at last indissolubly unified and can never be severed, but it must be politically ordained and made subject to law," the preamble states. "Only a government capable of discharging all the functions of sovereignty in the executive, legislative, and judicial spheres can accomplish such a task.

"Civilization now requires laws, in the place of treaties, as instruments to regulate commerce between peoples. The intricate conditions of modern life have rendered treaties ineffectual and obsolete and made laws essential and inevitable. The age of treaties is dead; the age of laws is here.

"Can't Satisfy Needs."

"Governments, limited in their jurisdiction to local geographical areas, can no longer satisfy the needs or fulfill the obligations of the human race. Just as feudalism served its purpose in human history and was superseded by nationalism, so has nationalism reached its apogee in this generation and yielded its hegemony in the body politic to internationalism."

Humber studied law at Harvard before going to Oxford as a Rhodes scholar. After completing his studies there he moved to Paris and for 16 years practiced law there.

Ducks Join Gulls on South Side Lake Front

Hundreds of gulls and ducks which gathered yesterday in open water on the lake front off 73d st.

Lake Migrants

Talk of the invasion of Germany was interspersed with talk of the waterfowl invasion of Lake Michigan yesterday by residents of the south shore district. Some observers said that 5,000 ducks came in close to the shoreline between 71st and 73d streets, and others asserted there were 10,000 birds in the flock.

R. M. Perkins, director of the Lincoln park zoo, said the birds were American mergansers and golden eye ducks, which stay in Lake Michigan all winter. Both species arrive here in October and leave in mid-May, feeding on small fish. They migrate up and down the lake as the air currents cause shoreline ice to move and permit feeding.

The American merganser drake, slightly larger than a mallard, can be identified by its greenish black head and white breast. The smaller golden eye drake has a conspicuous white patch about the size of a quarter just below the eye.

CANADIAN NAVY TOLD U. S. GIRLS WERE MOLESTED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 6 [Canadian Press].—The royal Canadian navy public relations office announced today that Capt. F. G. Hart, naval chief of staff of the Pacific command, had ordered an inquiry into allegations that girl members of a United States coast guard show were molested by Canadian naval ratings during a pleasure cruise in Vancouver harbor Sunday.

The announcement said all possible witnesses will be gathered and a complete investigation made. The show "Tars and Spars," appeared here last week. "So far we have only allegations," the naval statement said. "We know only that the cruise was cut short."

Lt. Elmer Cook, officer commanding the coast guard company, said before leaving with the cast today for Seattle that the "incident is closed as far as I am concerned." "Comdr. J. M. Smith [naval officer in charge], has apologized and I have accepted his apology," he added.

JAPANESE SHELL INTERNEE CAMP OF SANTO TOMAS

Little Damage Done, Says Former Captive.

[The writer of this article, a New York Times correspondent, was interned by the Japanese in Santo Tomas.]

BY FORD WILKINS.

(By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.)

SANTO TOMAS INTERNMENT CAMP, Manila, Feb. 6.—Japanese artillerymen, seemingly bent on harassment and destruction in Manila by their guns, lobbed shells this morning into this captured civilian internment camp, striking its main buildings and ground. Up to this writing there has been little damage.

A sporadic bombardment commenced yesterday from carefully camouflaged positions which United States army spotters were methodically working on and this morning the Japanese apparently improved their range. At breakfast time a shell struck the tower on top of the main building, showering fragments into the third floor windows and knocking broken glass and rubbish into the patio below, where long lines of people were awaiting food.

Earlier attempts to shell this internment camp were highly inaccurate. The missiles landed far outside of the camp walls among flimsy wooden structures, occasionally starting small fires. Several shells, however, landed inside the camp, but caused no damage or casualties.

Fired from Distance.

The shells used are thought to be of 75 millimeters. They were evidently fired from a relatively distant point or points. Spotting was difficult because of the concealment that is afforded in the environs of the city. So far there has been no concentration of fire on the camp, one or two guns at the most, seemingly, being used, with projectiles landing at intervals of two and three minutes up to half an hour or an hour.

Singular indifference marked the response of the American civilians —men, women, and children—to this parting gesture by our former Japanese captors. Manifestations of fear or panic were entirely absent. On the contrary the former prisoners go calmly about their routine occupations eating meals unconcernedly in grass roofed shanties. They are not even startled when shells land close. The excitement over the arrival of the American forces makes the artillery bombardments seem incidental. Eating is much more important.

Order Being Restored.

Our army is gradually bringing order out of chaos within the camp. Services for communications with relatives in the United States and the home lands of other nationalities are now being established. Long tables have been set up outdoors and lists of incoming messages are posted. Envelopes have been provided for writing letters to be sent home registering necessary personal information preparatory to obtaining transportation by air or sea. Army cooks are preparing to assume operation of our inadequately supplied kitchen. They are providing the necessary supplementary utensils from their field equipment and are using recently arrived foodstuffs.

Fourteen Japanese dressed in civilian clothes who had been captured by Filipino guerrillas were brought into the camp last evening and were turned over to the American army authorities. A majority of them were identified as former guards or members of the staff of the Japanese administration of this camp. They had been recaptured following their release from among the 65 who had fought in the "battle of the education building" behind a shield of civilian internees.

Incensed over their treatment under Japanese control, many of the American ex-prisoners wished that they could give their captured guards a taste of their own medicine. The prisoners, however, were permitted to crouch or stand under a grass-roofed shed while their former victims viewed them curiously.

They were assigned to dig a ditch behind the main buildings. They accepted this task with sullen-faced seriousness, warily eying the bayonets and rifles which covered their every move.

Observers who had experienced harsh treatment in the hands of the Japanese remarked that the captured Japs should have been forced to stand under the hot sun rather than have been allowed the comparative comfort of a shaded roof; should also be compelled to provide their own receptacles for chow instead of being supplied with them, and should be made to do several hours of much harder labor than turning earth.

Tells of Jap Cheating.

One internee remarked: "Pretty easy. Those are the guys who bought your watch and mine for three pounds of rice—then forgot to hand over the rice."

His statement was not based on exaggerated fact within the experience of hundreds of Americans who, broke and hungry, sacrificed their watches, rings, diamonds, fountain pens, and treasured possessions salvaged from the ruins of their personal property in order to purchase enough rice, beans, and sugar to keep them alive. This [altho unofficial and constituting a punishable offense if discovered] was made possible thru official confiscation of all privately owned money which was doled out to the internees, 50 pesos monthly, an allowance that was pitifully inadequate to supplement their food rations to a subsistence level.

Prisoners not having jewelry or other resources resorted to desperate foraging to assuage their hunger. They actually ate cats, dogs, roots, banana stems, palm leaves, hibiscus, and anything to fill out their meager rice diet.

Two young men struck up a business partnership during the Christmas season butchering cats. Each customer had to bring a cat. Their wages for properly preparing an animal for consumption was one hind quarter per cat which they kept for their own uses.

The camp gardens in which many hours of intensive labor were spent proved a lifesaver furnishing desperately needed green stuffs.

The arrival of the American troops has radically altered the food situation.

This reporter gained five pounds in 48 hours—an experience common to many.

Plumbing Kept. Up.

SANTO TOMAS, Manila, Feb. 6 (AP).—That hallmark of America—good plumbing—distinguished this war prison during the three miserable years about 3,700 internees lived in it.

The inmates were able to get materials early. From then on it was a constant struggle as equipment deteriorated and new material was denied them. But the Americans kept their cherished plumbing system working. Toilets worked, showers were available, and there was hot water.

This coupled with a carefully organized garbage disposal, helped in the fight against epidemics.

The internees spent most of the second day after liberation reading Red Cross mail and exchanging news from home.

Rockford Soldier Mobbed.

Capt. Jesse L. Walters, Rockford, Ill., one of the first American soldiers to be seen by internees released here, was nearly mobbed by a horde of joy maddened prisoners.

"He was seized by the internees," said David T. Bogusiav, editor of the Manila Tribune, "and dragged off to a hospital housing tuberculosis and other seriously ill patients.

"A paralysis stricken lady of 60 couldn't believe he was one of our boys until he let her quivering fingers stroke his steel helmet.

Messages to Home Folks.

"Tell the people at home we are alive, free and well," said internees whose first thoughts were for relatives. Most internees had no word from relatives for many months.

Among messages to relatives were:

Mrs. Fars Sarwold, Dearborn, Mich.: "I am free at last. Am healthy and very happy. Please notify my friends. Hope to see you all very soon. Lt. Albert N. Sarwold, marine corps."

Mrs. John Hine, Honolulu, T. H.: "We are all well and happy over release. At present in Manila. Notify Sproul, Oakland, and Raithel, Chicago. Signed, Renton."

Mrs. Mary Fisher, Detroit: "Am well and free. A. T. Reynolds."

Mrs. J. Brenan, Waterloo, Ia.: "Dear mother and dad have just been recaptured by the Yanks. I am in excellent health. Only look forward to see you soon. Love, James."

U.S. Bases Lost

Where U. S. air forces have abandoned bases (arrows) in face of Japanese advances.

KUNMING, China, Feb. 6 (AP).—The current Japanese offensive from the Canton area has forced abandonment of a third fighter base from which American planes had harassed Japanese shipping in the Shanghai-Hong Kong area, the United States 14th air force disclosed today.

The first base abandoned was at Suichuan, which was evacuated Jan. 21. The air force disclosed today that Kanchow, less than 50 miles southeast of Suichuan, was given up quickly and that Namyung, some 70 miles southwest of Kanchow, was evacuated Jan. 29.

The three bases had been mainly P-51 fighter stations from which Mustang squadrons commanded by Lt. Col. Edward O. McComas and Maj. John C. Herbst, ranking aces in the 14th, had waged guerrilla warfare against Japanese transportation since the loss of Nanning Jan. 19. The bases also were the 14th's closest to Japan.

AUSTRALIA ARMY NOW AT PEAK, SAYS MINISTER

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 6 [Reuters].—Australia's army is more powerful than at any previous stage, altho it has been at war five and a half years, Francis M. Forde, war minister, said in a broadcast today. "The army at present is employing, or ready to employ, more formations than ever were available in the last war or at any earlier stage in this war," he said. "The whole of the Australian forces have been assigned to Gen. MacArthur and are being, and will be, employed wherever he directs."

'SORRY, PLEASE': NO ENGLISH USED IN U. OF C. CLASS

BY DOROTHY JOHNSON.

In a certain classroom at the University of Chicago, if you don't know how to ask for a cigaret in Japanese, you don't get it.

Maybe you wouldn't anyway, cigarets being the way they are, but the classroom in question is used by a group of army and navy officers enrolled in the far eastern civil affairs training school, to fit them for administrative duty in captured Japanese territory.

Three of the seven hours a day they spend in the course are devoted to the Japanese language. And after they acquire a working vocabulary, not a word of English is spoken in the classroom.

Emphasis on Spoken Word.

Emphasis is placed on spoken Japanese and the officers are taught a variety of common Japanese expressions to enable them to engage in daily conversation.

Since the school began in August, 1943, a considerable number of officers, ranging in rank from army second lieutenants to lieutenant colonels and from navy lieutenants junior grade to lieutenant commanders have been graduated. The present class is halfway thru its six-month course, and a new class will open later this month.

The first 12 weeks of the course are devoted to a detailed survey of Japanese social, economic, and political life, with emphasis on problems likely to be encountered by administrators of military governments. The final half of the program takes up problems of military government expected to develop in Japan and matters of the application of military law.

Students Carefully Chosen.

Students are carefully selected on the basis of both their attainments as civilians and their ability as officers. Most of them were engineers, lawyers, city administrators, public health and welfare officials, and educators before going into uniform.

In addition to books and lectures, maps provided by the army map service and military records are employed in the classes.

The University of Chicago Far Eastern Civil Affairs school is conducted under the direction of the army provost marshal general. The local program is headed by Fred Eggan, associate professor of anthropology, as director, and Col. Bruce E. Clarke of the army as associate director. Army and navy officers are on the teaching staff, as are several civilian professors, including Dr. John F. Embree, anthropologist; Dr. Henry Bloch, instructor in economics; Prof. Harley F. MacNair, teacher of far eastern history and institutions; and Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole, chairman of the U. of C. anthropology department.

Others Also Give Lectures.

Occasional lectures also are delivered during the course by members of the state department, army and navy officers in from the field, and visiting civilian lecturers from various colleges and universities.

Graduates of the training school have written in from the Philippines praising the course for its emphasis on practicality, Eggan said.

Northwestern university, Evanston; Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal; the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich.; Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., and Yale university, New Haven, Conn., complete the roster of six educational institutions cooperating with the provost marshal general's office in this program.

Lucky Soldier

Pvt. L. C. Dugan with wallet and money he retrieved after leaving it in a phone booth.

Pvt. L. C. Dugan of La Crosse, Wis., a veteran of 20 years in the army, yesterday said he was the luckiest soldier in Chicago. He arrived at the Union station from Galesburg and entered a phone booth. When he left he forgot his wallet, containing $250, lying on the shelf in the booth. He walked a couple of blocks east on Jackson blvd., stopped at a restaurant and breakfasted leisurely. Then he read a newspaper.

When he paid for his breakfast he had enough change in his pocket, but when he looked for his wallet it was gone. He returned to the station and headed for the phone booth he had used. The wallet, untouched, still reposed on the shelf.

"Either the people in Chicago are honest or I'm just lucky," he exclaimed. "Anyway, if I hadn't seen it happen I would never have believed it."

A CHINESE ASKS FIRM MERCY FOR DEFEATED JAPAN

An allied policy both merciful and firm toward a defeated Japan was urged by George K. C. Yeh, Chinese ministry of information representative in Great Britain and liberated Europe, at a meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in the Palmer House yesterday.

He agreed as to the necessity of a total defeat of Japan and her disarmament, but he advocated a post-war policy less severe than one of economic strangulation.

He suggested the possibility that Japan might move her resistance centers to Manchuria and North China and hold out for a few months. Even after these areas were cleaned out, the task of total disarmament would only have begun, he said. He called attention to the various open and secret societies which honeycomb Japan and contribute to the nation's militarism.

Yeh made it plain that he spoke as an individual, not as a Chinese government representative.

$2,300,000 LOOT PLACED IN CARE OF N. C. BARRY

Norman C. Barry, state senator and assistant attorney for the board of education, was named yesterday by Judge John P. McGoorty in Superior court to take charge of the $2,300,000 loot recovered by police from the robbery of the E. H. Rumbold real estate office safety deposit vault, 624 W. 119th st. The appointment followed a suit filed Monday in behalf of W. J. Sullivan, 11842 Stewart av., and Mrs. Lila M. Rector, 11819 Lowe av., whose safe deposit boxes were among those looted, asking for such an appointment.

Charles Austin, 71, was found dead in bed of natural causes in his room at 115 W. Ontario st. yesterday.

CAPTIVES MOVED AS JAPS SHELL BILIBID PRISON

BILIBID PRISON, Manila, Feb. 6 (AP).—American and British civilian internees, brought here recently from Baguio by the Japanese, realized their full liberation today when they were evacuated to escape enemy mortar fire falling within their camp.

The remaining 465 internees brought here from Baguio were removed with 810 other prisoners from the adjacent prison compound to safety at the edge of Manila.

Men, women, and children had been confined in or near Camp Holmes at Baguio since December, 1941, under conditions varying greatly from those at other places of civilian internment.

Restrictions Are Severe.

Carl V. Erchbach, Dearborn, Mich., United Evangelical mission director, headed the Baguio civilians, two-thirds of them women and children and 88 per cent of them Americans captured when the Japanese overran Baguio on the road to Manila.

They first were interned at Camp Holmes, former United States army rest camp, and then were taken northward into the Trinidad valley, before being brought to Manila.

The Japanese imposed severe restrictions on the internees, cutting them off from contact with townspeople and segregating men from women. A barbed wire fence separated the camps. Husbands and wives were allowed to talk together only 10 minutes daily and were under constant Japanese surveillance.

Diet Cut; Many Sicken.

The internees grew their own vegetables in the Trinidad valley's rich soil until they were transferred to Manila. Then their diet was cut to Japanese issued food and about 50 per cent of the camp sickened, with 20 patients being cared for in the camp hospital, Dr. Marshall C. Wells of Pasadena, Cal., said.

Families were permitted to live together last May for the first time, beginning when they were quartered here in the former cell block in which families attempted makeshift housekeeping separated from each other by partitions made of sheets.

Report Adventists Balk at Drilling, Sent to Jail

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Sen. Briggs [D., Mo.] said today that he had forwarded to the war department a complaint that a number of soldiers, Seventh Day Adventists, were court martialed and sentenced to six months confinement for refusing to drill on Saturday, their Sabbath. The complaint was contained in a letter sent to Briggs by a leader of the church in Washington. The war department would not comment.

FIND WRECKED JAP MIDGET SUB NEAR FLEET BASE

Craft Blows Up Just Outside Harbor.

BY BOB GEIGER.

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC [Delayed]—(AP).—An explorer and two newspaper men found a Japanese midget submarine today that struck a reef and exploded as it was attempting to reach a harbor where a huge United States fleet was anchored.

The attempted attack occurred at dawn of a clear day. The submarine apparently was attempting to sneak alongside the coral reef for protection when it struck a projecting coral spire.

"The pilot was trying to find a hole in the harbor defenses thru which he might steer," said Lt. Comdr. Irving Johnson, South seas explorer, who with the newspaper men found the wreckage.

Sets Off Explosives.

"Undoubtedly when he struck the reef, accidentally, he set off two torpedoes and the detonating charge, by which submarines can be destroyed to prevent them from falling into American hands."

The explosion broke the submarine in two, but the fore part was blown to bits and was scattered over a wide area of the ocean floor.

Comdr. Johnson, Lt. Russel Anderson, a navy public relations officer who formerly was a writer for American Weekly, and I, found the aft section in one piece.

Using diving glasses, we found a long piece of bone from the body of the submarine pilot, about 100 feet from the wreckage. It was the only piece of him that we could locate.

Real Suicide Craft.

The aft portion of the submarine consisted of a cylinder about three feet in diameter which undoubtedly contained the engine. Thruout the length of the wreck were tiny screened intakes that probably led to small balancing tanks by which the submarine regulated its depth. It also was covered by a nightmarish maze of copper tubes, running along the outside of the craft, carrying oil and water.

It undoubtedly was designed only for short, suicidal runs from the "mother" ship.

42D, 'RAINBOW,' DIVISION, WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY

First Regiments Reach France in November.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY IN ALSACE, France, Feb. 6.—An echo of one of the American military glories of the first World war was sounded tonight with the official announcement that the 42d infantry division is now fighting in the line with the 7th army. The 42d is the famous Rainbow division, so named by Gen. MacArthur, who was a colonel and chief of staff of the unit in the first World war.

Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins.

MacArthur, later the division's commanding officer, called the 42d the Rainbow because its spirit and tradition flared over all America and it included men from 26 states and the District of Columbia. It has the same spirit and country-wide representation in this war.

The present 42d was reactivated in July, 1943, commanded by Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins of Chicago. During its training period with the 2d, 3d, and 4th armies in the United States it furnished more than 15,000 officers and enlisted men as reënforcements for other American forces in combat.

First Arrivals in November.

Last November three infantry regiments of the 42d—the 222d, 232d, and 242d—came to France and were designated as task force Linden, for the assistant divisional commander, Brig. Gen. Henning Linden.

In December and early January the 232d was one of the units outposting the Rhine north of Strasbourg. The regiment was on the move to the north when the Germans came westward over the river the first week in January. Altho hit on the flank, the 232d rallied and helped prevent the enemy expansion of the bridgehead at that time.

The division's artillery and other attachments have now arrived and it is at full strength on another sector of the 7th army front.

Collins in Army Since 1917.

Gen. Collins, 49, has been in the regular army since 1917. Among his recent posts before taking over the 42d were as a military observer in England, a regimental commander with the 89th infantry division, and assistant divisional commander of the 99th infantry division. Gen. Linden was Amchitka base commander in Alaska from July, 1943, to September, 1944. In the first World war the Rainbow division was in the line 176 days, engaging in the Champagne - Marne defensive, the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, and driving to the gate of Sedan. It was in the army of occupation for four and a half months after the armistice.

When it was reactivated at Camp Gruber, Okla., veterans of 1917-'18 were there for the reunion and the flag of every state was displayed.

VETERANS FROM ILLINOIS.

Many men from Illinois fought as members of the Rainbow division in the World war. Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, the leader of "Reilly's Bucks," commanded its 149th field artillery and 83d infantry brigade. Some maps and records of the 42d were presented to the Chicago Historical society in May, 1942, and placed on display. Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Circuit court, then president of the Illinois chapter of Rainbow veterans, headed a delegation which attended the reactivation of the 42d at Camp Gruber in 1943.

Gen. Collins was born in Chicago on Dec. 7, 1895, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Collins. He attended Western Military academy, Alton, Ill., and the University of Chicago, leaving the university in 1917 to attend the first officers' training camp. He was a company officer and staff officer of the 3d infantry from 1917 to 1922. He attended a number of army schools in the years up to 1941.

SYRIA, LEBANON BALK AT FRENCH SPECIAL RIGHTS

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A crisis in Syrian and Lebanese relations with France, in which Britain is likely to be involved, was seen by diplomatic observers here tonight.

Camille Chamoun, Lebanese minister in London, had announced that neither of the Levant states could admit France's claim to a "preponderant position" in the two countries, and would sign no treaty giving France such a position. The two states demand that France relinquished control of her armies.

Britain, which still maintains troops in the two countries, faced an awkward situation because she is eager to maintain good relations both with France and the Arab states.

HINT BIG 3 TAKE UP PROBLEM OF WORLD SECURITY

War Plans Finished, Britons Believe.

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—It was disclosed today that the big three actually are in conference, and informed quarters in London said President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Stalin might already have tackled the problem of halting further aggression.

Walter Citrine, British trade union leader, explaining why Prime Minister Churchill would not address the trades union congress at its opening, said the British, American, and Russian leaders were meeting "at this very moment."

Citrine did not hint the location. The German radio said the meeting was being held either aboard a warship in the Black sea or at a Black sea port, while the French telegraph agency said it was being held at Sochi, on the Black sea's eastern shore at the foot of the Caucasus mountains.

War Plans Possibly Completed.

With indications that the conference had been in progress for some days, it seemed that the more urgent problems of defeating Germany and controling that nation might have been settled.

This would clear the ground for discussion of a proposed world organization and the unanswered question of Dumbarton Oaks—whether a majority or unanimity would be required to determine an aggressor.

The big three probably will discuss this, since the future of Germany is only a part of the larger issue of international security.

A difference of opinion rose at the Dumbarton Oaks conference between Russia and the United States on voting arrangements of a proposed security council, the Russians favoring unanimity while the Americans preferred decisions by a majority vote.

Compromise Held Possible.

Informed sources expressed belief that Roosevelt and Stalin might compromise on an agreement for a majority vote on most questions but requiring unanimity when deciding upon military action against an aggressor.

Indicating German interest in the conference, the German presss and radio carried thousands of words seeking to bolster the home front against an expected demand for German capitulation.

The British Press association said no official announcements could be expected until the leaders had returned home, when simultaneous statements would be made in Washington, D. C., London, and Moscow.

The Swiss radio quoted reports from Rome, Italy, that President Roosevelt was making plans to meet Pope Pius. The broadcast said Myron C. Taylor, the President's personal envoy to Vatican City, was making the preparations and that Roosevelt might meet the pope upon his return from the big three conference.

White House Silent.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—The White House declined comment today on the statement of Walter Citrine that the big three were meeting.

MELROSE PARK YANK HONORED; KILLED 10 NAZIS

The bronze star medal for heroic achievement against the enemy in the vicinity of Lisdorf, Germany, has been awarded to Sgt. Michael Mickinsie, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mickinsie, 911 N. 22d av., Melrose Park, have been informed.

Sgt. Mickinsie.

With six men and two machine guns, Sgt. Mickinsie repulsed a company of Germans attempting to establish a bridgehead across the Saar river. After holding fire until the enemy was within a few yards, he succeeded in killing at least 10 Germans, capturing five, and sank two assault boats, the citation read.

Sgt. Mickinsie received the Purple Heart after this action. He has been overseas a year.

U. S. 1ST AND 3D ARMIES PRESS ON IN SIEGFRIED LINE

PARIS, Feb. 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—American troops fighting in or beyond the Siegfried line's main emplacements along a broad front in western Germany extended their operations northward yesterday with a two direction attack against the last enemy positions west of the Roer guarding the river's important dams.

Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army advanced up to a mile and one-half on an eight mile front. Lt. Gen. Hodge's American 1st army pushed within a half mile of clearing the Siegfried line's permanent fortifications.

Inside Germany the 1st army's 78th infantry division was squeezing the last Germans from the west bank of the Roer. This division advanced within 1,500 yards of Schmidt, north of the network of dams that controls the Roer's head waters. Enemy artillery forced the 78th to abandon an attempt to bridge the Paulushof reservoir on the upper Roer.

Move Nearer Schleiden.

The village of Scheuren, a half mile northwest of Schleiden, fell to the 9th infantry division. Schleiden is one of the last anchor points of the Siegfried line's deep defenses, but it is not known what works the Germans have been able to erect hastily farther to the east.

Two and one-half miles southwest of Schleiden the 2d infantry division ran into stubborn German tank and infantry forces. Heavy fighting was in progress there in thawing weather which flooded some creeks.

Third army men took a string of Siegfried zone towns and pressed within three miles northwest of Prum.

At Brandscheid, where the 3d army broke clear thru the Siegfried line's main fortifications on Monday, the Germans counter-attacked. Field dispatches said there were only 250 Germans involved and that the attack was broken after two-thirds of the Germans were captured. One American column then pressed a half-mile eastward to the outskirts of Hontheim, three miles from Prum.

Advance in Prum Area.

The 3d army's 90th infantry division captured Habscheid, six and a half miles southwest of Prum, in a mile and a quarter gain, and Lutzkampen, 11 miles southwest of Prum, in an advance of a mile and a half. Berg and Grosskampenberg, 10 miles southwest of Prum, fell in the same push.

Schlausenbach, six miles northwest of Prum, also was taken in the 3d army's advance against light artillery fire.

The British, Canadian and United States 9th and 7th army fronts remained comparatively quiet.

[A Berlin broadcast recorded in London asserted Gen. Eisenhower has completed preparations for a new offensive from the Roer river line and that the zero hour is near. Berlin indicated the main blow was expected in the Linnich-Duren area east of Aachen, but reported increasing artillery activity on the British 2d army front to the north.]

Cleaning Out Colmar Pocket.

On the Alsatian front French 1st army troops with American aid continued cleaning out the halved Colmar pocket of Germans and the Americans placed the fortress city of Neuf Breisach under siege.

American and French 1st army troops tightened the Vosges pocket to seven by 10 miles in area, and cut off its western end, capturing the towns of Munster, Soutzeren, Stosswihr, Gieshouse, and others.

The Germans were fighting stubbornly on the shoulders of their now-blunted salient in Alsace but one of their most savagely-held spots, Neuf Breisach, 13 miles northeast of Colmar, was placed under siege by Americans who crossed the old city's moats during the night and closed in from three sides. One thousand Germans there were reported under orders to fight to the death.

Since the start of the offensive on Jan. 20 by the French 1st army and its American components 10,000 Germans have been captured. The United States 3d infantry division alone took more than 1,000 on Monday.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Tuesday's official war report covering the western front as broadcast by Berlin said:

"British and Americans continued their scouting on the entire Roer front, sometimes under strong cover of artificial fog.

"In the Schleiden combat area our troops repulsed numerous enemy attacks. South of the Erft [river] the main enemy succeeded in making a local advance.

"From the west wall sector east of St. Vith fierce local actions and fighting for bunkers have been reported.

"Formations stationed northwest of the Ill [river] in the Vosges fought their way back across the river according to orders. The enemy, attempting to pierce disengagement movements was repulsed. Enemy attacks from Ensisheim failed after strong artillery preparation, with heavy losses to the enemy."

NAZIS' OFFICIAL REPORT OF WAR ON EAST FRONT

The German Tuesday war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said:

"In the southern Slovak border district and north of the western Beskids some penetrations which the enemy was able to achieve were sealed off.

"In the sector around Budapest castle the garrison continues to put up heroic resistance against soviets attacking with superior forces.

"On the Oder front 71 enemy tanks were shot up in the course of hard offensive and defensive fighting between Ratibor and Glogau, including 22 destroyed by the garrison of Brieg. Southwest of Brieg the enemy succeeded in widening his bridgehead.

"Enemy attacks against our defenses east of Frankfurt-on-Oder and against Kustrin were repulsed.

"The soviets yesterday succeeded in penetration into the city center of Poznan. Heavy house-to-house fighting is in progress there.

"In the southern part of Pomerania and West Prussia the enemy attacked unsuccessfully.

"The garrison of Elbing defended itself toughly against the onrushing soviets. Counter-attacks of our formations narrowed down enemy penetrations.

"In Latvia the day passed without any fighting activities worth mentioning."

ROCKETS BLAST KURILE ISLAND RADIO STATION

AN ALEUTIAN BASE, Feb. 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—Venturas of fleet air wing four surprised the Kurile Islands' Japanese again today with a successful rocket bombing attack on the radio station at Jurabu cape air field on Paramushiro. It was the second rocket bombing in the North Pacific operations by navy planes. Among those participating in the missions were air crewmen Leonard E. Shain and John R. Nichols, both of Terre Haute, Ind.

Jury Clears Husband, 17, in Death of His Wife, 18

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Tarrant county grand jury today voted a no bill clearing Burr Walker Jr., 17, of a charge that he murdered his 18 year old bride, Jean, in their apartment here Jan. 25. Walker, a native of Long Island, protested his innocence thruout the investigation. He admitted he had tied his wife with a soft-cord to the four posts of their bed before she became unconscious and was taken to a hospital where she died, but declared the tying was done in play.

VETERANS HOLD HOTTEST PLACE ON BEACHHEAD

Shell Ends Fighting Days of Capt. Britt.

(The hottest spot on a beachhead is described in this story, the final instalment of a series of articles on the infantry, the "Queen of Battles." The author of the series was the commanding officer of Company L, 30th infantry, 3d infantry division, and is the most decorated soldier of the present war.)

BY CAPT. MAURICE L. BRITT.

[First soldier to receive the medal of honor, the distinguished service cross, the silver star, and the bronze star in the present war.]

as told to Carl Wiegman.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

To the infantry, war means taking a road junction, a hill, a house, or some other little place that usually doesn't appear in the newspaper maps. It was just another infantry job when Company L fought for two days and two nights to secure the road junction near Campo Morto, Italy.

But it meant a lot to us. We had lost some good friends—some good soldiers. We knew what lay behind the war department telegrams that soon would be going home. Our grim feeling was relieved only by the fact that we were exhausted. We flopped into dugouts in a "rest area" and slept like dead men. That night a German shell landed in the "rest area" and killed two more of us.

Couldn't Even Rest.

It was like that at Anzio. There was no place on the whole beachhead that was safe from enemy shelling and bombing. We couldn't even rest.

On the morning of the next day Company L was ordered to go to secure a line of departure for an attack to be made by the 7th regiment. We started about noon. The map showed our objective was about two miles beyond the road junction we had just captured. On the way we had to take a house that the Jerries were using as an artillery observation post.

A hundred yards from the house we ran into heavy artillery fire. Six of our men were killed or wounded. We had to choose between staying in the open or moving along a drainage ditch that was commanded by a German machine gun.

Smoke Screen Helps.

I called for a smoke screen in front of the house and the artillery laid it down for us. This cut off the view of the German observers, and we were able to crawl up close to the house, just in time to see a dozen Germans tear out of the place.

Inside, we found two chickens, ready to fry, with a note that read: "You dirty Yankees, you won't even give us time to eat."

This raised our morale. During that night, we put out defenses, while two Ranger battalions slipped thru our lines to prepare for an attack on the town of Cisterna. They jumped off at dawn in another sector, but soon were stalled, suffering heavy casualties. Most of them were cut off and only a handful escaped.

I was always tough with the men when I heard them repeating rumors that so and so company had been "wiped out." Such rumors wreck any outfit's morale. But this time it was hard to keep the men from talking about the disaster to the Rangers. Rumors were realities those tense days on the Anzio beachhead.

Wait for German Attack.

A week later the Germans started counter-attacks and Company L again had to go back into the line. We marched all night; no talking, no cigarets, and opened our orders en route. These were to take Hill 101, which commanded a view of Cisterna, and to hold a strategic strip 600 yards long, just south of the town. When we reached the hill we were pleasantly surprised to find it was already occupied by a company of the 7th infantry.

We relieved them at dawn; the poor fellows needed rest badly. Headquarters sent us 12 machine guns with eight boxes of ammunition for each. We placed the guns in defensive positions. All that day we waited, but nothing came our way except an occasional artillery shell.

That night the Germans attacked. Our outposts gave us two minutes warning. It is nerve wracking to wait for an attack; I think it is worse than making one. But this one was worse for the Germans. Our machine gunners mowed them down—20 or more of them—and the rest of the attackers retreated.

Wounded Out All Night.

All the rest of the night their dead and wounded lay in front of our lines. We could hear the wounded moaning. One man was sobbing.

Next morning German litter bearers appeared, wearing Red Cross armbands. We held our fire while the casualties were removed.

Our company command post was again in a house—one of those standard Italian concrete or stone houses with the stairway on the outside. It stood on a knoll behind the lines and commanded a fine view of Cisterna and the network of roads behind the town.

At daybreak we could see German vehicles of various kinds moving up from the rear. I called for artillery and we knocked out several of them. We soon found out that the Germans knew our house was the observation point.

Bombers Wreck House.

First they sent over two dive bombers to try to knock us out. This was a distinct honor for a company command post. We heard the bombs coming, first a r-o-o-o-h which turned into a hiss and then the boom of an explosion. The bombs were "near misses," as they say in the air forces, but they were close enough to suit the infantry. One of them caved in the front wall of the house. None of us was hurt.

The Germans then tried to destroy the house with artillery and tank fire. This was much worse than the dive bombing. It was more accurate. The tanks fired armor piercing shells that went right thru the building. All day long they bombarded us. We took cover most of the time under bales of hay in the rear, where the Italian owners of the place once kept their cow. As we huddled there, Sgt. Robert Huntley listened to the burst of a shell, then remarked reflectively, "This probably is the hottest spot on the beachhead."

We agreed with him. But I felt we ought to stay there as long as possible to continue directing artillery and mortar fire which was protecting our men on the line and hampering the German preparations for a counter-attack.

At the end of the day the house was a shambles, but still standing. Outside, there was a shell crater every few yards. When the shelling stopped at dark it was a blessed relief. The tension of our nerves had been so great that I think we all got a little hysterical. I decided we had better not try to stick it out another day.

But then Sgt. Phillips and Pvt. Overstreet started bringing up ammunition and rations under cover of the darkness, and by the time we had distributed the supplies to the men in the line, it was very late. After that, we got 25 replacements for men who had been killed or wounded.

Six of Replacements Killed.

We didn't have their names on the roster, but we were so tired that I told Lt. Miller to put them on the line and we'd get their names in the morning.

The new men were recruits who had never fired a gun at the enemy. Their uniforms were clean; they were polite and eager, but very scared. Next morning six of them were dead—killed before we even got their names. Then we entered them on our roster. They, too, were members of Company L.

Despite my resolve to seek a safer place for our command post, daylight came before we got our work done, and I saw we'd have to stick it out another day. Soon the Germans resumed shelling us. The roof and front of the house were now gone, and I stood at a window on the first floor, looking thru my field glasses at German troop movements. Kneeling on the floor beside me was Lt. Carter of M company, who was assisting in directing mortar fire.

I had just raised my arm to point out something to Lt. Carter when a tremendous blast shook the whole house. A shell had struck the casement of the window where we were standing.

I don't think I lost consciousness. I remember seeing the plaster dust and debris settle after the explosion. I remember saying: "It was a tank."

Then I saw my right arm was gone and Lt. Carter was dead. Several other men were moaning.

Pvt. Robert Morrow of Knoxville, Tenn., a member of the communications section, got to me first and put a tourniquet on my arm. He used a heavy rope, which stopped the bleeding. Then he got me some water and I took six sulfa tablets to prevent infection. I asked Pvt. Morrow to take off my left shoe, because my foot was numb.

"It's as good as off now, sir," he said.

Sole Almost Torn Off.

I looked down and saw the sole was almost entirely torn off. I wanted a cigaret badly. Somebody gave me one and lit it for me. Lt. Miller, who was lying motionless on the floor, says I called to him, "Good-by, Jackson, good-by. Tell my wife I love her."

I don't remember saying good-by to him. I think he imagined it. I asked him how badly he was hurt. He said, "I don't think I'm hurt bad." He was wrong there, too. He obviously couldn't move. He had a severe leg wound, which kept him in hospitals for more than a year.

I remember asking him who else was hit. He told me, but the names didn't register. Then our first sergeant, Robert Huntley, came and knelt beside me.

"Captain, I'm sorry," he said. "What are your orders?"

Orders to Hold On.

I told him my orders were to hold on indefinitely and that he should turn the company over to Lt. Ivorson if he was still alive.

There were 15 men in the room when the shell struck. Five were killed, seven wounded, and three escaped without injury. I still think it was a tank shell, but some of the men insist it was the "Anzio Express," one of those 280 millimeter railroad gun shells.

It doesn't really matter now.

LEGION, V. F. W. URGE FULL YEAR TRAINING PLAN

[This is another article in a series on compulsory military training in peace time, expressing arguments for and against the plan and reviewing official action.]

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

The American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with combined membership of more than two million men who fought in World Wars I. and II., are demanding that congress pass a universal military training law at once. Both organizations have sought such a law for 25 years.

The Legion proposes that every qualified young male American receive 12 months of military training, integrated with his academic education and at an age least likely to disrupt his normal educational and business life.

The V. F. W. policy, as enunciated by Jean A. Brunner, national commander, is for a full year of training in camp and regular training for a reasonable period of years thereafter in the national guard or reserve army or navy units.

"Would Add to Their Experience."

"There is no valid argument," said Brunner, "that a year's training would disrupt a young man's life or interfere with his formal education. The educational systems already established in the United States are fully capable of carrying forth the academic education of our youth.

"Even if our young men should be separated from purely academic education for a full year, that period of military training would add so advantageously to their experience that it would more than compensate for the supposed delay in pursuit of careers.

"After the initial military training the soldier needs regular training in and practice with the ever changing implements of war so he may keep abreast of military developments and improvements. That takes in everything from small arms to battleships."

Trained Force of 3 Million.

Brunner said the V. F. W. would like to see the United States have a trained force of at least three million men, distributed in proper proportion among the army, navy and air force, as the foundation of its post-war national defense program.

Recalling that the V. F. W. is composed of men who served outside the country in time of national emergency and fully cognizant of what wars mean, the organization at its last national encampment in Chicago declared reluctance to accept longer the philosophy that any war will end wars. For this reason, the V. F. W. insists that adequate preparation is the best means of prevention of war and that the time has come to put such a policy into effect.

The Legion wants a universal military training act passed now, to become effective immediately upon the expiration next May 15 of the selective training and service act of 1940—the draft act. The Legion would have trainees serve in the army, navy, marine corps, national guard, naval militia or organized reserves after a period of basic training.

Continuation of R. O. T. C. Favored.

The Legion proposal also favors continuation of the R. O. T. C. in land grant colleges and other institutions of higher education and in the high schools.

Continuation of the national guard also is urged by the Legion, and where the R. O. T. C. is not available in high schools, it urges adoption of the Legion's high school military training program.

Thru its national defense committee, the Legion is conducting a campaign of education thruout the United States. Seven regional conferences were conducted in January. These were attended by representatives of the army, navy, national guard, Reserve Officers' association, preparatory and higher schools of education, the clergy, and others. Attempts were made to obtain full discussion on the merits of universal military training.

Believing that the government of the United States can be maintained only by military and naval power, the Legion's position is that this power can be had only thru a large professional army and navy, which would be very costly; or a citizen-militia army and navy, or a combination of a comparatively small professional armed force backed by a trained citizen force composed of graduates of a year of universal military training in the army or the navy.

Bomb Targets

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—About 2,200 American planes lashed at Magdeburg, Leipzig, and Chemnitz in central Germany today as the explosion of delayed action bombs dropped in last Saturday's raids continued in Berlin. More than 1,300 Fortresses and Liberators were shielded by 850 air force Mustangs and Thunderbolts and encountered no aerial opposition.

Magdeburg is the center of Germany's synthetic oil refinery belt and only 65 miles from Berlin; Leipzig is Germany's fifth largest city with a population of 750,000 and site of large aircraft, tool, and textile industries, and Chemnitz is a rail center and truck and tank factory town 30 miles from the border of Czechoslovakia and 120 from Berlin. Berlin was hit by R. A. F. Mosquito bombers last night.

RICK PREDICTS REDS TO FIGHT JAPS IN 'TIME'

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker said tonight he believed Russia would join the United States in the war against Japan "when the time is ripe."

Speaking at the 50th annual meeting of the New York Credit Men's association he declared, however, that it would be "insane" to ask Russia to fight Japan at the present time because of her campaign against Germany and the thin supply line to the far east.

Rickenbacker said he did not like communist ideology.

"If Russia keeps going to the right, she will wind up as the greatest democracy in the world," Rickenbacker added. On the other hand, he said, "If the United States keeps going to the left we will wind up where the Russians were 20 years ago."

CUT OFF THREE 'FASCIST' LANDS, REDS ASK LABOR

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Russian delegation urged before the world trade union congress tonight that labor's strength be committed not only to the defeat of Germany but also to the political and economic isolation of Argentina, Spain, and Portugal.

The leader of 35 soviet delegates, M. Kuznetsov, said all three countries were fascist-governed and said it was the duty of trade unions in democratic countries to shut them off and "help their peoples wipe out fascism."

He also assailed Sweden and Switzerland.

Two Countries Not Invited.

Argentina and Spain were not invited to the congress and there was no immediate reaction from the other countries included in Kuznetsov's declaration.

The American Federation of Labor was absent, its leaders having said they were not convinced that the Russian delegation could act without domination by the soviet government.

Kuznetsov ignored this, as he did the absence of John Lewis' United Mine Workers, but George Isaacs, newly elected British member of the triumvirate of presidents, referred to it in his welcoming speech.

Urges Work for Unity.

"We profoundly regret the absence of important delegations we had hoped to welcome," he said. "Still more do we regret the causes of their nonattendance. Unity is our aim. Let us not lose sight of it at any stage of our work in this conference."

U. S. BOMBERS BLOCK BRENNER PASS RAIL ROUTE TO GERMANY

ROME, Feb. 6 (AP).—The German air force was sent into action today in an effort to prevent further destruction to the vital Brenner pass rail line which had been cut by American bombers, leaving Field Marshal Kesselring's armies in Italy virtually isolated. Three German fighters were shot down when a force of 30 tried to intercept a formation of Mitchell bombers headed for the pass. Two of the three were bagged by Lt. William J. Hay Jr., Oshkosh, Wis., and Lt. Robert E. Williams, Grand Blanc, Mich.

Mediterranean allied air force headquarters announced that reconnaissance had shown the Brenner route to Germany and other mainlines in northeastern Italy to Austria and Yugoslavia to be "thoroly blocked." These routes have been cut before, but crews sometimes began reconstruction almost before the bombers were out of sight.

Fifth army troops moving up to regain ground in the Serchio valley north of Lucca in Italy ran into only light opposition. Patrols in other 5th army sectors found slightly increased enemy resistance.

DEAD, MISSING IN N. Y. HARBOR FIRE TOTAL 40

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Twenty-two men still were missing tonight from the tankers Springhill and Pan-Clio, which collided in New York bay yesterday, bringing death to at least 18 persons when their gasoline and oil cargoes caught fire. More than 100 others were injured, nine critically. Those missing included nine members of the navy armed guard.

Poor Digestion? Headachy? Sour or Upset? Tired-Listless?

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any druggist. Only 25¢.

ANOTHER POST "FIRST"!
VIVID, EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF

FILIPINO GUERRILLA BRAVERY IN DEFIANCE OF JAP GUNS

THE long military blackout is lifted once more to bring to Post readers one of this war's most significant and dramatic news "beats".

It is the exclusive, detailed story of the organization and success of the anti-Jap resistance forces on the still unliberated island of Mindanao. A story of bravery such as history has seldom recorded—as witnessed by a guerrilla leader—an American school teacher—who lived through the horrors of Jap conquest. One who helped organize the tens of thousands of courageous men who faced the Jap flood.

Vividly, starkly told—it is a historic epic of incomparable men who fought with a will of steel to shorten the stubborn, bloody road back to Corregidor and Bataan.

EXCLUSIVELY IN THE POST . . . .

It is the kind of dramatic eyewitness "first" millions have come to expect on Post pages. It is another Post exclusive . . . not to be missed.

ROUEN BUILDINGS WRECKED; SPIRIT OF PEOPLE HIGH

Meat, Eggs, Butter for Sale; Fuel Scarce.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROUEN, France, Feb. 6.—The astonishing thing about Rouen, noticeable immediately upon arrival, is the determination of its people to survive and rebuild. Rubble is being removed by German prisoners and municipal workers, and bombed areas cleared. Two improvised bridges cross the Seine, one on boats for civilian usage, and another built by American army engineers.

The first impulse on reaching Rouen is to see what the bombs did to the cathedral. They did an appalling amount of damage and tho the cathedral probably will be restored, it is now boarded up and its doors sandbagged. Arches and vaults have been wrecked, and all the windows shattered. Great chunks of masonry lie about.

2 Towers Smashed.

The cathedral's tall, green copper covered spire still stands, but two west towers have been smashed. All around the cathedral there are ruins. This damage was caused by allied bombs, some persons say, as a result of attacks from high altitudes.

Next door to the cathedral the magnificent Rouen palace of justice is a wreck and all the lower end of the Rue Jeanne D'Arc a mass of crumbled masonry. The docks at the foot of the famous street also are in ruins. Dozens of other buildings are wrecked.

On the other hand, Rouen's Rue de la Grosse Horloge [Street of the Big Clock] has not been touched, altho it is next door to the cathedral and the palace of justice. And next to the ruined docks the Rue des Charrettes, Rouen's street of lurid ladies, flourishes intact.

Rouen had about five miles of docks, of which the Germans dynamited about half when they left in August. Port equipment, including floating docks, also was put out of commission, and ships were sunk in the harbor.

Wrecked bridges and cranes still are visible, but Col. Richard Whitcomb, the port commander, has so restored the harbor since October that now Liberty and Victory ships are coming up the Seine, and tons of war materials daily are being unloaded on Rouen docks.

More Food Than Paris Has.

Rouen seems revived after five months of liberation. Like Le Havre, it is thronged with American services of supply troops and some British and Canadians. It is better off than Paris in the matter of food, but it has been worse off for fuel and desperately cold.

Train service, except to a few neighboring towns, has been suspended for three weeks. Rouen people say this has one advantage, that of not allowing outsiders to come to the Rouen markets, which always have been rich, and buy up food.

There are a few good restaurants, out of bounds to American troops, which serve a good meal for 38 francs, or about 75 cents. All stores are loaded with perfumes—put out to sell to American soldiers. It's one of France's biggest rackets now.

On billboards, Communist posters adjoin advertisments that Mistinguette and her famous legs will come to town shortly in the course of a provincial barnstorming tour to help keep up French spirits.

Want New Order.

Resistance forces are operative here, and both these and the old parties of Communists, Socialists, Radicals, and Christian Democrats, say the "tyranny of the trusts" must go.

Bordeau de Fontant, regional director for the province of Normandy, says food is not now an acute problem but may become so a month hence. Farmers have no feed for their animals and have sold off many.

Rouen's market place is historic. It was there that Joan of Arc was burned, and a magnificent monument marks the spot. There is much food to sell.

Eggs and Butter.

I saw great baskets of eggs for the first time since I left America and big platters of butter. This produce was sold by ration card, two eggs and 100 grams of butter per person. Not only eggs and butter, but meat, sausages, leeks, carrots, apples, and cabbages were available in such quantities as to make a Parisian housewife's eyes bulge.

All around the square, with its two big market sheds were parked all kinds of vehicles from the country and in the cafes and restaurants which surround the square market people were drinking wine and spirits and eating bread and cheeses as in the old days.

One gains in Rouen the impression of a lusty and thrifty race, likely to live down the war.

Fire Protection Group Gives Plaque to Chicago

Chicago has been given the grand award plaque by the National Fire Protection association for its observance of Fire Prevention week in 1944, A. G. Smith, chairman of the association's nominating committee, advised Fire Marshal Mullaney yesterday. The letter also told Mullaney he has been indorsed for nomination to the association's board of directors.

Horse Rescued in Stable Fire

80 HORSES, SOME VALUED AT $10,000, PERISH IN BLAZE

Trapped in $100,000 North Side Fire.

Four fires in different parts of the city yesterday resulted in the death of 80 riding horses, many of them ribbon winners, destroyed 60 new and used automobiles, forced a father and mother to jump three floors to fire nets with their two children, and drove eight other persons, including six children, from a home.

The horses suffocated when flames started by a defective electric heater swept the Fashion Club stables, 2223 Cleveland av. Gene Harris, 749 Rush st., owner of the stable and 50 horses, estimated his loss at $100,000. Owners of blooded horses boarding at the stable reported their mounts were worth up to $10,000 each.

Groom Discovers Blaze.

The fire was discovered in the tack room, where the bridles and saddles were kept, by Robert June, 20, of 4351 North av., groom, when he was feeding the animals. The blaze spread quickly and only five horses were led to safety.

Fire Marshal Mullaney said Harris had only the one attendant, June, in the stables and that June, handicapped as a result of infantile paralysis, was incapable of turning in an alarm.

The automobiles were destroyed when the roof of the garage and showroom of Edgar Fitzpatrick company, 7727 S. Ashland av., collapsed as fire swept thru the one story brick building. Mullaney estimated the damage from the 3-11 alarm blaze at $75,000. Cause of the fire, which started in the showroom, was not determined.

25 Flee from Flames.

In another fire 25 tenants fled from a three story apartment house at 1429 N. La Salle st. when a short circuit started a fire in a first floor flat. When firemen arrived, Louise and Joseph Murphy were holding their children, Betty Jean, 19 months, and Ardeta, 4½, out of their third floor apartment, which was filled with smoke. Firemen spread a net and Mrs. Murphy jumped with the baby. Her husband then tossed Ardeta into the net and jumped himself.

None was injured and the fire damage was estimated at $500.

Mrs. Marian Sutherland, 7728 Eggleston av., and a visitor, Mrs. Mary Lennon of Riverdale, led or carried six children to safety when fire damaged the Sutherland home. The children were Richard Sutherland, 3½; Merrily Sutherland, 2; Robert Sutherland Jr., 1; Harry Bennett, 7; Suzanne Bennett, 5, and Ronald Bennett, 1.

ASKS DENTISTS TO REPUDIATE QUOTA REPORT

New York, Feb. 6 [Special].—Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink, as chairman of the board of the eastern region of the anti-defamation league of B'nai B'rith, today called upon New York university, Columbia university, and the American Dental association to repudiate a report submitted to them by Dr. Harlan H. Horner, secretary of the council on dental education of the American Dental association.

The report, he said, urged adoption of a quota policy for students based on racial origins. This policy, Justice Steinbrink charged, was aimed solely at the exclusion of Jewish students from dental schools.

Chancellor Harry Woodburn Chase of New York university said that university had no quota system of admissions and does not contemplate any.

HERE SINCE 1940.

Dr. Harlan H. Horner was not available for comment last night at his home in Wilmette. Records show that he came to Chicago in 1940 as secretary of the American Dental association's council on dental education.

GOES TO DEATH CRYING LONG LIVE FRANCE, ANYWAY

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Robert Brasillach, under whose editorial leadership Je Suis Partout [I Am Everywhere] became France's most rabid pro-German weekly during the occupation, was executed today by a firing squad of the French Forces of the Interior outside Fort de Montrouge, where more than a dozen Paris collaborators have been shot since the start of the purge trials three months ago.

The editor, who was in his early 30s, displayed the same composure that impressed the public at his trial and conviction as a Nazi collaborator on Jan. 19. Bare headed and wearing a red silk scarf, he left a police car with his lawyers and the chaplain of Fresnes prison and calmly walked over to the execution stake. Like all the collaborators who had preceded him, he refused a blindfold.

2 Photographs Bared.

"Long live France, anyway!" Brasillach cried. He had just spoken when the order to fire was given. As his body sagged, two photographs fell from a pocket. One was of a woman, the other of a child.

The execution took place a few hours after the issuance of warrants for the arrest of 20 staff members of Je Suis Partout who fled to Germany after the liberation. A contributor, Pierre Vioux, was arrested in Orleans.

Since 1937, Brasillach had been the acknowledged leader of this group of brilliant young writers. All were disciples of Charles Maurras and violent enemies of the Jews, the English, and all democratic institutions. Maurras, 76, was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 27.

Wrote Movie History.

Almost child-like in appearance, Brasillach wore tortoise shell spectacles with thick lenses and had the high forehead and studious expression of an intellectual. He began writing in his early 20s, publishing a book on Pierre Corneille, French playwright, as well as a number of volumes of fiction, poetry, and criticism. He was a co-author of one of the most complete histories of motion pictures yet published.

After a period of inactivity, provincial firing squads resumed executions this morning, shooting three collaborators—a militia man at Lons le Saunier, and two members of Jacques Doriot's party at Nancy.

Charles Rivet, contributor to the leading collaborationist newspaper Les Nouveaux Temps, and propaganda chief of Joseph Darnand's militia on the Riviera, was jailed in Paris.

POLICE EJECT 25 AND SHUT HOTEL AS FIRE HAZARD

Police yesterday ejected 25 guests from the Moore hotel, 538 S. State st., closed it, and posted a guard to prevent any one from entering after the hotel had been condemned as a fire trap by the city building and fire commissioners.

Police Commissioner Allman ordered the action after examination of the 40 rooms of the hotel, which occupied the second and third floors of the building, disclosed that one bedroom was filled with coal, doors to the fire escape were locked, there was only one exit, and bare heating pipes were held up only by strands of light wire.

The manager, Clarence Padovano, told Lt. Frank Casey of Central police that he had not considered the hotel dangerous.

COURT REJECTS KUM BUM PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan denied a motion for a directed verdict in favor of Hugh Greer Carruthers [Kum Bum] yesterday and reserved decision on a similar motion in behalf of two co-defendants, Miss Mary Morel and Miss Evelyn Kroell. The three are on trial on charges of violating mail fraud and securities and exchange laws.

The government rested its case at noon after Assistant United States Atty. Francis McGreal summarized financial activities of the Neological Foundation, founded by Carruthers, from June 1, 1938, to Aug. 31, 1942. The government charged that Carruthers collected a total of $289,998.44 and that only $17,448.61 was returned to investors who demanded their money back. Of the total receipts, the securities and exchange commission found disbursements for only $236,419.51.

$1,239.50 Paid for Diamonds.

In this period, the government asserted, Carruthers received $36,093.70. His personal account included such items as a fur coat for Mrs. Carruthers at $640, federal income tax of $544.93, and diamonds, $1,239.50.

Membership fees and tuition totaled $91,328.62 and admission to meetings, $11,105.87. A balance of $158.24 was the only cash the foundation had in the bank as of Aug. 31, 1942. Under cash receipts there were loans for $170,145.64.

William J. Miller, last of the government's 52 witnesses, was an accountant of the securities and exchange commission. He said the profit and loss statement, the consolidated balance sheet, and cash receipts and disbursement figures offered by the government were prepared by the commission while Carruthers had offices on the 11th floor of the Civic Opera building.

Blind Couple Testifies.

A blind husband and wife, led into court by their dogs, testified that they had gone to see Carruthers for advice after listening to his radio program. They were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Driskell, 6970 Wolfram st.

"Carruthers asked me how I became blind and after listening to me promised that I would regain my sight if I studied neology and followed a diet he prescribed for me," Driskell said.

Driskell testified Carruthers told him he had been a royal air force flyer in World War I., and was blind for six months after a crash. "He said he prayed for his sight to be restored and promised to return to devote the rest of his life to doing good for others," the blind man testified.

Kum Bum Boosts Shampoo.

Driskell said that, after following the diet for six weeks, "I became ill and quit the foundation." The witness asserted Carruthers described Nan-Gene, one of the products he was promoting, as a shampoo made from "soap bark" found in India.

Driskell's wife corroborated all of her husband's testimony, and said Carruthers had promised "up to 500 per cent would be paid on investments in Nan-Gene."

SEIZE WORKMAN AS STRANGLER OF GEORGIA CHILD, 2

Brunswick, Ga., Feb. 6 (AP).—A shipyard worker was held in the state penitentiary tonight for the suffocation slaying of Bettie Lou Frazier, 2, whose partly clad body was found floating in a muddy swamp near her home yesterday.

WEALTH-DRAFT CANDIDATE LOST IN CANADA VOTE

Attacked Opponents' Draft Policies.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6 [Special].—Complete returns from yesterday's by-election in Grey North showed today that Air Vice Marshal Earl Godfrey, who had advocated conscription of wealth and finance as well as man power, ran last in the three man race for a parliament seat.

Garfield Case.

Godfrey, candidate of the socialistic C. C. F. [Co-operative Commonwealth federation], had condemned conscription policies of both the other parties, the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberal, as inadequate.

Garfield Case, former mayor of Owen Sound, running on the ticket of the official opposition party, the Progressive Conservative, received 7,338 votes. Gen. A. L. McNaughton, defense minister, the Liberal candidate, polled 6,099, and Godfrey received 3,136.

The by-election was arranged by the government ostensibly to provide a seat in parliament for Gen. McNaughton, who was appointed to the cabinet last November at the height of the conscription crisis. The other parties decided to contest the seat and the government's conscription and general man power policies were made the principal issue.

Godfrey stated his views in several campaign speeches.

"I do not believe that either the Liberal or Progressive Conservative brand of conscription is good enough," he said at a Meaford meeting. "Neither can be called conscription, the only kind of conscription that can win total war. Halfway measures will not provide either adequate man power or adequate material supplies."

In a speech at Bothwell's Corners he said his C. C. F. favored conscription of wealth as well as man power because large essential industries were "making huge profits out of the common people's sacrifices."

'FLYERS' ANGEL,' WHO SAVED 140 IN FRANCE, HERE

The health of the French people has been undermined to such an extent under German oppression that the nation won't be physically fit for the next 70 years, Mme. Drue Leyton Tartiere, believed to be the first American woman permitted to leave liberated France, said yesterday. An American born actress and the widow of Lt. Jacques Tartiere, an officer of the Free French army, she came to Chicago to fulfill speaking engagements.

Mme. Drue Tartiere.

Helped Foil Gestapo.

Known as the "flyers' angel" to 140 downed allied combat flyers whom she hid from the Gestapo in Paris, and whose escape from France she aided thru the underground, Mme. Tartiere lived in Paris and near-by Barbizon for three years under German occupation.

Close to her rented house in Barbizon was a small farm that she tilled and planted herself to provide food for British intelligence personnel dropped by parachute and airmen brought down by the Germans.

Her efforts in behalf of aviators began when she took charge of one flyer hidden by a farmer. She sold her husband's civilian clothing to get funds to feed and house the airmen, sometimes only a few doors away from the Gestapo.

Arrested and Interned.

In September, 1942, Mme. Tartiere was arrested with other American women under 60 years of age and was sent to an internment camp at Vitel. After four months she escaped.

An attractive blonde, smartly dressed, she is sharing speaking engagements with two American airmen whom she aided—Lt. Alfred Richter, 28, of 5122 N. Long av., and Aviation Cadet Willis E. Spellman, 20, of Jeffersonville, Ind.

She will address the Chicago chapter of France Forever at 4 p. m. today in the Casino, 195 E. Delaware pl., and an audience at a war bond program at 8:15 p. m. in Medinah temple, Wabash av. and Ohio st., under the auspices of the war finance committee of Illinois.

WASHINGTON U. WINS $1,250,000 IN SEVER CASE

Washington university of St. Louis, Mo., will receive $1,250,000 from the estate of Henry E. Sever, Chicago publisher, for a geophysical technological institute under a decision of the Appellate court yesterday.

The decision reversed a ruling by Judge Joseph A. Graber of Superior court that the money should go to a St. Louis university, selected by two members of a three man committee chosen to select the site of the school. The trustee of the estate, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, originally had selected Washington university.

The Appellate court opinion, written by Judge John M. O'Connor, held that under the provisions of the will, the trustee has the right to select the recipient of the bequest.

CIO ARMS STRIKE CHIEF INDUCTED AT MILWAUKEE

Directed Allis-Chalmers Stoppage in '41.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 6 [Special].—Harold Christoffel, 32, CIO official who led the 1941 strike at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company plant which tied up millions of dollars' worth of naval contracts for 76 days, was headed for the army today despite vehement CIO protests against his induction.

The Allis-Chalmers strike, which was featured by violence and bloodshed, was one of the most prolonged and conspicuous interruptions of the nation's pre-war armament program and brought charges both in congress and the Wisconsin legislature that it was communist inspired for the purpose of hampering defense plans. The strike ended in April, 1941, three months before the German attack on Russia.

Final Appeal Turned Down.

Christoffel, who is chairman of the bargaining committee of local 248 of the CIO Automobile Workers' union, composed of Allis-Chalmers employes, reported at the army induction center here today after the state selective service headquarters turned down last minute pleas by his union and the state CIO that he be given a 60 day deferment.

At the induction center it was said later in the day Christoffel had been sent to the Fort Sheridan recruit reception center.

Christoffel, who is married and has one child, has been classified 1-A in the draft for more than a year, it was said. He was president of his local union from 1936 to 1944 and because of his presidency was on leave of absence from the Allis-Chalmers plant for five years prior to 1944. When his 1-A classification came thru and was upheld by local appeal board No. 1 over the objection of the union, he returned to his job at the plant.

Company Assailed.

Meyer Adelman, secretary-treasurer of the county CIO council, issued a statement accusing Allis-Chalmers of using selective service to deprive the union of its proper representative in collective bargaining with the company.

The company in reply said it had asked deferment for Christoffel when he returned to work but had refused to take part in a subterfuge by appealing his local board's decision "in view of the fact that selective service already had refused to declare Christoffel essential as a union official."

Adelman sent telegrams protesting the induction to Robert Patterson, assistant secretary of war; Maj. Gen. Hershey, national selective service director; Clinton C. Golden, labor representative on the war man power commission, and Maj. Gen. Reynolds, commander, 6th service command. He also said he would demand an investigation of the administration of Col. John F. Mullen as state director of selective service.

Stop Overzealous Drafting of Farmers, Congress Urged

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 [Special].—Demands for closer scrutiny of the drafting of farm workers mounted in congress today amid charges that some selective service boards were being "overzealous" in ordering the induction of critically needed agricultural help.

Creation of a six man congressional committee to study the problem was proposed in a bill offered by Rep. Lemke [R., N. D.]. The committee would be empowered to "determine who is responsible for the wholesale induction of essential farmers and farm workers where no replacements are available."

Rep. Bender [R., O.] called on selective service to consider the "relative contributions" of other civilians, including professional athletes, before inducting farm help.

Others Defend Farmers.

Similar opposition to drafting young farmers was registered previously by Representatives Brown, Weichel, and McGregor, all Ohio Republicans. They asserted food supplies were dwindling because of the farmer shortage.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] demanded that Michigan's Gov. Kelly and Selective Service Director Pearson immediately straighten out the matter of farm deferments.

In a letter to Pearson, Hoffman asked: "Why is it that neither you nor Gen. Hershey [national selective service director]—you in particular—refuse to direct the local boards to proceed under the Tydings amendment?"

The Tydings amendment provides for the deferment of irreplaceable agricultural workers.

Hoffman urged Gov. Kelly in a telegram: "Why not a straight-out directive to local boards deferring registrants who qualify under the Tydings amendment?"

Urge Strict Compliance.

Hoffman and two fellow Michigan Republicans, Rep. Michener and Rep. Woodruff, have been urging strict adherence to the amendment.

Sen. Reed [R., Kas.], speaking at a meeting of Kansas members of congress, charged an "overzealous" drafting of farmers.

He said he had protested to Gov. Schoeppel that draft boards in "a few counties" were "taking boys where clearly they should not be taken." Reed asserted he had received no reply from the governor to his request for an investigation of "from a dozen to 20 complaints" he had received from his home state against drafting of farm youths.

The governor could arrange an appeal in such cases, Sen. Reed said. "The boys themselves will not appeal," he added.

Draft Board Quits

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 6 [Special].—Three members of Houston county draft board at Dothan have resigned rather than induct 40 young farmers into the army, Col. James T. Johnson, state selective service director, said today. He asserted the farm workers, classified 2-C, were put into 1-A by an appeal board. The local board contended the men were needed to produce crops, Col. Johnson said. The state director asserted the county board had granted too many deferments. Members of the board who resigned are Burl M. Fellows, chairman; Curtis T. Owens, and Alex D. Wood.

ACCUSED U-BOAT AGENTS BEGIN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Colepaugh's Visits to German Ship Told.

New York, Feb. 6 [Special].—William Curtis Colepaugh, 26, and Erich Gimpel, 35, who allegedly landed on the Maine coast Nov. 29 from a German submarine, today began a fight for their lives before a military commission in a secret trial on Governor's Island.

They are charged with being Nazis spies and conspiring to commit sabotage and espionage.

Colepaugh, a native of Niantic, Conn., was identified by a woman customs clerk as the man who boarded a German tanker moored in Boston harbor on 21 days in 1940-'41. The clerk, Miss Agnes McLaughlin, of Dorchester, Mass., said Colepaugh visited the Pauline Friedrich as a guest of either the captain or the first mate and on one occasion stayed aboard a week.

Liked "Their People" Best.

Another witness—one of three who said Colepaugh boarded the ship—quoted him as saying he liked the people on board "better than the people ashore or in this country."

Colepaugh evidenced keen interest in the testimony given on the first day of the trial of himself and the German born Gimpel.

Standing before the tribunal in a small room of a building on Governors Island in New York bay, Colepaugh and Gimpel pleaded "not guilty" to each of three charges.

They lost motions for separate trials and for elimination of a charge that they conspired to commit sabotage and espionage. Severance was sought on the ground that they had made lengthy statements after their arrest, each giving information that defense counsel considered detrimental to the other.

Customs Collector a Witness.

Duncan A. Grant of Cambridge, Mass., collector of customs at Boston, identified Colepaugh in the courtroom. Grant, whose duties included supervision of guards on ships in Boston harbor, said the German tanker arrived in Boston in September, 1939, from Texas with a cargo of oil and evidently sought sanctuary because of the impending war. Grant said that on one occasion he saw Colepaugh on the ship chipping paint.

Miss McLaughlin, who compiled records based on guards' reports, detailed the 21 days she said Colepaugh visited the ship. Vernon M. Tobey of Cambridge, Mass., inspector of customs at Boston, said that in the spring of 1940, while on duty as a guard, he saw Colepaugh going aboard and asked him why he wanted to do so. It was he who quoted Colepaugh as saying he liked the people there best.

DRAFT OF LABOR VITAL FOR WAR, PATTERSON SAYS

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Undersecretary of War Patterson told the senate military affairs committee today total mobilization of labor is necessary for winning the war and urged passage of "work or jail" legislation now being considered by the committee. He admitted, however, that the need for the legislation is "spotty," but is "desperately needed in areas of critical man power shortages where man power has been misapplied."

Patterson's recommendations were in a confidential statement to the committee in a closed hearing this afternoon, but Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] released the text to reporters with the remark that it "contained no military secrets."

Patterson was preceded on the stand by his chief, Secretary of War Stimson, who told the committee, according to members, that man power legislation is more necessary now than when he first urged it a year ago.

Called Morale Lifter.

Stimson told the committee, it was learned, that if the "work or jail bill" is passed, its effect would be felt immediately on the fighting fronts where it would "lift the morale of the soldiers."

"I submit," Paterson said in his statement, "that the moral basis for this bill is the principle that in this war, a total war, every citizen is bound to do his part in carrying the burden. It is unfair and un-American to impose on 12 million citizens the duty to fight and not to impose on the rest of us the duty to work in support of those who fight."

Requirements Greater.

Despite developments in Europe, with the Russians nearing Berlin, Patterson said the 1945 program for war production in the United States is based on a two-front war. He said the year's requirements were for more munitions than were produced in 1944, the nation's biggest year in war production.

The man power bill before the senate committee was introduced in the house by Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee. A similar measure was introduced in the senate a month ago by Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.].

Both bills provide that men between 18 and 45 employed in essential industry or on farms shall not leave their jobs without government approval, and gives the government authority to transfer men to industries where man power shortages exist.

PARRAN BACKS BILL TO DRAFT NURSES 18 TO 45

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Enactment of selective service legislation to provide nurses for military and civilian needs was advocated today by Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service.

Testifying before the house military committee on a bill to draft nurses 18 to 45, Parran said that nurses who are not selected for military duty should be required to utilize their skills to safeguard the nation's health.

The committee is considering a bill drawn up by Chairman May [D., Ky.] at the request of the war department. President Roosevelt, in his annual message to congress, cited a need for legislation to provide 18,000 more army and 2,000 more navy nurses.

LEGION CHARGES OPA BALKS VETS IN NEW BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The American Legion demanded today that Price Administrator Bowles relax restrictive regulations which the Legion said are preventing many veterans of this war from entering or reëntering business for themselves. The restrictions disregard laws passed in behalf of veterans by congress, the Legion charged.

Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander of the organization, informed Bowles in a letter that the Legion has received increasing evidence "that inflexibility in the regulations of the office of price administration—coupled with rigid administration by many regional and local officials—is preventing veterans from resuming their full competitive position in our civilian economy."

Actual cases of veterans being denied the right to reënter the businesses they were operating before entering the service, or to start new businesses of their own, have been called to the attention of the OPA, Scheiberling asserted. He cited several recent cases of war veterans encountering difficulties because of alleged inflexible OPA regulations or rigid interpretations.

Instances Cited.

One case involved the denial of sugar and butter to a war veteran who wanted to open a popcorn stand. Another seeking to reënter the coal business which he left to join the army was denied priorities for purchasing coal. A third veteran, who abandoned his tire recapping business when he was called into service, couldn't obtain permission to buy materials when he sought to reopen his old business.

"In large measure, this inflexibility defeats the intent of congress to provide the freest possible economic opportunity to our fighting men on their return," Scheiberling declared. "It is futile for congress to provide business loans for veterans, and facilitate their entry into business in other ways, if government regulations make it impossible for the veterans to obtain the goods and materials necessary for the conduct of the business they select.

Suggest New Policy.

"Many other instances could be cited, but the above suffice to illustrate the Legion's point of view. Obviously, such rigid interpretation of regulations defeats the whole purpose of congress in passing the G. I. bill of rights, the surplus property disposal bill and other legislation."

Scheiberling recalled that last October he informed Bowles that some regulations were making it difficult for veterans to reënter civilian life. Bowles replied at that time that these regulations and their effect on veterans were being reconsidered "very carefully."

VOTE BY HOUSE GROUP LIMITS WALLACE POWER

Democrats Beat Curb on F. D. R. Authority.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The house banking committee today approved the George bill stripping vast federal lending powers from the commerce department after the group's Democratic majority succeeded in killing restrictive amendments.

Stifling Republican protests, the committee reported out the bill after less than two hours' consideration and without open hearings demanded by the G. O. P. minority.

The senate approved measure, which was reluctantly supported by the administration in an effort to obtain senate confirmation of Henry Wallace for the commerce secretaryship, may reach the house floor late this week, congressional leaders said.

Wolcott Persists in Fight.

Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], the ranking minority member of the banking committee, told reporters he will seek on the house floor to revive the proposed amendments rejected today. He was supported in this move by the Republican house leadership and a group of conservative Democrats who want congress to curb prospective leftist schemes they fear Wallace might initiate if he has a chance.

The two major restrictions proposed by Wolcott were defeated in committee today on votes along party lines.

The first would repeal the section of the President's war powers act which gives Mr. Roosevelt authority to transfer any federal agency or bureau into any department he chooses. Wolcott's amendment would thus prevent the President from shifting other huge powers to Wallace besides the lending agencies, assuming Mr. Wallace is confirmed. It would further prohibit other agency shifts without approval of congress. The committee vote against this proviso was 15-11.

Would Bar Bank Post.

A second Wolcott proposal, defeated 14-12, would remove the secretary of commerce from his present, ex-officio position as a board member of the Export-Import bank. Informed congressmen have heard that the bank may be assigned the task of acting for the United States in the New Deal's proposed multi-billion dollar world monetary stabilization program.

Wolcott suggested the bank be administered by a new independent three-man board to be appointed by the President with senate concurrence.

The committee also voted down, 15-10, another amendment that would have required a new financial checkup on all government controled corporations thru period audits by the controler general's office. The George bill now requires audits of government owned corporations, but does not apply to those where it has only a controling interest.

Members of the bipartisan bloc opposed to Wallace said today they are preparing a double barrel attack on the George bill when it reaches the house floor.

Seek to Restrict Wallace.

Their first move will be to attempt to write in the Wolcott amendments. If the George bill thus amended becomes law, Wallace's powers will be strictly limited, they explained. On the other hand, they added, the restrictions might so displease the Presiden that he would veto the bill.

In the latter case, the senate would have to vote on Wallace's confirmation to the commerce post, including the huge lending powers and would probably reject his nomination, congressmen predicted. The confirmation vote is scheduled for March 1.

Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], who opposes Wallace's confirmation, is leading another move to have the house bury the George bill by recommitting it to the banking committee.

20 Million U. S. Cigarets on Their Way to Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 6 (AP).—A consignment of 20,000,000 American cigarets is en route to Sweden by safe conduct ship, the newspaper Aftonbladet said today. It said the order was placed many months ago. Last year Swedish smokers consumed 200,000,000 American cigarets.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Verne H. Douglas, 1112 Bower st., Elkhart, Ind.]

THE QUESTION.

What is the most foolish thing you have done for a girl?

WHERE ASKED.

De Paul university, 64 E. Lake st.

THE ANSWERS.

Norman Miller, 1631 S. Homan av.—I invested about three weeks of hard labor to buy a cut glass ring for a 12 year old siren 'I was dating 'way back then. She spread the story that we were engaged. It caused a scandal around the neighborhood that a couple of kids our age were engaged.

Ed Del Beccaro, 1151 N. Lorel av.—For two weeks I held down two jobs. I put in 11 hours a day and came home each night exhausted. I had an extra special date for a high school prom. In one night I spent all the money I earned on a girl I couldn't even trust to stand beside another fellow.

Philip Equi, 1815 S. 3d av., Maywood—To appreciate this you'd have to know what a mustache means to me. It's my vanity, my ego, my prestige. A girl asked me to shave it. I actually shaved it off! Then she wanted me to sell my car because she didn't like it! She was too demanding.

Glenn Hargrave, 301 S. George st., Mount Prospect—In my sophomore year in high school my parents gave me an expensive ring for Christmas. After a dance I was taking a girl home. She wangled the ring away before the evening was over. I saw her once afterward, but never saw the ring again.

Bob Shemrinsky, 4461 N. Harding av.—A friend and I dated two lovelies. We decided to go bowling. There were no pin boys. Being heroes, my friend and I volunteered to set pins for our dates. We worked while they had an enjoyable evening. We were a couple of chumps to do all that work.

Sylvan Gelderman, 7753 Essex av.—In high school algebra I went out of my way to sit in front of a pretty girl. I spent most of my time turning around to look at her. Many hours I helped her with her home work. I worked so hard for her I didn't have time to do my own work.

ALL-OUT FIGHT ON JOB DRAFT BEGUN BY AFL

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6 [Special].—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today inaugurated an intensive campaign to defeat the May "work or jail" bill, dispatching appeals to 108 AFL national and international unions, AFL state federations of labor, and 1,000 AFL city central bodies to "deluge the senate" with arguments against the bill.

A statement made public by AFL President William Green asserted the council has found that the general war production picture is excellent despite "poor planning and lack of foresight" by the military authorities. The situation calls for intelligent planning and effective coöperation, the council said, not "hysteria and confusing forced labor experiments."

The statement charged that overnight changes in production plans are responsible for such shortages as exist, asserting that schedules were doubled and tripled without advance warning and an attempt made at the same time to convince the public that lack of man power was at the root of production difficulties.

WILLIAMS CITES ABILITY TO GIVE U. S. 'GOOD LIFE'

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Aubrey Williams, the social worker who was head of the discredited and defunct national youth administration, told the senate agriculture committee today he's the right man to direct the half billion dollar rural electrification administration.

Like Henry Wallace, Williams pictured himself the man who can give underprivileged America "the good life."

Williams sighed when he recalled that an angry congress had killed the NYA after he had spent 662 million dollars in projects for boys and girls that some critics have called boondoggling, and exclaimed: "I never expect to have anything in my life again as thrilling and wonderful as NYA."

Denial After Denial.

Williams spent most of his five and one-half hours on the witness stand making denials—denials that he is a Communist, that he belongs to Communist organizations, and that he made many of the statements attributed to him.

Sometimes, like Wallace repudiating the quart of milk story, Williams blamed his troubles on facetious remarks. Sometimes, like Assistant Secretary of State Archibald MacLeish, the prim social worker insisted he didn't mean what he said the way it sounded.

Time after time he blamed the newspapers for misquoting him, and once he accused NYA of giving newspapers a ghost written speech that he never made.

Some of His Statements.

Here are examples of the statements he disclaimed, explained, or blamed upon somebody else:

In an address to a youth group: "I don't relish telling American youth they must start their careers in relief offices. I am ashamed of this country."

In a speech in North Carolina: "I'm not sure class warfare is not all right."

To the Workers' Alliance, an organization that he testified came under Communist domination: "We must stick together. We must keep our friends in power."

To the American Youth Congress, another organization he testified came under Communist control: "You must organize to get the power in the hands of the workers. The law be damned. Unemployment, like the radio and airplane, is here to stay. Millions now out of jobs will never find jobs again."

Fought Communists.

Williams insisted he had always fought Communists and denied reports of the Dies committee he is a member of the American Youth Congress, the Workers' Alliance, and the Washington Committee on Democratic Action, all of which Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.], who led the questioning today, said the attorney general has found to be subversive.

Williams has been nominated by President Roosevelt for the $10,000 a year job of administrator of the REA, which members of the committee said has vast political power thru its control over federal funds for the farmers' coöperative societies formed to bring electricity to the farm homes.

Bushfield, who began life on a homestead farm, struck at Williams for lack of experience on the farm, in private business, and in the field of electric power. A veteran from another farming state, Sen. Capper [R., Kas.], also complained of Williams' lack of farming and business experience, and Bushfield told Williams, a member of Sidney Hillman's political action committee: "Most of your time since you became an adult has been spent either in school or relief work."

WAUKEGAN AIMS LAW AT MINORS BUYING LIQUOR

Mayor Frank G. Wallin, Waukegan, yesterday ordered City Atty. Jack Bairstow to investigate the Illinois liquor laws to determine whether a city ordinance could be enacted to instigate court action against any minor who attempts to purchase packaged liquor or a drink in a tavern. Mayor Wallin said he had been informed such an ordinance existed in Rockford. The investigation, he said, was an outgrowth of a recent conviction in which a drug store manager was fined $200 and costs for selling liquor to a minor, and his liquor license revoked.

F. D. R.'s Private Projects Cost U. S. 600 Millions

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Congress has voted more than 600 million dollars to President Roosevelt since June, 1940, upon his suggestion that he needed large funds for confidential war and defense purposes.

Mystery has enveloped the expenditure of most of the amount, but the house appropriations committee today disclosed that Mr. Roosevelt in the last six months has devoted a portion of this secret war chest to:

A survey of consumers' incomes, $1,236,000; prevention of insect pests, $469,000; a monetary and financial conference, $12,000; expenses of special Presidential diplomats, $71,000; a population census in congested areas, $71,000; operation of certain motor truck lines, $5,000,000.

Seized Plants, 5 Million.

Other items on the list included: "Procurement of special reports and handling of special problems," $202,800; foreign economic administration, $61,898; expenses, office of contract settlement, $250,000; the war refugee board, $251,374; a census of manufactures, $290,000; rehabilitation of Aleut Indians, $200,000; relief and rehabilitation operations, $200,000; expenses, Anglo-American Caribbean commission, $45,000; a conference of allied ministers of education in London, $43,000; cultural relations with China, near east, and Africa, $1,300.000, and operation of seized plants by war department, Dec. 27, 1944, $5,000,000.

Lumped together in the report under the title "for confidential purposes" were items totaling $17,291,000.

The committee elicited these details, at an executive session, from the budget bureau which is under White House supervision. Frederick J. Lawton, administrative assistant, testified that on Jan. 15 there was about 60 millions left of the total of 648 millions given to Mr. Roosevelt since 1940.

Started with 100 Millions.

Lawton, under questioning, said no request for additional "blank check" appropriations was contemplated at the moment.

"If any request is made for an extension of the fund, it will probably come up in a later deficiency bill," he remarked.

Congress initially gave the President 100 millions in 1940 to spend in his own discretion, followed it up with another 300 millions in the war year of 1941. Successive appropriations followed, the last totaling 25 millions in October, 1942.

CITY'S TAX RATE FIGURED AT $4 BY CIVIC GROUP

Sutherland Puts It 10c Above 1943's.

Chicago's tax rate for 1944 [taxes to be collected this year] was estimated yesterday by Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic federation, at $4 on $100 of assessed valuation. This is 10 cents higher than the previous year's rate.

Sutherland's figures show that the total tax bill for the city will be $194,651,000. Last year the total was $188,249,000. That the increase in the rate was not larger was due, Sutherland said, to an increased assessment within the city of $39,383,000. The increase was on property assessed by County Assessor Clark. The boost met to that extent reductions of some 52 millions by the state revenue department, which assesses railroads and capital stock of utilities.

Increases Made by Assessor.

Clark made sharp increases in personal property valuation, restored a large part of the real estate cuts made in the 1943 rolls by the county board of tax appeals, and effected some boosts in other real estate taxes.

Last June, the federation estimated that the tax rate would be $4.13. It was assumed then that the assessments in the city would remain as they were last year, and that the total levies of the taxing bodies would be about 199 million dollars.

Abatements Cut 1944 Bill.

The taxing bodies, however, cut the total 1944 tax bill by about $4,700,000 by abatements already made or soon to be made. Legally, the tax bodies cannot spend more than their tax levies. If they do not spend all the levies they may abate, or lower, their demands for tax money.

Without the abatements, the federation reported, the rate would have approximated $4.10. Therefore, the lowering of the rate from the June estimate was caused: 3 cents by added assessment and 10 cents by abatements.

$350 ACCORDION TAKEN.

Burglars yesterday broke into the home of Charles Calzaretta of 621 N. Keeler av. and stole an accordion, valued at $350, an electric food mixer, and a combination radio-recorder.

WAR THE IMPOVERISHER.

In June it will be five years since the United States began to prepare for war, and 3½ years since Pearl Harbor. The cost of the war in the 3½ years has already amounted to a quarter of a trillion dollars—250 billions. This represents our expenditures for guns and ammunition, for airplanes and ships, for pay of soldiers and sailors and their clothing and food, and for lend-lease and war factories. All of this, barring the relatively few billions that may be recovered from the sale of war factories and surplus supplies, is gone. War which is competition in destruction is costly. The loser is not only the nation which takes the pounding but the one which administers it. It is still a question whether the cost of a bombing is not greater than the value of the property destroyed.

No one would want to stint in a war, whatever the cost. Those who have had charge of our army and navy have been instructed to ignore any consideration of money costs in determining upon campaigns, policies, methods, and projects. The amount of wealth that can be committed in a war is the sum total of every one's possessions.

The reason for mentioning this now is that too many seem to think that the war is enriching the people, and that the longer the war lasts the richer we are getting. Some high up in the formation of government policies are proceeding on the assumption that economic strength can grow in a period of international competition in annihilation and, ignoring the 250 billions of dollars and three-quarters of a million casualties the war has already cost, are planning a program of philanthropy on a planet-wide scale which even they would not have dreamed of as within our means before the war.

The fact is that we are getting poorer all the time, that we are destroying billions of our accumulated means every month, and that we shall be poorer for generations to come as a consequence of this destruction.

Those who are dreaming grandiose schemes for bestowing charity all around the globe have the statistics to prove our financial competence to carry thru any undertaking. There is the national income, now 140 billion dollars a year, twice what it was before the war. And there are the bank deposits of 138 billions, up 70 billions since 1939.

But this vast income and these great deposit accumulations are the result of the government's own manufacture of a large part of its own spending money. To meet expenditures of a little over 250 billion dollars since Pearl Harbor the government has increased taxes enormously. Some groups have been obliged to live on capital because of the larger government exactions, but taxes have brought in only a little over 100 billion dollars. The bulk has come from the free use of the presses to print bonds and currency.

The government began to get money for the war by turning over bonds to the banks, which added the proceeds of the bonds to the treasury's bank balance. In a short time the government had disbursed this money, mostly, as the national income figures show, in the form of wages. The government then raked back some of the cash disbursed as wages by selling bonds to the people, and at the same time sold more bonds to the banks, which manufactured some more deposits. Almost as fast as the treasury rakes in the money with bond issues it pays it out, expanding the volume all the time. A little more than 150 billion dollars has been obtained by this process since Pearl Harbor.

The treasury need not run out of cash so long as there are printing presses for turning out bonds. As the government rakes back with bonds and taxes only a portion of what is paid out, there are increasing amounts of spending money in the hands of the people, and steadily growing bank balances. The swollen supplies of spending money lead to price increases, which are followed by wage advances. With a smaller working force than in 1940, the national income is twice as large. Some of the unspent funds is held in the form of cash, and the amount of currency in the hands of the people is up to 25 billions from 7½ billions in 1939. Part of the unspent cash is deposited in banks, which accounts for the growing balances.

The possibility of expanding the debt and the currency is limited only by the capacity of the printing presses and the willingness of the banks to write up their deposit balances, and of the people to turn in their cash so that it can be paid out to them again. So far, the more the government pays out the bigger the national income, the bigger the deposits and, of course, the bigger the debt.

More money created in this way does not mean more wealth. While the government is paying out its billions of borrowed money, automobiles, electric iceboxes, and washing machines are wearing out. Our houses, schools, and office buildings are getting older, and many of them are not even being kept in good repair. Railroad cars, track, and machinery are being used up. Coal mines and ore deposits are being worked out. Equipment of every sort is deteriorating. We shall come out of the war with the physical capital of the country in a bad state of repair.

Of course, we have the bonds, which can be converted into cash, which can be used to buy automobiles, homes, and machinery which has worn out. That's why we bought the bonds. But the bonds have to be serviced and paid off. The bonds are an obligation of the government, which taxpayers or the bearers of the ultimate tax burden must pay off. The government is just an intermediary for collecting future taxes with which to liquidate the bonds. As the bondholders are for the most part also the taxpayers, the war bonds are both assets and liabilities to the individual.

What we have to understand is that the government borrows our money and spends it for something that is destroyed. War bonds evidence what has been lost. The existence of them does not increase the ability of the country to rebuild its worn out plants and dilapidated houses. The restoration of our real wealth will have to come from new effort and new savings, which will be made difficult because of war bills to be met after the war, such as for our obligations to the war dead and the wounded.

America's ability to do good all around the world is going to be limited by our poverty. Those who do not understand that may demand that the crazy printing press spending go on until there is a complete collapse. There will be those who will urge just that, just as after the last war there were those who urged that our misfortune was that we had won the war. If we had lost it, they said, we would have kept our factories busy all the time, and our man power fully employed to turn out the products required to pay a war indemnity to Germany.

FREEDOM MARCHES WESTWARD.

The Filipinos who welcomed Gen. MacArthur's troops to Manila were not a subject people accepting the return of former rulers. They were a free people, our allies, who by their own efforts have greatly aided the expulsion of a hated enemy from their homeland.

Perhaps the most important event of American foreign policy in the last decade—certainly the most satisfactory—was the grant of independence to the Philippines. Originally scheduled for 1946, the date was advanced in answer to the Japanese proclamation of a puppet state in 1942. Quite obviously our own proclamation of Philippine independence would have been in these circumstances a meaningless concession of something we did not possess, had not our record in the four decades after the pacification of the islands given it sincerity.

With the grant of independence we assumed the duty of expelling the Japanese and making the gift of freedom real. That the Filipinos believed our promise and were confident that we would not shirk the duty involved was attested by their resistance to the Japanese, carried on without interruption in some parts of the islands thru the three years of the occupation, and by the aid they rendered Gen. MacArthur's armies of liberation.

Elsewhere, in French, British, and Dutch colonial possessions, there has been no similar resistance by the native populations. They could see as clearly as did the Filipinos that the Japanese propaganda line of an orient for orientals meant merely an orient for the Japanese, but to them the change of masters was a matter of indifference. Some of these peoples have contributed recruits to the Japanese armies. Tho the subject races may have been disillusioned by the Japanese occupation, they have put up no guerrilla resistance, even after our army and navy had virtually cut off the Japanese garrisons from reenforcements and supplies.

By giving the Filipinos their independence, the same independence that our own forefathers fought for and won, we must have made a profound impression on the subjects and oppressed peoples of adjacent lands. It is improbable that the European armies sent to mop up the remnants of the Japs in these lands will find these people willing to resume their former political and economic bondage. Certainly American public opinion will not tolerate our own forces being used to reimpose such slavery.

The free government which began in a small way on the eastern coast of North America may span the Pacific by the end of 1946.

OUR ALL-AMERICAN ARMY.

In the course of his chronicle of a typical hard fighting infantry company, Capt. Maurice L. Britt, the army's most decorated soldier, mentioned the numerous racial strains among the Americans he led.

His own ancestors were Scots from the north of Ireland. In the ranks of company L were men whose parents or grandparents had been born in Poland, the Scandinavian countries, Russia, Germany, and Czechoslovakia, among others. There were three German Jews, refugees from Hitler, who fought all the harder because they would probably have faced Gestapo tortures instead of treatment as prisoners of war had they fallen into enemy hands.

This is not a new story, nor an unusual one. The roster of heroes in this war reflects the cosmopolitan origins of the American people—Foss, Bong, Vraciu, O'Hare, Gentile—to mention flyers alone. There is not a racial group or immigrant strain in America which has not sealed its allegiance with the blood and heroism of its sons.

This war should mark the final act in the drama of the melting pot. We have welcomed to our shores tens of millions of immigrants. They received much from America. Now they, and their children, have given as much to America. They have become partners in the firm.

It is inevitable that within a few years of the war's end the veterans will become the most powerful political force in the United States. Not since the Civil war has so large a proportion of our population been brothers in arms. The long duration of their experience—it will be longer even than that of the Civil war for many of them, before the fighting stops—will be a much tighter cement than that provided by the first World war.

Politically, the candidates' names can be expected to have less meaning, either as an asset or a liability, than at any time in our recent history. The veterans will think and vote as Americans.

There are pygmies in the Philippines, says Ripley, who smoke cigars with the lighted ends in their mouths. This will surprise everybody but Harold Ickes, whose tongue has always been asbestos.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The normal number of teeth in the adult dog is 16 24 32 42
2. Which one of these criminals usually has the highest I. Q. or intelligence quotient? Burglar Embezzler Hi-jacker Pickpocket
3. Which one of these aids to our human anatomy is popularly referred to as cheaters? Hearing aid Dentures Arch supports Glasses
4. A cork opera refers to which one of these types of entertainment? Rodeo Movie Grand Opera Minstrel show
5. A round in professional boxing is how long in minutes? One Two Three Five
6. This is a True-False problem in which you are to encircle the "T" in front of a statement if you consider it True, or the "F" if you deem it False. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.

T F [a] In cold weather it is well to put alcohol into the gas tank.
T F [b] Men are usually more intelligent than women.
T F [c] Women cry more easily than do men.
T F [d] Men are stronger than women only in proportion to their greater weight.
T F [e] Cotton is a slower crop to harvest than is corn.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

SEEING POMERANIA.

Let's see what we can remember about Pomerania as the Russian invasion threatens its principal city, Stettin. The Germans call it Pommern. A battleship of that name was in line at Jutland, the naval centerpiece of World War I. She was torpedoed by British destroyers in the action's last incident and blew up in the cold gray dawn. Her full crew, 844 officers and men, was lost.

* * *

Next we think of a fuzzy little dog weighing not more than seven pounds, whose purpose in life is to be cuddled by its doting mistress and to yap its foxlike head off during every wakeful moment. The Pomeranian, alias Pom, ranks high in popularity among toy breeds. It descends from the husky samoyed of the northern Baltic shores, by way of the spitz.

* * *

We also recall that Pomeranian grenadiers formed a corps d'élite in the old Prussian army. They were tall and beefy soldiers who wore lofty headgear and affected uniforms with white trimmings. A king of Prussia named Frederick William I., father of Frederick the Great, collected these oversized grenadiers as a hobby. A strain of Norse blood probably gave these soldiers their stature and stubbornness under fire, for the province was a Swedish domain for a long stretch of years. . . . Bismarck, we think, once said that the entire Balkan peninsula was not worth one Pomeranian grenadier.

* * *

In the middle ages the coast towns of Pomerania were members of the Hanseatic league, famous in the development of European commerce; hence they prospered and enjoyed a peaceful culture when the Brandenburgers were oafish pioneers. They developed a type of architecture marked by the Hanseatic gable.

* * *

Between the Pomeranian ports of Stettin and Stralsund is a town named Greifswald, noted for its university, especially in the field of medicine. It was founded in 1456, 353 years before the birth of the University of Berlin. Among German universities, Greifswald yields seniority only to Leipzig and Rostock.

WAKING FROM DEATH.

When, after lapse of years past reckoning,
I wake from that deep slumber known as death,
O, let me wake, not to the echoing
Of trumpets sounding loud, but to the breath
Of winds astir at dawn, and to the calling
Of joyous birds but newly roused from sleep.
And let me hear, brought from afar, the falling
Of waters down some cavern wild and steep.

And may mine eyes, unclosing to the morning,
See shining streams, and blue wings flashing bright;
And may I see green groves and fields adorning,
With beauty everywhere, that land of light.
O, be it mine to roam, with footsteps vagrant,
Green slope and sunlit valley, and partake
Deep of the breath of summer winds made fragrant
By scent of flowering field and blooming brake.

There would I wish to wander, hand in hand,
With dear ones, come to meet me from afar,
And find with them a home in that fair land—
That spacious land where many mansions are.
There tears would be forgot and griefs grow dim,
And there, with precious ones and kindly friends,
Would I abide content, secure in Him
Whose love embraces all, and never ends.

Running Down "O. K."

The earliest use of "O. K." [also spelled "okay" and "okeh"] in print was in 1842, according to the Dictionary of American English, whose researchers delved patiently into this problem. Mitford M. Mathews, assistant editor of the dictionary, recently had a telephone call from a graduate anthropology student at the University of Chicago, announcing an earlier discovery. He bet a nickel she was wrong, and hurried over to the library to check the source.

He lost the bet. The student, Julia E. Sabine, had found an authentic "okay" in a manuscript written by an Indian commissioner in 1808. It wasn't in print, but the editor forked over the nickel.

READING BETWEEN THE LINES.

I'm feeling fine and hope you are the same.
(This hole is wet and I am awfully cold!)
Does Sparks still bark when you mention my name?
(I know how you would worry if I told.)

Do you still bake those tangy apple pies?
(The sky is hemorrhaged with bombs and shrieks.)
My tent is shared by seven other guys
(I haven't changed my socks in weeks and weeks).

Don't worry, I can take it on the chin.
(Last night I cried myself to sleep again.)
With such swell pals as mine we can't help win!
(I hope my shredded heart is not in vain.)

Please keep your letters winging down my lane!
(They are the only thing that keeps me sane.)

R. E. D. writes: "I am a veteran, age 28, discharged after four years of active service in which I was wounded several times at Guadalcanal. I now receive a pension from the veterans' administration. The other day I received notice from my draft board requesting me to report for an examination or be declared delinquent. I thought that veterans who have done a bit on the fighting front were supposed to be free of future demands for service."

Generally speaking, men who have been released from military service on a disability discharge by reason of a service connected disability or injury, those who have been discharged after having completed 90 days or more of active service, or those who have not been released by reason of a termination of reserve, cadet, or officer training are to be retained in class 1-C unless their reclassification has been approved by the national director of selective service. Sometimes a board may get information indicating a man's release was effected under circumstances and conditions which were questionable. If such is the case, it has authority to call the registrant in for questioning, for examination, or for other purposes. If the board's "suspicions" are verified, it applies to the national director for permission to reclassify the veteran, and, if granted, he may be reinducted. Veterans discharged for disability whose disability is remedied also may be reclassified by the same method.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

The following article is one of several prepared in advance by Dr. Irving S. Cutter before the illness which resulted in his death Feb. 2.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"CUTTING FOR STONE"—AN ANCIENT DEVICE.

NATURE is funny despite the fact that it is uniformly kind. Let anything happen to a muscle, a bone, or even a vital organ and the trend is toward healing. The chief job of the physician is to assist.

But now and then something will go wrong with one of the fluids of the body. In consequence, mineral matter [stones] may be precipitated. A favorite site is the kidneys. Later a calculus may travel down the ureter and find its way into the bladder, where it may increase in bulk.

Apparently these stonelike deposits have bothered mankind for centuries. They have been found in Egyptian mummies and ancient Greek and Roman physicians devoted long chapters of their writings to these annoying boulders. During the middle ages, "cutting for stone" was the pastime pursued by a set of mountebanks who had learned how to open the bladder and extirpate gravel. Inasmuch as means of making an accurate diagnosis were not available, many a sufferer from any kind of abdominal pain was subjected to the procedure, whether he needed it or not. No doubt the "operator" had taken the precaution to provide himself with a sizable specimen for display, if the occasion demanded it.

How do these "rocks" form? Ordinarily, the urine is sufficiently fluid to carry its mineral matter in solution. On the other hand, if there is even a slight hindrance to the outflow, poor drainage may lead to the settling out of salts [calcium phosphate, etc.]. At first, the particles may be no larger than the point of a pin. If the condition persists, the fragments will grow in size.

There is a tendency to pass these formations and, frequently, one will wander down the ureter and cause excruciating agony. This is known as "renal colic" and morphine may be required for relief.

The principal causative agent responsible is probably infection within the pelvis of the kidney. If bacteria have reached this region they may set up enough inflammation to alter the character of the urine. For example, if the excretion is normally slightly acid, it may become somewhat alkaline or just enough so to fail to hold in solution certain chemicals. We must not forget other factors such as food that is overly rich in minerals. Furthermore, the drinking water may be unusually hard. In addition, as every physician knows, the repair of a fracture may concentrate a large amount of lime in the circulation. Certain endocrine glands likewise may be involved.

If "pebbles" have been discovered, the first thing to try is a dietary program which seeks to provide high vitamin, high acid menus. If pus is present, urinary antiseptics will be called for. Meanwhile, the patient is advised to drink distilled water. If these methods fail, surgery may be necessary. There is little risk in the hands of an expert. If there are symptoms of obstruction, delay is dangerous.

This disorder emphasizes anew the importance of a balanced food régime. Overeating is definitely a cause. As we would expect, fairly liberal amounts of fluid, chiefly water, are advised. The more dilute the urine, the more able will it be to retain its salts. Strangely enough, wine drinkers are somewhat more susceptible; those who employ malt liquor, less so.

FOOT HYGIENE.

O. F. writes: My feet bother me so much in this weather that I wonder if there is anything to do for comfort. Sometimes they burn, other times they are cold.

REPLY.

Our pedal extremities are hardworking structures, yet all too often we neglect them. Thru ill fitting shoes, we encourage the development of corns, calluses, and bunions. We allow fungi to flourish between the toes and about the nails. Until we learn how to take care of our feet we will continue to have trouble of various sorts. Simple home measures consist of soaking them in hot water once or twice a week for one-half hour. After drying, the skin may be massaged with cold cream or cocoa butter, for 15 to 20 minutes. After dusting with talcum powder, a pair of hose may be donned before retiring.

NOT SEASONAL.

R. E. W. writes: Do victims of tuberculosis improve more in cold weather than in hot?

REPLY.

This is a fallacious theory. Climate is only one factor in curing the great white plague.

MUMPS.

Mrs. W. writes: Is mumps contagious?

REPLY.

Yes, but less so than other childhood diseases such as whooping cough, chickenpox, etc.

Just to show you what the OPA has done to the national consciousness, we pass on the predicament of the housewife who picked up a small potted plant in a local chain store. "How much?" she asked. "It's frozen," the clerk replied. "Frozen!" shouted the housewife. "What will that man do next?" The clerk tossed her a disapproving stare. "I meant frosted," he said acidly.

Password.

The tendency of the average inarticulate American to grope for the proper word at the proper moment is particularly heightened in war time, William Strand, Tribune war correspondent home on leave from Europe, reports. Anywhere around the front lines the proper moment is that moment when the sentry halls you and demands the countersign. After the German Christmas breakthru, he recalled, when Nazis had parachuted into Belgium and were infiltrating behind the American lines, the sentry system was, by necessity, made considerably more involved. Every jeep, every soldier, was halted and questioned, each man being given a series of questions, each dealing with some purely American manifestation that presumably only an American would know. Thus, one dark night, as he and Wes Gallagher of the Associated Press raced across a plain, a sentry hailed them. "Name a good American singer, a man," the sentry demanded as one of a series of test questions. Mr. Strand's mind froze. His thoughts zigzagged in wild futility. A good man singer? A good man singer? Every one he could recall was a European, and he did not dare open his mouth. Finally he blurted out, "O, you know, the Voice, the Voice, what's his name? Sinatra!" The sentry stared at him. Then he doubled over in laughter. "Sinatra! Sinatra!" he bellowed in Rabelaisian glee. "This guy thinks Sinatra is a good singer!" However, he let him pass.

During this same period, Gen. Ernest N. Harmon of the 2d armored division, hero of Africa and Italy, was moving down toward the bulge. The sentry asked him and demanded the day's password. The general did not know it, not unusual, Mr. Strand says, in that the password was changed from day to day. However, he identified himself, as a private might, by showing his identification card and dog tag. He then asked the sentry what the password actually was. "I'm sorry, sir," the sentry said, "but I can't tell you." "You know who I am?" the general asked. "Yes sir, I certainly do," came the reply, "but I still can't tell you." The general then moved on. About 200 yards down the road a British sentry was doing the same thing. The general asked him the password. The Britisher told him.

Down around Naples Mr. Strand ran into this in reverse. With a colonel one dark night he approached an airport which was guarded by colored troops. As they neared the outskirts, a sentry stopped them and called, in mellow, dusky tones: "Who goes there? Friend or foe?" "Friend!" cried the colonel. "Well, advance, friend, and make yo' self known," came the reply. The colonel advanced alone into the darkness. Soon he returned, grinning from ear to ear. He had reached the sentry, he reported, and the sentry had grabbed him by the arm and whispered into his ear, "Say what's the password? I forgot it."

THE HIGH COST OF VISIONARIES.

El Dorado, Kas.—In your column of Feb. 2, E. K. of Evanston commends Henry Wallace because Henry has had a dream of universal prosperity. Dreaming is one thing common to all, and is a pleasant pastime but should not be indulged in at the risk or expense of others. Many of us remember that nearly a dozen years ago Henry had a dream which resulted in the killing of several million sows and little pigs: In these days of meat rationing how we wish these pigs had been allowed to become grandmothers to provide bacon, ham, and chops for us now.

We would call to the attention of E. K. and other trusting souls, the fact that the great majority of the well known New Deal "planners" are men who have either inherited or married the money they now possess, and that few of them have ever shown the slightest financial ability, but have become known in their own peculiar and misleading jargon as "liberals" because of their irresponsibility and willingness to spend other people's money. There is a vast difference between having our public affairs handled by men of vision and experience, or by those who are merely visionary.

Several weeks ago the news reports were that our busy chief executive and Henry had spent several hours together "discussing everything under the sun, with particular emphasis on the reforestation of Iran." Probably Henry was then figuring on using several billions of dollars from the RFC for this worthy object; to be followed with perhaps 10 billions for irrigating the Sahara with snow water piped down from the Arctic. The snow could be easily melted by the hot air put out by these New Deal "planners."

WORD FROM THEIR SON.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I want you to know of the joy we received in seeing the message from our son Robert on Luzon in last Saturday's TRIBUNE. The last letter we received from him was written from somewhere at sea after leaving New Guinea where he had been for the last year. Of course we suspected he was heading for Luzon, but the real anxiety centered around the question, "Did he land safely?" This was answered beyond any question in the message sent on by your correspondent. This delightful incident has also changed somewhat my ideas of human nature. We received phone calls not only from friends, but total strangers who wanted to be first to convey the good news in case we hadn't seen it. A lady living far on the south side told of not having any dear ones taking part in the war, but upon reading our son's sweet message to his mother knew the joy it brought to us, and that that made her happy.

MISSING SERVICE MAIL.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 31.—Referring to the letter by Mrs. Eugene Crisman on good results in delivering packages she sent to the Philippines and Oahu, her luck is far different from mine in trying to send one-half pound packages of cigarets, candy, and gum to a service man in England in the course of eight months. So far he has received but four of them. His wife sent him a camera more than a year ago and he never got it, tho he has been at the same address for more than two years. The packages were well wrapped, so some one has a camera and plenty of smokes and candy that did not cost him anything.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' COLLEGE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—I have just finished your editorial on the teacher shortage, and heartily commend it. I am a member of this profession, one of those holding a suburban position, barred from the city schools because I am not a graduate of the Chicago Teachers' college, altho I hold a B. E. degree from a state normal, have done my post-graduate work at an excellent university, and have a satisfactory scholastic and professional record.

I did attend the local institution. Perhaps I failed to receive a fair sample, but found that the instruction did not, in my opinion, measure up to that I received elsewhere, and so I did not continue.

In what way can an educational system tend more toward stagnation than to draw all its personnel from one biased source? The most enterprising school systems which I know make a point of variety of educational background and many have a rule against hiring teachers who received their elementary training in the local schools.

DEBILITATED BALL PLAYERS.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—In the sports section of THE TRIBUNE today I read the article, "Major Leaguers Decide to Operate This Year." However, the moguls did not vote a reduction in the price of admission. Why should the public pay the same prices as heretofore to watch many minor league players who have not major league experience? As to the players classified 4-F, they should have been inducted in the service long ago. When such players can knock balls over fences for home runs and run bases like rabbits, then their physical condition is not so impaired as to prevent them fighting in the service of our country.

CALL FOR PROBE ON COAL SHIPPED TO ARGENTINA

Home Needs Stressed by Legislators.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—An investigation of reports that Illinois coal is being shipped to Argentina and Brazil despite local shortages was asked in a resolution introduced in the state senate today by Senators Crisenberry [R., Murphysboro] and Miller [R., Hillsboro].

"With the existing coal shortage in this country the shipment, if there be shipment, of large amounts of coal to a foreign country is of such vital concern to the people that the matter should be investigated," the resolution said, calling for appointment of a special committee of five senators to conduct the inquiry.

In southern Illinois mining communities, the shortage of coal has been pronounced, especially in recent cold weather, said Crisenberry, while supplies have been even shorter in Chicago and other northern cities. Miller, who is a mine operator, asserted first attention should be given to domestic needs.

Summer in South America.

Protests against the shipment of Illinois coal to South America recently were made by T. E. Gorman, executive secretary of the Illinois fuel merchants' association. He asserted that fuel now going to South America, now enjoying summer weather, would heat 8,000 Illinois homes the rest of the winter.

The Crisenberry-Miller resolution was referred to the executive committee and Chairman Carpentier [R., East Moline] promised early consideration.

New legislation, sponsored by Director Howard Leonard of the state department of agriculture, would authorize adoption of a county area plan of eradicating Bang's disease in cattle. Rep. Kelsey [R., Barrington], chairman of the house committee on agriculture, said the bills were a first step toward suppression of bovine tuberculosis.

Great Loss from Disease.

Bang's disease, also known as contagious abortion, is causing great economic loss to live stock producers and is also a menace to human health in that it may lead to undulant fever.

Kelsey's bills would permit county boards to employ veterinarians to work on Bangs' disease eradication programs, with the state paying part of the salaries. After the war, Kelsey said, the slaughter of infected cattle might be ordered and state and federal appropriations would be needed to reimburse farmers.

Persons who advocate hatreds or acts of violence against any group would be liable for $500 fines and imprisonment for a year under a bill by Sen. Schwartz [D., Chicago].

New Measures Offered.

Other bills introduced:

Rep. Houcek [R., Cicero]—Provides independent status for township assessors in suburban Cook county. They now are deputies of the county assessor.

Rep. Rategan [D., Chicago] and Sen. Connors [D., Chicago]—Increases from $2,500 to $3,500 the maximum salary that can be paid deputy clerks and deputy bailiffs of the Chicago Municipal court.

Sen. Ryan [R., Chicago] appropriates $1,000,000 for the purchase of land by Chicago medical center commission and $100,000 for operating expenses.

Sen. Dowd [D., Chicago]—Requires all automobile drivers to have liability insurance. Another Dowd bill would require banks to publish lists of accounts that have been dormant for 10 years or more.

PROTEST TO CONGRESS.

Illinois coal now being shipped to South America is needed at home to forestall a possible fuel crisis, members of the Illinois Fuel Merchants association wired the Illinois delegation in congress yesterday.

T. E. Gorman, executive secretary of the association, said the state department urged continued shipment of southern Illinois coal because South American stock piles were running low.

"We disagree with the solid fuels administration that sizes of coal shipped from Illinois to South America are in ample supply," the telegram said. "While coal of poor quality is available, this coal is not."

Two States Seek Slow Time

Vote Michigan Change

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 6 [Special].—The Michigan house today voted to put the entire state on central war time, and it appeared certain that midnight of March 17 would be designated as the hour for the change in localities not already on the "slow" schedule.

The house of representatives took its action on a senate bill that amends a 1943 act by eliminating a "local option" provision under which many industrial centers, notably Detroit, had remained on eastern war time. The house vote was 68 to 28.

Legislative leaders admitted some doubt as to whether cities content with eastern war time would change their clocks despite the statutory order.

Iowa Petitions U.S.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 6 [Special].—The Iowa legislature was on record today as favoring return of the nation to standard time following adoption by the house of a resolution urging congress to take such action. The senate previously had passed the resolution drafted by Sen. Richard Leo [R., of Dysart].

Leo explained he felt that by returning the nation to standard time it would give the farmer additional hours in order to help produce food.

The house also adopted a resolution to appoint a committee to study the possibility of eliminating some 6,000 township justices of peace and constables as "excess baggage from Iowa government." The resolution was brought up by Rep. E. E. Poston [D. of Corydon].

PRICES GOING UP FOR 5 ITEMS IN OPA FOOD LIST

Increased retail prices for five fresh fruits and vegetables more than offset decreases for three in the weekly commodity price list of the OPA, effective in Chicago tomorrow. Increases include spinach, up 2 cents a pound to 13½ cents; iceberg lettuce, 1 and 2 cents a head higher at 10 and 13 cents; sweet potatoes, up 1 cent a pound to 21 cents; California-Arizona oranges and tangerines at 11 cents a pound, up 1 cent. Field grown cucumbers are reduced 6 cents a pound to 18 cents; fresh peas, 3 cents, to 17½ cents a pound, and sweet peppers are down 3 cents to 23 cents a pound.

BEATEN BY 3 IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT.

BARE SURPLUSES OF FOOD AS OPA VOIDED POINTS

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—As the office of price administration resumed rationing of major foods late last December, the surplus property board was arranging for the sale of millions of dollars worth of foodstuffs, it was learned today.

Among items for which American housewives would have had to turn over millions upon millions of red and blue food stamps were millions of pounds of lard, almost a half million pounds of cheese, and cases upon cases of canned goods requiring food points.

At the time housewives' red and blue stamps were invalidated because civilian supplies of major food were short as war demands increased, according to administration spokesmen, more than forty food items were offered for sale as surplus commodities.

Lard Largest Item.

The largest single item was one of 20,216,317 pounds of lard, according to the industrial advisory and research service, which gathers data for clients on surplus commodities listed by government agencies.

The lard, which was valued at 40,432,634 red stamps under the OPA order placing the fat back on the rationing list Dec. 31, was described as prime steam lard in storage tanks.

It was learned today that the government had planned early in December to sell the lard back to processors so that it could be put in cartons for overseas shipment. It was acknowledged under this plan the government would have sold at a loss on the original purchase price.

All Becomes Rancid.

While negotiations were under way the army stepped in and halted the sale thru the supply forces, headed by Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, on the ground that the lard was needed for the army. Later the army found that the lard was not needed.

Meantime, according to the surplus organization, the lard became rancid, so that it now cannot be used for food. It is offered for sale to soap manufacturers. It was said that the government will take a substantial loss on the sale.

Another item with a high red point rationing total is one of 450,000 pounds of cheddar cheese. Housewives would be called upon to pay 4,500,000 red points for this cheese. There is also 1,200 fifty gallon drums of lard oil, which would take a heavy total of red points.

Peas, Beans, Catsup.

There are hundreds of thousands of cases of peas, beans, and catsup, which require blue points at grocery counters thruout the nation. It was explained at the surplus headquarters that these are being offered for sale to make room for new packs of these items.

It was acknowledged that the food value of these has not diminished in any way. These will probably be purchased by packers and eventually find their way to food shelves, but meantime the government will probably suffer a loss, a spokesman said.

Other items of the list include over a hundred thousand cases of eggs in shell, barrels of dry skim milk, flour, dried beans, rice, concentrated fruit juices, and cans of vegetables not on the ration lists.

Other Items for Sale.

The list of items offered for sale recently follows:

119,748 cases peas, No. 2 cans [24 to case].
11,967 cases peas No. 10 cans [6 to case].
67,156 25 and 30 lb boxes seeded out seedless raisins.

700 extra winter strained lard oil, 50 gal. dr.
Orange and Lemon Juice.
7,582 24-14 oz. bottles tomato catsup.
8,231 cases tomato catsup [6 No. 10 cans to case].
5,317 cases [of 24 No. 2 cans] canned tomatoes.
997 cases canned tomatoes, 6-10 cans.
23,590 6-10 cans canned snap beans.
40,157 cases No. 2 canned snap beans [24 to case].
121,756 gals. concentrated orange juice, [packed 6 1 gal. cans to case].
24,850 gallons concentrated lemon juice in 50 gal. bbls.
22,116 cases canned tomatoes [24 No. 2 cans to case].
306,395 cases canned peas.
450,000 lbs Cheddar cheese.

25,851 cases canned tomatoes.
20,216,317 lbs. of prime steam lard.
110,000 cases shell eggs.

These lists are prepared regularly by private agencies, which advise clients, from federal offerings of surplus goods. Such groups are now offering booklets of 25 pages and more at regular intervals to the interested.

GREEN-KELLY SHADOW AVERTS ASSEMBLY ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—The meeting last week of Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green averted a showdown in the senate and house today on bills to remap legislative districts to give Cook county control of the general assembly. Two such bills were introduced in the senate.

The effect of the meeting was felt when Rep. Rategan [D., Chicago] backed away from his widely publicized threat to try to have the house oust Rep. Clabaugh [R., Champaign] as chairman of the committee on reapportionment.

In the senate, Richard J. Barr [R., Joliet], tried to kill two legislative reapportionment bills a moment after they were introduced. The motion to table the bills was defeated.

3 Manufacturing Firms Sued for Damages by OPA

Marion W. Isbell, area office of price administration director, yesterday filed in federal District court three treble damage suits seeking recovery for the government of alleged overcharges by manufacturing firms. Those named were Hamilton Glass company, 401 Elizabeth st.; Louis Ruttenberg, Merchandise Mart, lamp maker; and General Specialties company, 4208 Lake st., toy manufacturer. Each suit asks the court to determine the amount of the damages.

FIRE DISASTER IN SMIDT CAFE BLAMED ON GAS

Escaping gas that seeped into the Phil Smidt restaurant, 1170 Indianapolis blvd., Hammond, Ind., caused the explosion the night of Jan. 29 which killed three persons and injured 16 others, Chief Joseph Scherer of the Hammond fire department reported yesterday.

He said his investigation determined that the blast was not a boiler explosion. Moreover, there was no fault with the gas and oil fired heating equipment on the premises, the chief reported. He expressed belief that escaping gas outside the restaurant was trapped beneath the frozen ground and followed pipes leading into the building.

JURY HEARS TALE OF SPRING LOVE, AUTUMN MURDER

Princeton, Ill., Feb. 6 [Special].—Love in the springtime brought death in the autumn to Charles Neufcour, 32, farmhand, from a bullet fired by his erstwhile lady love, Andre Driessens, employer and brother-in-law of Neufcour, testified in Circuit court here today.

Driessens was the first witness called by the state as it opened the murder trial of Lucille Dhamer, 27, and her husband, Harry, 42, before Circuit Judge Lewis A. Zearing and a jury of 10 men and two women. The couple are jointly accused of murder as a result of the slaying of Neufcour, who was shot to death in a soybean patch last Oct. 14.

Tells of Three Witnesses.

He said Lucille, waving a snub nose .38 caliber revolver, forced him, his brother Camille, and Neufcour to line up in the bean patch and shot Neufcour thru the chest while the trio stood before her, powerless to stop her.

While the shooting took place, Dhamer shouted encouragement to his wife from the background and yelled, "Shoot him again" as the victim fell, Driessens said. The Dhamers' son Jimmy, 10, also was on hand carrying a loaded rifle.

The scene of the slaying was a farm near Sheffield, Ill., owned by Dhamer and rented last year by Driessens.

Defense Calls It Accident.

In an opening statement to the jury defense counsel said the Dhamers will contend the shooting took place accidentally.

Driessens gave a vivid description of the romance he said was carried on last spring between Neufcour and Lucille and was in the midst of this recital when court adjourned for the day.

Dhamer injured an ankle and was confined in a hospital at Peoria from Feb. 24 to March 19 last year, Driessens said. During this period, he related, Lucille came to the farm nearly every day and spent much of her time with Neufcour.

State's Atty. Joseph Peterson has told the jury he will try to prove that Dhamer learned of his wife's illicit romance with Neufcour and that the shooting was connected with "hatred and malice" arising from the affair.

HISTORY OF U. S. TO BE A 'MUST' AT UNIVERSITY

College Park, Md., Feb. 6 (AP).—Drastic changes in the University of Maryland curriculum, under which all students will be required to take courses in American history, American literature and American government and its philosophy, will go into effect next school year, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, announced tonight.

Dr. Byrd said that engineering, medical, and law students, as well as those in the liberal arts colleges, would be required to take the courses, so that the university could "turn out men and women graduates with a better understanding of the American way of life."

In addition, a comprehensive major in American studies will be offered. Dr. Byrd said this "apparently is unique" in the American educational system and has "attracted great interest in educational circles."

MARTIN LOCHNER DIES IN STREET; NOTED ORGANIST

Martin Lochner, widely known church organist and music director, died yesterday of a heart attack suffered while he was on his way to a church conference. Mr. Lochner, who resided at 1012 Bonnie Brae av., River Forest, was stricken while passing 110 W. Goethe st.

Mr. Lochner, brother of Louis P. Lochner, Associated Press European correspondent, was born in Springfield, Ill., 61 years ago and had been a resident of River Forest since 1913. For many years he was organist and choirmaster at Graceland Lutheran church in River Forest. He had been a teacher of music at Concordia college, in River Forest, for 32 years.

He was on his way to First St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church when he collapsed. Surviving are the widow, Elizabeth, and three sons.

NEBRASKA RITES ARE HELD FOR IRVING S. CUTTER

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 6 [Special].—Funeral services for Dr. Irving S. Cutter, health editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and dean emeritus of the Northwestern university school of medicine, were held in the First Congregational church here this afternoon.

At the request of Mrs. Cutter, the service was simple, and there was no sermon. Music included the Alpha Theta Chi fraternity song, which Dr. Cutter composed. More than 100 friends and associates of the days when Dr. Cutter was dean of the University of Nebraska college of medicine from 1913 to 1925 attended.

Pallbearers were members of Chi Phi [formerly the Alpha Theta Chi] fraternity and Phi Ro Sigma medical fraternity. Honorary pallbearers represented the University of Nebraska, the Red Cross, the Omaha community chest, and other organizations in which Dr. Cutter was interested. Burial was in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Dr. Cutter, who was 69, died Friday in Passavant Memorial hospital, Chicago, of which he was medical director.

L. E. MYERS' CREED WILL BE READ AT HIS FUNERAL

A message prepared for the occasion by Lewis E. Myers, 82, public utilities executive who died Monday night in his apartment in the Blackstone hotel, will be read at his funeral at 3 p. m. tomorrow in one of the hotel's parlors. The reader will be the Rev. John R. Heyworth, pastor of Unity Unitarian church.

The Rev. Mr. Heyworth said last night that Mr. Myers had begun working on the message after the death of a friend several years ago. It had been in Mr. Heyworth's keeping except for times when Mr. Myers asked to have it back for revision. It was in Mr. Myers' possession at the time of his death.

The minister said it was a statement of Mr. Myers' philosophy of life and of its maker's integrity in business relations. Mr. Myers was on the board of the Salvation Army for 25 years, and that organization will participate in the funeral rites.

Neighbors Sue to Restrain Thump of Plant Hammers

A suit seeking to restrain the Octigan Forge and Manufacturing company, 2428 Lowe av., from using drop hammers was filed in United States District court yesterday by 24 plaintiffs, all of whom live within a block of the company. The suit alleged that since the hammers were installed in June, 1943, chimneys shake, doors and windows rattle, and persons living in the neighborhood are unable to sleep. Some of the hammers, the suit alleged, weigh 3,400 pounds, and drop at one minute intervals with a force of 35,000 pounds.

Quebec Skiing Resort Lures Chicagoans to Winter Fun

BY JUDITH CASS.

SITUATED an easy 45 mile drive from Montreal, or over three miles of winding road by sleigh or skimobile from the railway station at Piedmont, Que., is Mont Gabriel, the luxurious log cabin lodge recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr. and three other couples. The friends are operating the lodge as a ski resort and have with them a number of Chicagoans, mostly former Lake Forest and Chicago neighbors of the Deweys, who moved to Far Hills, N. J., three or four years ago.

Mrs. Dewey's aunt, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., and Mrs. Glen Lloyd are enjoying a holiday there now, as are Mrs. Paine Fentress and the Solomon B. Smiths. Mrs. Pauling Donnelley plans to stay at Mont Gabriel until April, and also there for the season is Mrs. Kirk Lebrun, the former Margaret Kirk, who was reared in France, where she served as a nurse during the German occupation. Daughter of the late Milton Beckwith Kirk, American consul in Paris for many years, and niece of Walter R. Kirk of Chicago, she recently returned to this country.

Somewhere across the world where he is serving with the office of war information, Mr. Dewey is hearing of the fun his guests are having on Hush Hush hill, Scott's slip, Mapleleaf trail, and Little Obergurgl, as some of the ski trails and slopes are called. A newly installed T-bar lift can transport 400 guests an hour to the top of the mountain, while another new tow is in operation on one of the open slopes.

Hans Faulkner, who managed the Ober Gurgl Ski school in the Austrian Tyrol for 10 years, has charge of the Mont Gabriel Ski school. For rescuing Prof. Auguste Piccard from a chance landing in his stratosphere balloon on the large Ober-Gurgl glacier, Mr. Faulkner was decorated with the medal for service to the Austrian republic and was knighted by King Albert I. of Belgium.

Engagement News.

Romantic news concerning Mrs. Dewey's brother-in-law, Lt. Comdr. Garfield King, comes from Maui, T. H., where Sen. Harold Waterhouse Rice of Hawaii recently announced the engagement of his daughter, Mary, to Comdr. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King of State pkwy. The wedding will take place here in St. Chrysostom's church, probably in April. Miss Rice is expected in Chicago some time next month, depending on transportation, and Comdr. King, who is in the thick of things in the Pacific, his family believes, expects a leave in April.

Miss Rice, a member of one of the oldest resident families in the islands, attended the Punahou school in Hawaii and Sarah Lawrence college. Her mother, the late Mrs. Rice, was Charlotte Baldwin, daughter of the late Henry Perrine Baldwin, one of Hawaii's best known industrialists. Miss Rice's paternal grandparents were the late William Hyde Rice and Mary Waterhouse Rice of Kauai.

Comdr. King, whose first wife, the late Kay Sawyer Goodman, was Mrs. Dewey's sister, has a little daughter, Sheila, who has been living with his parents. Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. James M. Hopkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Carus of Sedgwick st. and La Salle, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Hegeler, to Lt. Acheson Adair Harden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harden of Englewood, N. J. Miss Carus, who is serving with the WAC, stationed at South Plains army air field in Texas, is a graduate of the Francis W. Parker school. She made her debut with her sister, Anne, in the summer of 1941 and spent three years at Bennington college. She is a great-granddaughter of Edward C. Hegeler, pioneer La Salle industrialist, and a granddaughter of the late Dr. Paul Carus, philosopher, author, and editor of the Open Court publications and the Monist, and of the late Frederick W. Proudfoot of Chicago. Her mother is the author of "Artemis, Fare Thee Well."

Lt. Harden, a graduate of St. Mark's academy and Williams college, is stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J. An engagement dinner for Miss Carus and Lt. Harden was given by her commanding officers Monday night in South Plains. The wedding will take place in May in New York.

News of Births.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin Stevenson [Virginia Doering] of Washington, D. C., became the parents of a son, their third child, yesterday in Washington. The baby, who has a little brother and sister, is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr. of Chicago. Mrs. Doering is in Washington with the Stevensons. Mrs. Stevenson's sisters, Mrs. Ambrogio Cassinerio and Mrs. Doering Hartog, are spending the winter in Chicago with their parents.

Col. and Mrs. Alfred McCormick's household in Washington, D. C., has a new member—their fourth son, who was born Jan. 22 in Doctor's hospital in New York and given two family names, Winthrop Laflin. Mrs. McCormick is the former Winifred Smith, only daughter of Walter Byron Smith, for whom the McCormicks' second son was named. The McCormicks' other boys are Alfred Jr. and Robert Cornelius.

On the Calendar.

At a meeting yesterday of the Oak Park and River Forest juniors of the Infant Welfare society, it was announced that the group's annual benefit will be a Mardi Gras the night of March 16 on the fourth floor of Marshall Field & Co. Mrs. George Hartford, chairman of the benefit, will give a tea for her committee at home tomorrow.

The Russian Trio will give another of its concerts at 11:30 a. m. today in the Arts club. Among those with reservations for the program and luncheon later are Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. E. John Senn, Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, Mrs. Russell D. Hobbs, Miss Carol Fox, Mrs. James Reimer, and Miss Helen Gurley.

Edward C. Carter, secretary general of the Institute of Pacific Relations, will lead a discussion on "Problems of the New Pacific" at a luncheon which the Chicago committee of the institute will give at 12:30 p. m. today in the Woodrow Wilson meeting room of the International Relations center, 84 E. Randolph st.

Mr. Carter also will address the last in a series of gatherings of the East and West association at 7:30 o'clock tonight at 32 W. Randolph st., speaking on "America's Role in the Far East."

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Perhaps one of those nights on the road, between the resounding success of "Over Twenty-One" at the Harris and its delayed return last night to the Studebaker, Ruth Gordon, playwright, stood off and took a good look at Ruth Gordon, actress, and said something severe like, "No, no, my girl, much too icky." Whatever happened, she squeezed out the treacle that had trickled into her performance, turning much of it into irritating goo, and last night she was again the crisp, crackling, astringent comedienne who knows what to do with a tartly amusing comedy.

For this reason, I found "Over Twenty-One" more amusing last night even than when I saw it in New York a year ago. True, like most plays too long away from their director, it has stretched at some of the seams of laughter, dangling long pauses that miss their mark of fun. But it is Miss Gordon's play first, last, and in the middle, and when she gives a brilliant performance, it reflects her wry moods like an obligingly antic mirror.

It's still surprisingly timely, this lively tale of a sophisticate who lives in a Florida bungalow court to help her overage husband thru officer's candidate school. The floor creaks, the refrigerator sticks when the colonel comes to call, the window flies open on the most unlikely persuasion, and trick doors trap nightgowned victims in the exterior darkness like an old Andy Gump strip ending with a plaintive, "O, Min!"

It's a comic strip seen thru the eyes of Ruth Gordon, who sees many of the same things hymned in verse and prose by Dorothy Parker. Now that the goo is gone it has some tender moments that skip the sickening. George Kaufman's direction still shows its inventive skill, and if Loring Smith is mugging a bit more than usual, he is still the main prop in Miss Gordon's support. Mr. Ashburn's colonel still looks as authentic as his service ribbons, but I never believed Millard Mitchell for a minute as the movie magnate. Not after Philip Loeb, who was perfection in the original cast.

Miss Ullmann Is Married to Army Officer

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee Ullmann of River Forest announce the marriage Jan. 26 of their daughter, Priscilla, to Lt. James White Mueller of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Mueller of Oak Park. The ceremony took place in the First Presbyterian church house in Oak Park. The bride attended Stanford university, and Lt. Mueller attended Yale university. He received his commission from the army officers' candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., and is stationed as an instructor at Camp Gordon, Ga. He and his bride are at home in Augusta, Ga.

Announcement is made of the marriage Jan. 27 of Miss Suzanne Irene Bates of Flint, Mich., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rufus Bates of Waukegan and grandniece of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. C. Hardy of Flint, to Lt. [j.g.] Darwin Whitcomb Heath of the naval reserve, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harley Willis Heath of Lawrenceville, N. J. The ceremony took place in Harkness Memorial chapel of the Connecticut College for Women, New London, Conn., at which the bride is a junior. She was graduated from Abbot academy, Andover, Mass. Lt. Heath, a graduate of the Lawrenceville school and Yale university, was graduated from the submarine school in New London in December and is stationed temporarily in Portsmouth, N. H., where he and his bride are at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe R. Rau of Glen Ellyn have announced the marriage Dec. 23 in the Statler hotel, Washington, D. C., of their daughter, Catherine, to Ensign Robert H. Mareneck of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mareneck of Lombard, Ill. The former Miss Rau attended Connecticut College for Women and is a senior at the University of Wisconsin. Ensign Mareneck, a graduate of Brown university, is stationed in Newport, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Van Deusen of N. Hermitage av. announce the marriage of his daughter, Lt. Helen Van Deusen of the army nurse corps, to Capt. James C. Gilliland of the army air forces, Jan. 20 in Honolulu, Hawaii. The bride has been serving in the South Pacific since before the start of the war and was stationed at Hickam field at the time of the first Japanese attack.

Women Set Steady Pace in Bond Sales, Director Declares

Women volunteers selling war bonds keep up their efforts between drives just as seriously as during the war loan campaigns, Miss Mabelle Blake, national director of the women's section of the war finance division of the treasury, said in Chicago yesterday.

Women were never more eager to help than right now, Miss Blake told Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, chairman of the women's Illinois division and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Cook county chairman. The women and Renslow P. Scherer, state chairman of the war finance committee, discussed plans for intensifying women's activities.

From observations so far, she said, the bonds for baby program is spreading so rapidly that every new born infant is likely to start life with a least one bond.

6,000 More WACs Are Requested for Service in Europe

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Lt. Col. Anna Walker Wilson, staff director for the WAC in Europe, said today she has asked the war department for 6,000 additional WACs for European service.

Col. Wilson, who has just returned to the United States, told a news conference it was necessary recently to take all available men from their jobs in the communications zone and assign them as infantry replacements. As a result the WACs have taken on additional clerical, stenographic, and communications work, she said.

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, WAC director, said a survey is being made to determine whether the 6,000 WACs can be spared from United States installations for duty abroad.

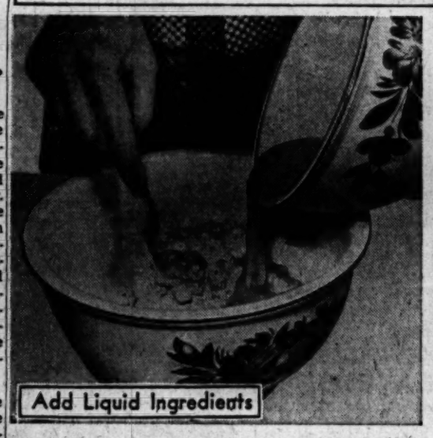
Mary Meade Shows How to Make Apple Slices



Add Liquid Ingredients

Fill with Apple Mixture

1 Sift 2 cups flour with ½ teaspoon salt; cut in ⅓ cup shortening. Mix well 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and 8 tablespoons cold water. Add gradually to dry ingredients. Stir until flour is moistened; divide into two parts.

2 Roll dough as thin as pie crust and line 7 by 12 inch pan. Fill with apple mixture made by sprinkling 8 sliced apples with mixture of ⅓ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, and ⅓ cup raisins.

Press Edges Together

Serve Cut Into Slices

3 Roll second portion of dough to fit top of the pan, and lay over the apples. Press edges of dough firmly together. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 45 minutes or until apples are tendes and crust is nicely browned.

4 When cool, drizzle a thin confectioners frosting over the top and cut into slices. This apple dessert is one which is delicious, but not too rich. For best results, use semi-tart apples. Make frosting with confectioners sugar and milk.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Rice Fritters.
[Serves six.]

½ cup uncooked rice
2 cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup chopped candied fruit
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
Bread crumbs or crushed breakfast cereal
Margarine
Powdered sugar

Cook rice in milk in a double boiler for about 30 minutes or until tender. Stir in the sugar and egg mixed together. Remove from stove and add fruit, being careful not to mash the rice grains. Turn into a flat pan about 6 by 10 inches which has been greased and lined with wax paper. Store in refrigerator overnight. Cut into strips 1½ inches wide and 3 inches long. Dip in egg yolk, then roll in bread crumbs. Brown lightly in margarine. Drain. Dust with powdered sugar and serve hot. This may be served as a dessert or as a sweet fritter with a main course.

Uninsky Touch Gives Piano Subtle Poetry

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Alexander Uninsky, a pianist whose exploits constantly gain in public favor, came to Orchestra hall last night to give the fourth recital of the Musical Arts piano series.

Mr. Uninsky is a pianist who improves with acquaintance, possibly because after several hearings one knows what may be expected and what may not. Thus, having come to the conclusion that he is essentially a miniaturist, one does not wait in vain for apocalyptic pronouncements or for earth shaking climaxes. Rather, there is the quiet enjoyment of the deftly turned phrase and the subtle nuance.

The keynote of Uninsky's style was perfectly set forth in the three unfamiliar sonatas of Scarlatti which opened his program. He sensed, far more than most pianists, who are usually content with surface embellishments, the depth of mood and miraculously subtle craftsmanship which made Scarlatti, as it were, the Brahms of the early classicists. They emerged from his fingers as music in its purest form, softly shimmering in tone, meticulously clear in execution. Particularly treasurable was the third, in which the Italian composer seemed to pay the tribute of imitation to his great rival, the composer of the "Messiah."

Busoni's transcription of Bach's Organ Prelude and Fugue in D major also had the merits of firm intellectual grasp and remarkable clarity, tho it failed to reach the thundering climax that post-Horowitz audiences have come to expect in these works—in part because of the pianist's disinclination to employ the damper pedal for its full value as a builder of resonance.

Schumann's "Carnaval," like the rest of the program, seldom lacked interest. Its most ingratiating moments were again those which were intimate and poetic, as in the "Chopin," the "Aveu," and various waltz movements; and while one admired the pianist's flying wrists in the "Paganini" section, the work as a whole missed the ebb and flow of the great romantic tradition.

Much of the same objections might be taken to Chopin's Ballade in F minor, which for all Uninsky's exquisite phrasing and limpid tone, did not add up to a realization of the drama and revolt of the piece. Two mazurkas which followed stressed the lyrical over the rhythmical elements in a manner which probably amounted to a matter of taste, and three Etudes—which was as far as this reviewer could remain with the program—were light and glistening, tho hardly of dazzling virtuosity.

Veteran Attorneys Oppose Adoption Law Amendments

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING.

Charging that social workers are "perfectionists," several prominent Chicagoans have gone on record as opposing proposed amendments to the Illinois adoption law which would make it compulsory for every adoption case to be investigated by a professional social worker or a member of the department of public welfare.

Ralph E. Batten, attorney, who has had 33 years' experience with adoption proceedings and handled more than 11,000 cases, said:

"Take a hundred of my cases at random, and a hundred of theirs [those investigated by social workers]. I'll put my babies up against theirs any time, and I challenge any social worker to prove that I've given them to unfit parents."

He emphasized that it is the moral and legal responsibility of any one handling adoption cases to ascertain to the best of his ability that the child is going to a good home and that the baby's background has been investigated.

"But nobody can ever be certain," he added. "Many times an unmarried mother won't tell the truth, and they can lie to the social worker investigators as easily as to any one else."

The chances of couples adopting a child for "ulterior motives," he said, are extremely slim.

In reply to the charge that children have been adopted by gangsters and prostitutes, Mr. Batten asked how many persons in such "professions" would want to be burdened with a child.

"If it were true," he added, "what is to prevent the prostitute from faking a respectable front when the investigator comes around?"

The adoption law, if amended, would require the witnessing of all consents to adoption and a thoro investigation of the child's natural and adoptive parents by a member of the state department of public welfare or a licensed child welfare agency. It also would require a six month probationary period in which the representative of the social agency would determine whether the adoptive parents and the child are "suited to each other." All reports would be written and would become a part of the court record of the adoption proceeding.

Mr. Batten condemned the six month probationary period, saying that if the foster parents should die in this period, the child would not have his legal inheritance because the adoption decree had not become final.

As for using the six month period for supervision to determine the fitness of the child for the home and vice versa, he asked:

"Who is to determine the fitness of a woman to care for a child? The young woman with a college degree in sociology who has had a lot of theory but no babies?"

John C. Slade, prominent Chicago attorney since 1908, who has made a special study of the adoption act and various proposals for its amendment over a period of many years, said:

"It seems to me this is a question of the social workers wanting to substitute their judgment for that of the courts and the judges. Social workers are perfectionists. They have a notion that all children and parents should be 'suited to each other,' which is not always the case even between natural parents and their own children.

"Many social workers look upon adoption as a last resort; they would rather keep children in institutions or temporary foster homes, as wards of the agency or the state."

[In 1944 the Catholic Home Finding society placed 311 children for adoption and cared for 5,000 dependent children who were "not adoptable." The Illinois Children's Home and Aid society placed 135 for adoption, had 1,340 as wards; the Chicago Orphan asylum placed 25 out of 300, and the Jewish Children's bureau placed 12 out of 600. The Angel Guardian orphanage has

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Girl Most Likely to Succeed.

A State st. store recently put on a playlet for its employes in which one of the characters spouted some good old cracker barrel philosophy.

"Bein' nice to folks is about the most important thing to sellin' in a store," he said. "Mind you, I ain't sayin' there's anything wrong with bein' efficient. But ef you cain't be efficient and nice, too . . . be nice."

"It don't take brains to be unpleasant. It takes brains to figure far enough ahead to see you'll feel better in the long run by bein' kind. You gotta live with folks . . . an' doin' business with 'em ain't no excuse for fergittin' it."

Efficiency is important. But the white collar girl, dealing with customers—and shortages of goods and tempers—who can keep her own sense of balance and go right along "bein' nice to folks" is the one worthy to be voted "most likely to succeed" in the post-war world.

Warning W. C. G's.

The Law Bulletin reports that men get a break in England. A law enacted in 1770 and still on the books provides that a marriage shall be considered null and void if the man was "influenced or betrayed" into it by such wiles as the use of scents, paint, cosmetic waxes, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stays, high heeled shoes, or bolstered hips.

Just thought the W. C. G.'s ought to know. DEE.

Tempus Semper Fidele.

Within my mind, your lovely face
So full of life and timely grace,
Remains a gentle, constant wooing
To spur me on and keep me doing
Each simple task. Your slender hands
Ensnare me with the hour's demands.

In years of peace or war's duress
You long have proved your faithfulness;
At home, or on some distant sea,
I'll always need you near to me.
How pleased I am that you are mine!
A watch of beauty that keeps time.

Just Too, Too Much!

Wouldn't any secretary be bewildered by this excerpt from a letter dictated by a certain executive?

"P. S. The correction you made on the fourth of the 5 to 8 second announcements seems a little banal. Aren't you, too, a little tired of 'You, too. . . . ?' We are . . . too."

CONFUSED SECRETARY.

For the Other Fellow.

Why do men have to bulge over onto the woman's half of the seat on a suburban train? Why can't they fold their newspapers in neat sections so their seatmates won't have to duck each time they turn a page? And why do they plant their feet so there is no place to put yours?

Maybe a paragraph might call it to their attention, tho I suppose each one would think it was meant for the other fellow.

'Private Investigator Maclain' . . . . . By Baynard Kendrick

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

INSTALMENT XXVII.

UNCONSCIOUS.

The captain started the record and sat down. When "The Rubaiyat" was finished he played a 10 record set of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

Lucia was astonished to find it was half-past eleven when the last of Whitman's sonorous stanzas died away. She got up and said regretfully, "I'd like to sit here all night long, but I really must be getting home."

The captain escorted her to the door, and came back in to stand in front of the machine after she had gone.

The house telephone rang to announce a visitor. Maclain said, "Send him up," and went back to the talking book machine to replay a favorite record.

By the time it had finished, the double chime in the ante-room announced some one at the penthouse door. He stopped the machine and went to let Davis in.

"Hello, captain. I'm sorry to bust in on you this late." The inspector pushed by and crossed the office to pour himself a long straight Scotch at the open bar.

"Yes, it is late, Davis," he said after a time. "What's wrong?"

"Maybe I am. What do you know about this Singleton killing that you're not telling?"

He sat on the arm of a chair and tugged at his clipped mustache, but his hard gray eyes kept looking around the office, stopping on everything except Duncan Maclain.

"What do you know about the Singleton killing that you're not telling, Davis? There's something in your voice tonight that I've never heard there before."

"Maclain, there's more to this thing than I thought." The inspector bounced up and started to pace the floor, then twisted around suddenly in front of Maclain and seized his arm. "Did you send Sybella Ford up to search that girl's apartment?"

"No." The captain's mouth was a thin white line.

"Well, somebody got her," said Davis. "She's unconscious in the East River hospital with a fractured skull. A woman in the downstairs apartment heard her fall."

The captain said, "Yes?" and crossed the room to open the terrace door and step out into the night. When he came back in, his hand was twisted tight in three folds of Dreist's heavy chain.

The inspector drew back before the police dog's unfriendly glare and asked, "What are you going to do with that murderous devil?"

"I'm going to kill somebody with him," said Duncan Maclain. "Come on, let's go."

The big police Cadillac streaked across 72d st. and hooted its siren at an adverse red light as it crossed the juncture of Amsterdam av. and Broadway.

Dreist sat on the seat at the captain's right, staring out of the window with an air of unconcern.

Davis lit a cigaret and looked across the captain at the dog's long, punishing jaw. "Isn't it rather dangerous to take Dreist around to a hospital?" he inquired.

"I don't remember mentioning anything about going to a hospital, said Maclain.

"No?" The inspector leaned forward and spoke to the driver. "Pull up to the curb a minute, Alec. We're on the wrong run." He turned back to Maclain. "I thought you'd want to see Sybella."

"You said she was unconscious." Davis murmured: "Umm."

"I presume you have a man with her."

"Archer's there."

"Then of what use would I be?" asked Maclain. "Tell your driver to head for the Singleton place uptown."

Streets that were dark forever slid by, marked only by the change of the motor's sound and the siren's occasional moan. Davis, who was wiser than most men, kept his steel trap mouth shut tight and let the captain alone.

It was hot and dark and humid. Dreist showed his sharp white teeth and began to pant. Then he shivered slightly and whimpered at the icy touch of his master's hand.

Streets that were dark forever.

Once Sybella had asked him, "Are you happy in your marriage?"

"I've never been married, Sybella."

"You're married to your dog. How can a man so brilliant be so stupid? You pride yourself that you can see better than a man with eyes, yet you refuse to look at life every day. You, the infallible detective, the man who can be a burden to some woman who might think it was heaven to have such a burden."

"I'm an infallible fool," the captain said so loudly that Dreist started.

Davis flicked his cigaret out of the window. "She'll come out of it all right, Captain."

"One way or another," said Duncan Maclain, "I've developed myself into a monstrously clever fellow. My brain's as fertile as a pomegranate. My heart's as cold as Troy Singleton in morgue vault 22. I do jigsaw puzzles and hook together pieces of wood that I can't even see. It makes a picture of death, Davis. I'm blind Justice, the messenger of God. Stick around with me long enough and I'll get you, too."

"O, shut up, for the love of God," said Davis. "You're loosening a screw. We're nearly to the apartment. What are you going to do?"

"Lock the stable after the horse is gone," said Duncan Maclain.

A radio car parked outside had attracted a dozen curious people.

The inspector told a uniformed officer, "Move this bunch of gawkers along."

The helpful old lady who had talked to Sybella met them in the downstairs hall and grew twittery at the sight of Dreist and Maclain. She kept saying over and over, "That poor young woman. Just imagine! Is there anything I can do?"

"You can go to sleep and get some rest," the inspector said, not unkindly.

He took the captain's arm and went upstairs beside him, following the tow of Dreist's taut chain.

Another uniformed man was waiting in the hall.

The inspector said, "You're relieved. There's nothing more here to hang around for."

The captain stood to one side clutching Dreist, then followed Davis in. In the sitting room he took off the dog's chain and gave a quiet order in German.

Dreist sat on his haunches, immobile, and Davis inquired again of the captain, "Now that you're here, what are you going to do??"

"Give me a picture of the layout," said Duncan Maclain, and started a tour of the room, listening to the inspector's succinct descriptions.

Child Behavior Trouble Often Parents' Fault

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The old adage about onlookers having the best of the game often holds true where parents and their management of the children are concerned. And it takes courage, as well as tact, to convey to a father or mother that, from your viewpoint, the behavior that worries them in their son or daughter is caused more by the parent than the child.

The following letter will better explain my meaning:

"My sister and brother-in-law love their little son. They give him as many material things as they possibly can, and they actually spoil him to a certain extent. All of which is quite natural. The thing that upset me was the fact that they didn't realize that they were to blame for his nervousness, his outbursts of temper, and his contrariness," writes a loving aunt.

"Allen is a merry, lovable, and usually amenable small boy of 5, and he gets along well in kindergarten. He apparently loses his faults in school, but at home it's another story.

"So I made up my mind to get to the bottom of it all. I found that at home there was too much correction, too much attention given to trivial faults, and that the little fellow never knew whether to expect his actions to be disregarded entirely or heavy handedly condemned. When he told about something that happened in school his father or mother was always interrupting with questions or comments—most of them in a belittling or facetious vein—and then they wondered at his reactions.

"It took me quite a while to get up courage to tell them what I thought caused Allen's behavior difficulties; at first they resented my suggestion that the blame lay with them. I am beginning now to notice a change in their attitude and their methods, and Allen is responding. . . . I am so glad, for his sake."

If parents would look inward first when dealing with their children's behavior problems, instead of taking it for granted that the fault must be the child's, it would save many situations that cause friction and unfairness. I mean by this that a little child needs to be sure of his parents' love, of their understanding, and of their faith in him. The lack, or the apparent lack, of any one of these three essentials may cause physical, mental, and emotional reactions far-reaching in scope.

It takes time and much thought to bring up our children to their best advantage, so it behooves us to watch our step in all things pertaining to them: To be slow to blame and quick to praise, to treat them with respect as "people," and to do nothing to confuse or confound them.

Jumper Dress

With the skirt section front-buttoned, and the bodice part slashed to the waistline to reveal the handsome striped blouse, this jumper dress is the kind which has social ways as well as being ideal for the office or the classroom. Crepes and woolens make up equally well in the skirt, while the blouse may be of crepe or of cotton fabrics. Style No 2517 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires, for jumper, 1¾ yards of 54 inch fabric; 2 yards of 39 inch material for blouse.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Smart Orange Is a Surprise Spring Color

BY REA SEEGER.

Fabric showings, displayed to tempt spring wardrobe planners, feature colors and unusual combinations of colors that will make the most hesitant dressmaker hasten into a pre-spring binge. Woolens for the first spring coats and suits come in a fascinating range of pastel and unusual bright colors.

Various sized black and white and blue and white checks also are shown. The brown and white checks run the other colors a race for popularity as as basic choice for the first street suit and for the long or short coats.

Stunning hound's tooth checks come in a grand variety of color and size. There is a new orange gabardine, for example. This color is seen in a coating and in a thin sheer for a tailored or street dress. It is a true orange shade and is the season's newest surprise color. It is suitable as a contrast color for navy blue, deep purple, all shades of gray, black, brown, cypress, and moss green. The effect is team work of extraordinary snap and originality. The gabardine tailors with flawless precision, as does the sheer for dresses. This orange is one of the smartest colors of the spring collections.

Also plentiful are the soft neutrals in off-white and the new trick shades of platinum. Both dress weights and the heavier coat fabrics in suede-like textures of soft fleeces look like a million when made into snappy coats, fitted or straight and loose. There also is a slick supply of purple shades, all kinds of yarn dyed grays, a super collection of gabardines, and enough plaids to please all shoppers. Fine woolens in thin challis or equally thin jersey, in effective monotones or in high shades, and all the bonbon pastels make irresistible showings for shoppers busy with plans for an individual spring wardrobe.

La Salle St. Women to Hear U. of C. Aid

Miss Hortense Friedman, assistant treasurer of the University of Chicago, will address a luncheon meeting of the La Salle Street Women at 12:25 p. m. today in the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle st. Her subject will be "Endowment Investment Thru Thick and Thin."

Attorneys Hit Adoption Act Amendments

670 children who are "not adoptable." Thousands of children can not be placed for adoption because parents or relatives will not give their consent; many others have physical defects.]

Mr. Slade asserted that if the new adoption law goes thru, it will reduce even further the total number of adoptions.

"If we are going to change our social views and decide that adoption is not a good thing in our society, that is entirely another matter," he added.

The principle underlying the present Illinois adoption law, he said, is that legal adoption of dependent or orphan children is for the best interests of society and for the benefit of the child in that it "provides a method whereby children who otherwise would be the object of public charity become the legal children and heirs of adopting parents who are able to give them suitable maintenance and education and who assume a duty to do so."

"It should never be forgotten," Mr. Slade said, "that the adoption act is specially designed and adapted to a single purpose—to provide the simplest and surest legal means, consistent with constitutional requirements of due process, to enable the adoption of a child. The act has accordingly encouraged adoptions and has thereby promoted the welfare of orphans and dependent children, and consequently the true public interest.

"Taken as a whole, the proposed amendments are in direct conflict with the purpose and spirit of the adoption act.

"They also are based on several erroneous assumptions, among which are:

"1. That duly elected judges are not competent to decide on the fitness of adoptive parents.

"2. That professional social workers are the only persons qualified to select the children who should be adopted by particular parents and to select the particular parents who ought to adopt them."

Concerning the witnessing of consents, Mr. Slade declared:

"No representative of the state welfare department or of a child welfare agency has any power, as such representative, to administer oaths or otherwise to lend sanctity to documents to be filed in court. Unlike a notary public, any such representative could grant or refuse such a request as he or she pleased. It would be intolerable to subject the rights of citizens to the mere whim and caprice of a total stranger to the proceeding."

One of the most dangerous features of the amendments, Mr. Slade said, is the requirement that the written reports of the investigations be made a part of the records of all adoption proceedings.

"It would be a vicious thing," he said, "to attach to the child a permanent record of the details connected with his birth and background. Nothing could provide a more prolific storehouse of ammunition for future troublemakers and busybodies than the contents of such reports."

As to a "black market in babies," Mr. Slade explained:

"None of the proposed amendments that I have seen defines what is meant by the term 'black market' nor even refers to that subject in any way. The proposed limitations and restrictions on legal adoptions are intended simply to give the social workers power over all adoptions."

The Rev. Vincent Cooke, speaking for the Catholic Charities of the archdiocese of Chicago, said it is the policy of the Catholic agencies not to take stands on proposed legislation, either for or against. He did, however, ask one simple question:

"Do you believe you can eliminate all the world's evils merely by passing more laws against them?"

Mrs. William B. Walrath of The Cradle society, commented:

"We passed a law once to make people stop drinking. But did they?"

Judge Edmund Jarecki, who handles most of the adoption cases in Cook county, said:

"If there were anything I thought was underhanded in adoption cases, I would put a stop to it immediately. I recall no specific instances that would suggest there is an unethical traffic in babies."

[This is the third of a series of articles on this subject. Another will follow at an early date.]

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 6.—Jimmy Cagney's next will be "Bugles in the Afternoon" by Ernest Haycox. The time of the story is 1870, with practically the same background as Custer's last stand, only this has more love. . . . Jimmy and his brother, Bill Cagney, would give a great deal if they could get Bob Cummings to do "The Stray Lamb" for them. . . . Even tho "They Were Expendable" has navy blessings, the navy wouldn't lend Lt. Robert Taylor, so Comdr. John Ford has cast John Wayne in the role Bob was wanted for. . . . Warners finally has found some one to play in "The Miracle." She's Eleanor Parker. . . . Just as Ida Lupino was about to go into "The Two Mrs. Carrolls," she ups and signs to do a picture with Hunt Stromberg. . . . If Eric Johnston becomes president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors' association, I think you'll find that Will Hays will be chairman of the board. . . . Walter Wanger's deal with Metro wasn't as producer. It was much more important. And after thinking it over from every angle, and even tho he was offered a great hunk of dough, Walter turned it down. He's to be congratulated. He's never had ulcers and doesn't want them.

A Mother to Guide Him.

When Edgar Bergen opens with Ray Noble in the Wedgewood room of the Waldorf at the end of March, Charlie McCarthy will have a mother. Frances Westerman will be Mrs. Edgar Bergen by then. . . . Ray Bourbon has signed a five year contract with Mae West. She aims to star him in a play which will open in San Francisco in August. Ray wires, "I'm floored and happy, but fortunately not speechless." . . . Jane Lewis is being tested at RKO. She looks a bit like Margaret Sullavan and has millions. . . . Lenore Coffee is writing "Cluny Brown" for Ernest Lubitsch. . . . John McNulty of the New Yorker is preparing Stephen Vincent Benet's "O'Halloran's Luck" for the movies. . . . Anita Colby [The Face] is seeing a great deal of George Abbott. Wonder if he's thinking of doing a play for her? Could be?

This and That in Hollywood.

Alexander Pope, who played Goering in "Hitler's Children," will play him again in "Paris Underground." . . . Mary Boland only stayed with us 10 days, and is already on her way back to New York and the Waldorf. . . . Lt. Wayne Morris, accompanied by Mrs. Morris, is in New York. . . . Twentieth Century is testing Juanita Roberts, the gal who takes photographs at Ciro's. . . . John Brahm, who has two pictures opening in New York—"Hangover Square" and "Guest in the House"—is set to direct "Victor Hugo" which Lamarr Trotti produces. . . . The Theater Guild is paging Eugene Loring to stage the dances in the musical version of "Peer Gynt." Loring is tied up at Metro but may get permission to do this job.

A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother.

Joan Blondell's young son Norman is a delivery boy for Schwab's drug store. Norman was in bed because of a bad cold, his temperature wouldn't go down, and he was afraid he'd lose his job, so Joan told him if he'd forget it, she'd make the deliveries herself. Joan did. . . . Sally Wright's little daughter is down with a bad case of poison oak. Sally was afraid it was measles. She's never had 'em. . . . The Arthur Lyons paid $125,000 for the house that fun built. 'Twas built by the Christy brothers as a present for their mother. Then actor Richard Barthelmess bought it, rented it to Cole Porter, who wrote many of his hit tunes there. After that it went to Ben Bogeaus, and now to the actors' agent, who only gets 10 per cent, but he's saved enough out of that to pay $125,000 for the place that's changed hands so many times. . . . Could Mary Lewis, who's being seen constantly with Charlie Foy, be the opera star?

Leaders to Discuss Plans for Girl Scout Financial Campaign

Plans for the 1945 Girl Scout finance campaign will be discussed by H. C. Laycock Jr., finance chairman of the Chicago Girl Scout council, his advisory committee, and district and local committee chairmen at a noon meeting Friday in the Chicago club. A goal of $40,000 has been set for the city-wide campaign, Feb. 12-March 12. Members of the advisory committee include Philip D. Armour, Thomas B. Freeman, Nathaniel Leverone, Wayne McMillen, Daniel Peterkin Jr., Frank C. Rathje, William M. Spencer, Wallace J. Stebbins, Alfred W. Stern, and Silas H. Strawn. The 1945 budget is based on a membership of 45,000 girls. Funds derived thru the campaign will be used in the extended program of training leaders, as well as for increasing camp facilities in the Chicago area.

Mrs. Dan W., Chicago—Before "patching" a stained or soiled area on a varnished floor, I first remove the stain or soil with sandpaper which has been dipped in turpentine.

Grace W., Springfield, Ill.—To mend a broken clay flowerpot, I make a good adhesive paste of fine brick dust and regular household cement.

Fern W., Chicago—Electrician's insulation tape comes in handy when the wooden handle of a knife or cooking fork splits. I just wrap the tap around the split handle, and the utensil remains in service indefinitely.

Realistic Movie Tells Epic Story of Burma War

"OBJECTIVE, BURMA."

Produced by Warner Brothers, directed by Raoul Walsh, featuring Errol Flynn, William Prince, James Brown, George Tobias, Henry Hull, Warner Anderson, John Alvin, Stephen Richards, and Dick Erdman, and presented at the Roosevelt.

By Mae Tinée.

Just as the first landing of American troops in the Philippines marked the beginning of the slow but sure march to triumph, so does the story of this film depict the first infiltration of our victorious forces in another war theater.

Those who followed the tragic tale of gallant Gen. Stilwell's bitter retreat from Burma and who appreciate the enormous complexities of that lesser known but important sector will be vastly interested and heartened by "Objective, Burma."

Part of it fact, some of it fiction, the film follows a small band of paratroopers who are sent out on an objective they know is definitely tough and maybe impossible. They do not fail, but the cost is high, and their trek thru miles of thick, verminous jungle, their desperate hiding in slimy rivers, the thirst, the heat, the fear, and the weariness that hammered them at all times are graphically portrayed.

They are accompanied by a rather elderly—in soldier terms—war correspondent who is not entirely welcome because an untrained man can be a liability when the going is tough. That he earns his way and their affection is developed in the film in a nice tribute to the hundreds of newsmen who have gone into the firing lines with our troops and taken it with the best of them.

Raoul Walsh, who directed what I remember fondly as the best picture of the last war, "What Price Glory," is never guilty of overplaying the obvious—one reason why many of the scenes are as sharply poignant as a news reel shot of a wounded soldier. There are many tense moments and some relieving bits of humor, but, mercifully, the honesty of the portrayal is never marred by flag waving or facile patriotic talk.

The entire cast is excellent, led by Errol Flynn, who is likable and believable as the unassuming leader of the outfit. The paratroopers are convincingly ordinary looking men of mixed racial backgrounds, such as you might see in any typical army group. No individual role is highlighted, but William Prince deserves special mention as the second in command.

"Objective, Burma" seemed to me to me a serious, realistic tribute to the thousands of men who have suffered and died the hard way that the rest of us might live, and the picture is well worth your patronage.

Service Center Hostesses Will Have Dinner Tonight

Forty hostesses now serving in the Chicago service men's centers and who have worked there since the centers opened Aug. 7, 1941, will meet for dinner at 7 o'clock tonight in the Continental hotel. Mrs. Sartell Brooks, hostess chairman and chairman of the women's advisory board, will be a special guest. Among those at the dinner will be Mrs. Ernst Von Ammon of Winnetka, Mrs. A. G. Philips of Kenilworth, Mrs. Ward Castle of Hinsdale, Mrs. Leslie McCray of Glen Ellyn, and Mrs. Roger Faherty, Mrs. Alfred D. Plamondon Jr., Mrs. Donald MacMurray, and Mrs. Boyd E. Henderson of Chicago.

Thru the Looking Glass

Maybe the thought isn't worth repeating, but then again maybe it is: It begins to look as tho women do dress up, and groom up, not to impress other women but to impress men.

At least, now that men aren't around in large numbers it's pretty obvious that more and more women just don't give a hang about the way they look or even about the fastidious cleanliness that they once considered terribly important.

Women whose husbands are breakfasting in foxholes instead of across the table from them quite understandably fall out of the habit of donning a clean house dress in the morning, combing their hair, and putting on a touch of lipstick. But it's a funny thing about letting down; once you start it becomes increasingly easy to do so.

The woman who doesn't freshen up in the morning as she once did finds it unbelievably easy not to comb her hair or change from her house slippers when she darts out to shop—and eventually she finds it easier still just not to bother much when she visits her friends or goes to a movie or does a day's shopping. She develops an unconsciousness of runs in the hose, soiled handkerchiefs, unshampooed hair, and unrepaired makeup that she never would have had a few years ago.

And don't think the business girls aren't slipping, too. It's a struggle to get clothes out of the cleaners; it's a struggle to get blouses and lingerie laundred. It's a fight to get an appointment in the beauty shop. And if there's no beau around, a lot of us women decide "why bother?" We don't use deodorants as faithfully as we should, nor change our nail polish, nor have the shoes shined and the hair set.

It's too bad—and it's going to be one whale of a blow to the boys when they come home because we're forming habits that won't be easy to break when the presence of men again reminds us of the necessity of being dainty day in and day out instead of on special occasions.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 spade	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: three of hearts.

Two of the outstanding faults in the play of the dummy by the average player are, [a] Taking for granted the location of certain outstanding cards, [b] Living from trick to trick.

In a three no trump contract you must set your goal at nine before you play to even the first trick. In today's hand, West elected to open the three of hearts. Declarer took it for granted that West held the king of hearts. First, because he bid and secondly because he selected that suit for his lead. The queen lost to East's king and the six of spades came back. This, Declarer ducked. West won with the queen and continued the hearts. When the diamond finesse failed, the defense had taken three hearts, a spade and a diamond, defeating the contract a trick.

Declarer could have insured nine tricks by the simple procedure of reaching for them. There was no excuse for the play of the queen of hearts to the first trick. If West had the king [as indeed he should have] the queen could be put to use later. Players should get out of the habit of considering that a queen is useless when detached from the ace.

On winning the opening lead, Declarer should return to his hand with a club and try the diamond finesse. When that fails there is no lead East can make that will annoy Declarer. Now the spade is returned, the ace comes up and nine tricks are rattled off in quick succession.

One player on the opening lead elected to play the nine of hearts, which gave East the opportunity for a very thoughtful play, namely, the 10 of hearts. This is sound tactics because if partner has led from the jack, which is probable, the 10 will hold the trick, and if Declarer has the jack, the king will still be available as a future winner.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The $43,200 Petersen Bowling Classic, which tonight enters its 12th round of action at Archer-35th Recreation, last evening was taking on the nature of an old-fashioned intercity vendetta such as distinguished the baseball feuds between the Tigers and our Cubs and Sox. The first six places, after 36 of the 54 scheduled squads had tried their shots, were divided equally between Detroit and Chicago, with the Michigan tenpin troupe occupying the first three positions.

One 32 man detail remained last night as the trio of Detroit bowlers found their scores entrenching them at the top of the standings in the race for the first three prizes of $5,100, $2,600, and $1,100, to be awarded at the conclusion of the 16 day argument Sunday night.

Boehm Still Leads.

Heading the pack was Charley Boehm, 29 year old Highland Park, Mich., bowler who last year took the early lead in the tournament and clung to it for seven squads. On last Sunday's second set Charles forgot he had a blistered thumb and fired a 1,585, climaxed by a well earned 225 game. That performance did what 20 other squads had failed to do. It knocked from the lead the 1,577 with which Al Heiden, fellow townsman of Boehm, had stayed in front since early on Jan. 29.

Then, just to make it a threesome, Frank Zion, another Detroiter, came along on last Sunday's finishing ensemble and fashioned a 1,581 to drop Heiden into third place.

The three Chicagoans who are now holding fourth, fifth, and sixth places are Frank [Bud] Wright of the Meister Braus, 1,574; Alex Sandquist, 1,567, and Herb Wodrich, 1,564.

Bomar, Sinke Falter.

The lure of a strong Chicago threat on last night's second squad attracted the best crowd of the tournament to date, but it was doomed to disappointment. This number happened to include Buddy Bomar, national match game champion and co-holder of the national doubles title; Joe Sinke of the Meister Braus, Johnny Ryan, all-time high money winner in the Classic; Jules Zowa and Ed Schlichting, and Clare Edinger, winner of the 1943 title. Sinke led the squad with a mild 1,504, while Bomar could do no better than a 1,443.

SQUAD NO. 1.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

BUCK SHAW turned down a contract to coach U. C. L. A. football teams for 10 years at $15,000 a season to remain with the San Francisco club of the new All-America conference. . . . There has been some scoffing at athletes who have been deferred by selective service because of punctured eardrums. . . . The fact remains, however, that Peanuts Lowrey, Cub outfielder now a civilian after a year in the army, went in with one punctured eardrum, came out with two and is said to be almost totally deaf. . . . Del Webb, new co-owner of the Yankees, has shot as low as 67 in tournament golf competition. . . . Bill Alexander's retirement as football coach at Georgia Tech marks the second change there in 41 years. . . . John W. Heisman went to the Atlanta school in 1904 and remained thru 1919 and Alexander has served ever since. . . . Since Jeff Cravath took over the Southern California football job after Sam Barry joined the navy the Trojans have won 21, tied three, and lost none to collegiate opponents. . . . In a recent basketball game between Marquette and Northwestern Bill Chandler Jr. played against Fred Johnson Jr. . . . Their fathers were teammates at Chicago's North Division High school in 1910-'11. . . . Leonard Sachs, Jack Dempsey's old business manager, is with Ford Motors in Detroit? . . . It may be of interest to recall a letter written by Gen. Peyton C. March to Ban Johnson, president of the American league in 1919. . . . Major league baseball had been stopped by the work-or-fight order in September, 1918. . . . Gen. March advocated the resumption of the game "to furnish healthful recreation for returning fighters and harmless relaxation for the home folk." . . . Mike Jacobs will collect 25 per cent of the profits of the Robinson-Costner show at Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night. . . . He has the right to Robinson's services.

The recent appointment of Otis Shepard as a member of the Cubs' board of directors does not bring a threat that the Cubs will resume the gay 90 bathing suit motif in uniforms. . . . Shep, because he was art director of the Wrigley company at the time the Cubs were afflicted with the odd raiment, was blamed for designing same, but fought several fist fights by way of emphasizing his denials. . . . Lou Novikoff, Red Kress, and Vince Di Maggio are managing semi-pro teams in Los Angeles. . . . Two Southeastern conference universities have offered Buford [Baby] Ray a job as line coach, but he plans to return to Green Bay for another football season with the Packers. . . . Glenn Davis, Army half back, has been clocked in 6.3 seconds for the 60 yard dash. . . . Both entries and attendance have increased this winter in almost every Golden Gloves center. . . . New York football fans predict that Capt. Dan Topping will operate his football team in Yankee stadium next season with the consent of Tim Mara, who holds territorial rights in New York.

MILITARY POLICE ARREST ROACHE PENDING INQUIRY

Boston, Mass., Feb. 6 (AP).—Willie Roache, Wilmington, Del., boxer, tonight was in custody of military police pending, an army spokesman said, "clarification of his status."

Roache, claiming to have an army medical discharge, was quizzed last night in his dressing room in New Haven after he had been defeated by Willie Pep of Hartford.

At that time, New Haven Police Capt. John J. Lyons said, the fighter was suspected of being absent without official leave.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Toronto Maple Leafs came from behind to subject the Boston Bruins to the most decisive defeat of their National Hockey league home season, 5 to 1, tonight before a 10,000 crowd at the Boston Garden.

Forty-seven seconds after the opening face-off Bill Jennings, making his first start on Boston ice in a month, lifted the Bruins' hopes high by rifling in Bill Cowley's pass from 30 feet out.

Leafs Gain 1 to 1 Tie.

The Maple Leafs, however, just before the first period ended and while Jennings was serving a penalty pulled into a 1 to 1 tie when one of Babe Pratt's long shots was deflected into the Boston cage by a Bruin skate.

Ted Kennedy, Toronto's starting center, then shared in three of the remaining four Toronto goals.

He scored the first of his two goals, with Pratt assisting, during the first minute of the second period action and counted again early in the final.

Stanowski Leaves Game.

Former Bruins Art Jackson and Mel Hill provided the remaining Toronto tallies, the latter with less than three minutes to go.

Defenseman Wally Stanowski had to retire about halfway thru the third period after being boarded in rapid succession by Bruins Kenny Smith and Frankie Mario.

HAWKS LOSE TWO

The Chicago Blackhawks reduced the size of their roster by two players yesterday—one change being voluntary and the other being forced upon them. Center Harvey Fraser was farmed to the Cleveland club of the American league and Left Winger Lude Check, who had been loaned to the Chicago sextet by the Montreal Canadiens, was recalled by that club.

HE JUST CAN'T GET GOLDEN GLOVES OFF HIS MIND!

Jackie Boyd, who helps make Golden Gloves news, reads about the amateur event while operating on an orange in his home at 2805 W. Van Buren st. Jackie, 1944 Golden Gloves flyweight champion, will box Don Uyeda Monday night at Marigold Gardens in the Chicago city finals. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BY FRANK MASTRO.

When Jackie Boyd was 10 years old his chief ambition was to be a boxer—a Golden Gloves champion. At that time his brother, Bill, with whom he lives at 2805 W. Van Buren st. was a professional lightweight and gave Jackie his first ring lessons.

Jackie was an apt pupil and within a few years was able to do himself proud in workouts against his big brother, altho the latter outweighed him 23 pounds. Jack is a flyweight and he successfully defended his north sectional Golden Gloves championship in Loyola university gymnasium last week.

Seeks Second City Title.

The youngster will seek to capture his second consecutive city Golden Gloves title when he fights Don Uyeda of the Catholic Youth organization in Marigold Gardens Monday night. It will be one of 16 city championship encounters—eight each in the open and novice classes. He regards Uyeda as a formidable opponent, but is looking beyond the impending important match to the Tournament of Champions in Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

A Chicagoland championship and the diamond studded golden glove which goes with it is Jackie's prime objective, of course. However, he also has a little grudge to settle with one Frank Rivera of Kansas City, Mo., who was awarded a split decision over him in an intercity match in Kansas City a month ago.

Come on, Mr. Rivera!

Boyd is confident Rivera will be the Kansas City Star's 112 pound representative in the forthcoming big show in the Stadium.

This setback was the first one Jackie had suffered since a short time before beating Al Sanchez for the C. Y. O. medal last December. It was the 16th decision he has lost in 103 contests. Uyeda also defeated Sanchez for the south sectional Golden Gloves title in St. Sabina gymnasium.

Of his many thrilling battles one stands out in Jackie's memory as his toughest, a fight at Camp Grant last year against a sergeant named Conti. Boyd climbed off the canvas at the count of eight in the first round and floored Conti twice in the third to clinch the verdict.

Jackie is a former pupil at Crane Tech. He is proud of his record, but

Senn Seniors Rout Schurz for 7 in Row

BOX SCORES ON NEXT PAGE.

Senn High school's senior basketball team won its seventh straight game in the City league north section by routing Schurz, 50 to 24, yesterday on the Schurz floor. The victory put Senn a half game ahead of the Von Steuben quintet, which has six victories and no defeats.

Senn led, 24 to 11, at the half, and never was threatened. Frank Murphy won scoring honors with 14 points.

Elsewhere in the north section two Lane Tech fives registered two of the highest prep scores of the year in winning a double header from Taft. The Lane juniors were victorious, 82 to 25, while the seniors won, 64 to 48.

In junior play, Marshall of the west section and Gage Park of the central section remained undefeated. Marshall routed Wells, 86 to 43, on the Marshall floor, for its seventh consecutive victory as Jerry Berman scored 17 points.

Gage Park likewise had an easy time as it made Phillips its sixth victim, 67 to 29, after leading, 33 to 11, at the half.

WEBER, ST. PHILIP WIN

The Weber and St. Philip High school junior basketball teams, each racing toward its section crown in the Catholic league, last night turned in impressive victories to remain undefeated.

Weber, in the south section, routed St. Rita, 53 to 10, on the Weber floor, after holding a 28 to 4 half time lead. Joe Zrenda led the scorers with 15 points.

St. Philip likewise had an easy assignment in the north section, trouncing St. Mel, 56 to 29, for its sixth victory in as many starts. Dick Flando and Mike Stenson paced the Gael attack, with Flando scoring 16 points and Stenson 15.

Leo's juniors remained in second place in the south section as the Lions defeated Loyola, 56 to 18, while De La Salle kept its hold on third place by beating Joliet Catholic, 41 to 36.

Two Tied for Lead.

The St. Ignatius juniors, whose only league loss was to St. Philip, retained second place in the north section, defeating Fenwick, 43 to 27, for their fourth victory in five games.

St. Philip and Fenwick remained in a tie for first place in the north section senior race as the Gaels trounced St. Mel, 48 to 25, and the Friars beat St. Ignatius, 36 to 24.

The St. Patrick Shamrocks, winners of the St. George holiday tournament, remained in third place by defeating De Paul, 44 to 25.

In the south section Leo's Lions remained undefeated, routing Loyola, 45 to 20, for their sixth straight victory.

HAGG WORKS OUT IN LONDON PARK; TROTS 3 MILES

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—Gunder Hagg and Haakon Lidman, Sweden's traveling trackmen, kept in athletic trim today by trotting three miles in Kensington Gardens. En route, they gave some pointers to Britain's No. 2 miler. D. G. Wilson, next to Syd Wooderson as England's top distance runner, paced Hagg thru the gardens where the only running usually is done by flocks of sheep from adjoining Hyde Park.

It was understood that arrangements have been completed to permit Hagg and Lidman to reach the United States in time for plenty of workouts before the national indoor games on Feb. 24.

LATIN QUINTET LOSES GAME AND VERSATILE STAR

BY DAVID CONDON.

Johnny Groth, 18 year old all around athlete at Chicago Latin in the Private School league, has withdrawn from school pending entering service, it was announced yesterday after the Latin senior basketball team had been defeated by Luther Institute, 44 to 21, in a league contest. The defeat was Latin's third in eight games.

Groth did not play in the game, and school officials said he withdrew two days ago. He previously had taken a selective service physical examination and had been classified 1-A.

Picked as an all-state half back, Groth sparked the Latin football team to the Private league championship, scoring 12 touchdowns and five extra points in six league games. In basketball, he had averaged over 25 points per contest as a guard. He scored 46 points against Chicago Christian.

Groth was a pitcher and shortstop on the Latin baseball team, and had hurled a no-hit game in each of the last two seasons. He was also a tennis player and a member of the Latin track team, as well as an experienced swimmer.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William Groth of 3807 Leavitt st., Johnny has one brother in the army, Sgt. William Groth, 24, stationed at Savannah, Ga., with a medical detachment of the army air corps.

In other Privatc league games yesterday, Concordia beat Chicago Christian, 50 to 30; Todd defeated University High, 31 to 29; Francis Parker defeated North Shore, 47 to 39, and Harvard routed Wheaton academy, 62 to 31.

FARR DENIES HE BROKE NOSE OF BRITISH SAILOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Tommy Farr, former British heavyweight boxing champion and now manager of a hotel bar at Brighton, today pleaded not guilty to assaulting John Bottomley, a young sailor.

It was disclosed in court that Bottomley, during a discussion with other sailors in the bar, referred to Farr as a third rate boxer. Later, it was said, Farr offered to fight another of the sailors at $4 apiece. Then, it was alleged, while Bottomley had his hands in his pockets, Farr hit him with such force that he broke the sailor's nose. Farr also knocked down two other sailors. The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

ILLINOIS WHIPS CHANUTE FIELD FLYERS, 58-46

Marquette Scores 52-50 Victory.

Rantoul, Ill., Feb. 6 (AP).—The University of Illinois defeated Chanute field's basketball team, 58 to 46, here tonight. But the Illini had to come from behind three times in the last half and put on a scoring spurt in the final 10 minutes to do it.

Illinois defeated Chanute field 64 to 25 in its opening game last Dec. 2, but met an entirely different club tonight. The flyers clung tenaciously to the Illini for three-fourths of the game, and the drive they put on in the opening minutes of the second half looked like it might develop into an upset.

Illinois led 27 to 24 at the half, primarily on the shooting of Howie Hudson and Jack Burmaster, who scored 15 points each. Chanute Field came out after the intermission to take a 32 to 28 advantage before the Illini could get started, and held a 34 to 33 margin after eight minutes of play. It was then the Illini offense started rolling. The lineups:

SAILORS BEAT DEPAUW

Greencastle, Ind., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Great Lakes Bluejackets were extended to the limit to defeat DePauw's stubborn basketball team tonight, 52 to 48.

Trounced last Saturday at Great Lakes, 53 to 37, DePauw's Tigers made a fight of it all the way on their own court. They ran up an early 9 to 0 lead before the Sailors got started. Great Lakes caught up at 18-all and went ahead at the half, 22 to 20.

In the second half, DePauw's tight defensive play forced the Bluejackets to shoot from long range, and after 12 minutes of play the score was 43-all. Then Walt Budko scored twice from the field and once from the foul line for the Bluejackets, and the verdict was in.

Stan London, DePauw forward, took scoring honors with 13 points. For Great Lakes, Mickey McGuire with 12 and Luke Majorki with 11 were the leaders. The victory was Great Lakes' 25th in 29 games. DePauw's loss was its eighth in 15.

MARQUETTE WINS, 52-50.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 6 [Special].—Marquette university defeated Western Michigan's Broncos, 52 to 50, tonight in a hard fought game.

Marquette led thruout except for the first basket of the game and at the end of 10 minutes was ahead, 15 to 9 and at the half way mark was in front, 30 to 19.

The shooting of Bill Chandler, guard, and Pedro Prado, forward, sent Marquette into a 14 point margin midway of the second half when the Broncos started to cut the lead of the visitors with John Buscher and Glen Slebo, guards, and Ray Louthen, reserve center, doing the heavy scoring for the Western Michigan team.

BIG TEN TO KEEP TRACK STARS OUT OF A. A. U. MEETS

Conference to Protect Own Indoor Events.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Western conference track stars will stay in their own back yard the rest of the indoor track season, which closes March 10 with the Big Ten meet at the University of Chicago. This decision, taken recently by the Western conference track coaches, means that the outstanding trackmen from their schools will not participate in the National Amateur Athletic Union meet in New York and other invitational competition in the east.

Conference officials, however, said yesterday that this is no slap at the A. A. U., whose secretary, Dan Ferris, has protested the Big Ten's decision affecting his group's national meet.

Encourage Dual Meets.

Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern and one of the Big Ten's spokesmen since the death of Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, explained that the conference track coaches had agreed to shun outside competition for three weeks prior to the Big Ten indoor meet in an effort to stimulate conference dual competition.

"The coaches felt that due to the increasing practice of star performers going to the headline meets that the dual meet program was dying out and that instead of being a sport for numbers track was being overly specialized," Wilson explained.

"This is no conference ruling or no slap at the A. A. U., but merely an agreement among coaches to encourage dual competition in the conference. I have straightened out the situation with Mr. Ferris."

Ban Off After Big Ten Meet.

Coach Leo Johnson of Illinois further explained that after the Big Ten indoor meet athletes may compete in outside meets since their squads then would be well established and there would be a lull before the outdoor season. The Chicago relays March 17, he explained, came at an opportune time for conference participation. Seven members of the Illinois squad competed in the Millrose games last Saturday in New York.

Johnson said the agreement assures conference coaches of a minimum of three dual meets before the Big Ten meet. "It's the dual meet that gives the average track candidate his chance and you can't have dual meets when the real strength of your squad is competing elsewhere," he asserted.

Morris Holds First Place in Big 9 Scoring

Altho held to eight points in his one Big Nine start last week, husky Max Morris of eighth place Northwestern continues to pace the individual conference scoring with 114 points in seven games, an average of 16.28.

The Wildcat center holds a 22 point edge over second place Bob Geahan of Michigan whose nine game total of 92 gives him a 10.2 average. Clarence Hermsen, Minnesota's 6 foot 7 inch freshman, jumped from eighth to fourth place with a 21 point performance against Indiana which boosted his total to 80 in seven games.

One from Iowa in Top 10.

Hermsen trails one point behind Bill Gosewehr of Purdue, who is third—but not for long—with 81 in eight games. Gosewehr last week entered the service.

Paradoxically the top 10 scorers include only one player from Iowa's highly rated quintet—Center Clay Wilkinson, who is seventh with 73 points in six games—and none from Ohio State's defending champion Buckeyes, who share the conference lead with the Hawkeyes. Ohio's leading pointmaker is rangy Arnold Risen, ranked 12th in the official league standings with 63 markers in six games.

INDIANA, PURDUE RENEW ANCIENT RIVALRY TONIGHT

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 6 [Special].—A basketball rivalry dating back to 1901 will be renewed for the 73d time tomorrow night when Purdue seeks to improve its grip on a first division berth in the Big Nine standing in a return game with Indiana.

The Boilermakers, who took over fourth place in the conference race as they scored their fifth victory in Big Nine starts against Northwestern on Friday night, will have a triple incentive for victory. First, they will be endeavoring to even matters for the 51 to 50 setback at Bloomington earlier in the season; second, they will be out to assure themselves of at least a .500 rating in the final Big Nine standing, and third, they will be seeking to maintain Purdue's superiority in the all-time series, which has yielded 54 victories for the Boilermakers and only 18 triumphs for the Hoosiers.

Purdue's hope of evening matters for the season with Indiana is bolstered by the fact that Paul Hoffman, brilliant center, who was unable to play in the first game, due to a foot injury, is back in top form. Probable lineups:

Purdue.		Indiana.
Lewis	F.	Herman
Anderson	F.	Copeland
Hoffman	C.	Kralovansky
Haag	G.	Brandenburg
Hinga	G.	Mercer

GEARS TO MEET SHEBOYGAN IN COLISEUM GAME

Sheboygan's Redskins, leaders of the western division of the National Professional Basketball league and only team with a perfect record in competition with the American Gears, will tackle Chicago's league entry at 9 o'clock tonight in the main game at the Coliseum. The White Liners will play the Rockola girls in a preliminary contest.

The Gears came closest to downing the Redskins in the last meeting of the two teams, when Sheboygan won 45 to 44. The Chicago quintet will be striving to improve its home record of six victories in nine starts tonight. The lineups:

American Gears.		Sheboygan.

QUIZ DEMOCRAT PARTY AID ON SURPLUS DEALS

Questioned on Link with Auctioneer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Richard C. Durham, secretary to the Democratic national committee, was questioned by the senate war investigating committee today at its hearing on alleged irregularities in auction sales of government surplus property and in a reported attempt of the auctioneer, Jacob Goldberg of New York City, to bribe an employe of the Defense Plants corporation.

Richard C. Durham.

Durham testified he had little to do with Goldberg's enterprises except to solicit war surplus business from government bureaus as an assistant to Archibald McNeil, former Democratic national committeeman from Connecticut.

Swope Son-in-Law Named.

He said that McNeil was dropped from the enterprise and that his, Durham's, functions were virtually taken over by another Goldberg associate, Herbert Brandt. A son of Brandt is married to a daughter of Herbert Bayard Swope, former New York newspaper editor now a consultant in the office of Secretary of War Stimson.

"What was Mr. Swope's interest in the company?" asked Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"He merely had a friendly interest in helping Mr. Brandt," said Durham. "Mr. Swope helped Mr. Brandt and Mr. Goldberg get an audience with top government men."

Ferguson read into the record a copy of a letter to a government agency signed by Durham in which Durham said Swope and Bernard Baruch would vouch for Goldberg. Also from the subpenaed company files, Ferguson read an inner office memorandum signed by Durham who reported that "Jake [Goldberg] says our chances would be better if S. brings pressure to bear on Olrich. "S." was identified as Swope. Ernest M. Olrich then was in charge of surplus property disposal for the treasury.

Sales Prices Probed.

Don F. Brown, chief of the construction material section of the DPC, was questioned on the witness stand about apparent discrepancies between sales prices at the auction and amounts Goldberg credited to the government. He said he would have to study the records, and he was told to return to the committee with his answers tomorrow.

Goldberg also is slated to testify tomorrow. He will be asked about last week's testimony by John Van Ginhoven, a $5,600 a year DPC employe, who swore that Goldberg had offered a farm and a $15,000 a year salary for a favorable report on Goldberg's proposition to act as a government sales agent for surplus property.

Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] questioned Joel Gross, attorney for Goldberg's Surplus Liquidators, Inc., who said Swope had performed "a public service" in writing former Commerce Secretary Jones asking him to interview Goldberg and Brandt.

"Mr. Swope did not send a letter to Mr. Jones until he had made a complete study of Mr. Goldberg's background and fully acquainted himself as to the merit of his proposal for auctioning surpluses," Gross said.

Tells of False Surpluses.

One witness, Rep. Miller [R., Neb.], said there are vast stores of supplies classified as surplus while the same factories that made them "are still working 24 hours a day turning out the same material for the military."

Miller testified the procurement division of the treasury is offering as surplus medical and hospital supplies 531,000 test tubes, 5,400,000 stopper corks, and 31,000,000 surgical dressings, among dozens of other items, while factories are working around the clock to turn out more of the same goods.

He said he understood there are 18 months' reserves of most medical supplies.

Miller asked the committee to look into the "informal bid" method of selling medical supplies.

Urges a Clearinghouse.

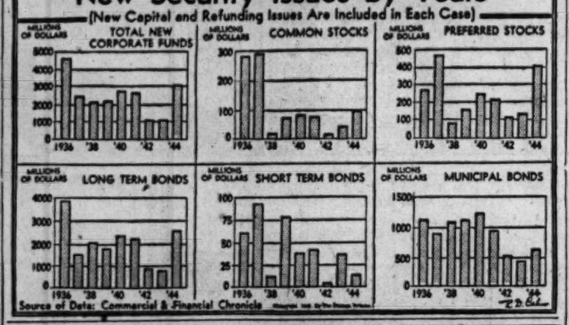
He agreed with Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] and Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.], who yesterday urged creation of a central "clearing house" for the control of surpluses from each of the agencies.

Miller recommended that the committee:

1. Ascertain the needs of the military.
2. Find out who is buying surplus equipment "and at what price."
3. Seek to freeze all surplus property for the time being.
4. Require all property be sold under the surplus war property board.
5. Stop all separate sales by military divisions.
6. Recover the surplus "and stop its production."

Union Pacific Reports Increased Net Profits

The Union Pacific railroad yesterday reported net income last year was $41,929,904, or $17.07 per common share, compared with $35,293,259, or $14.09 a share, in 1943. Profit in 1944 included a credit of $859,020 representing funds released from a reserve created for refunds on government shipments. The 1943 profit was after setting aside 10 million dollars for that purpose. Federal taxes totaled 118 million dollars, against 168 million dollars.



Seek Alaskan Air Fare Less Than by Ship

Indicative of the strong competition expected between air and steamship lines after the war, United Air Lines announced yesterday that it had filed exhibits with the civil aeronautics board, preparatory to a hearing Feb. 13 in which it proposed to cut existing air line fares nearly half between Seattle and Tacoma and points in Alaska. The new fares would be less than the average steamship rates.

Fares from Chicago and other cities served by the system would be reduced proportionately if United is granted the route and its tariffs accepted.

Fare Comparisons Made.

The proposed tariffs, present air line fares, and present steamship rates from Seattle to Alaskan cities:

	Proposed.	Pres. air.	Steamship.
Ketchikan	$37.75	$75.00	$39.00
Juneau	54.00	95.00	53.00
Fairbanks	99.80	170.00	106.20

The steamship fare to Fairbanks includes the railroad fare from Seward to Fairbanks.

United proposed to reduce elapsed travel time from Seattle to Ketchikan to three hours; Juneau five hours, Anchorage nine hours, and Fairbanks 10¼ hours. It would use four engine, 44 passenger, 240 mile an hour transport planes of the type United now flies under military contract across the Pacific ocean.

Indicative of the time saving the nine hour flight to Anchorage compares with nine days by steamer.

Asks No Mail Subsidy.

Officials said United was asking no mail subsidy rate and would charge the same rates for passengers, mail, and express moving to and from Alaska as between points within the United States.

United proposed to extend its existing New York-Seattle transcontinental flight to Fairbanks. At Fairbanks, Anchorage, and Juneau it would be a trunk line for numerous existing and contemplated air lines serving the Alaskan interior. The mileage from Seattle to Fairbanks would be 1,744 miles.

PULLMAN LIFTS OUTPUT OF RAIL CARS 25 PER CENT

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company in 1944 increased its production of freight cars for domestic use 25 per cent and manufactured all the trolley buses the industry was permitted to build, Wallace N. Barker, vice president, said yesterday. In addition, large scale war production was maintained.

Altho war material accounted for more than three-fourths of the 1944 production, the company also turned out 8,060 of the 40,392 freight cars built for class one railroads, Barker said. The company's backlog of domestic freight car orders on Jan. 1 was 8,265.

Production of freight cars for export during 1944 was 10,880, all except 200 of which were for the war department. With WPB approval the company made 173 street cars, 60 per cent of national production, and 63 trolley buses, all that were made in the country.

MOLECULE BOUNCING VACUUM BIG AID TO CHEMICAL INDUSTRY

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Amazing reactions that take place in an almost complete vacuum were described today. Raymond Stevens, vice president of Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., predicted many new post-war industries would result from the use of these vacuums.

When a liquid is placed in a high vacuum molecules constantly jump from the surface. Ordinarily they would bump other molecules and fall back, but in the vacuum they are caught and swept away. The process goes on at lightning speed, millions of molecules in a moment. Because some types of molecules spring out first they can be collected separately.

In this way vitamins A and E may be separated from fish oil. Somewhat similarly magnesium is extracted in a vacuum molecule by molecule from dolomite rock.

Stevens said it is expected the vacuum method will be used to recover many chemicals now high priced.

BILL PREPARED TO BAN TAX FREE BOND 'RACKET'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Rep. Carlson [R., Kas.] today drafted legislation designed to break up what he described as a "giant tax evasion racket." Directed at the practice of issuing tax-free utility bonds under the guise of public ownership, Carlson said his measure proposes that interest from bonds issued to finance a utility shall not be tax exempt when the city pledges only the utility revenues instead of its own treasury as security.

The Kansan, member of the tax framing ways and means committee, said this is how the practice works: Promoters sell persons with large incomes on the idea they can save large sums on federal taxes by buying tax exempt utility bonds issued by municipalities or other political subdivisions. These promoters then sell the city on the idea of taking over a private utility under a plan whereby the city pledges only revenues of the utility as guaranty for the bonds.

"Such utilities are owned and operated in name only by the cities, and the operation is primarily for tax evasion," Carlson said.

CHICAGO FIFTH AMONG CITIES IN WAGE RATE RISE

Chicago was fifth among the first 28 cities of the United States in the increase of wage rates paid by manufacturers from April to October of last year, John B. Parrish, regional director of the bureau of labor statistics said yesterday.

"Most of the increase was the result of merit increases and other individual wage adjustments," Parrish said.

The increase in manufacturing wage rates here was 3 per cent, compared with an average rise of 2.2 for all 28 cities, 6.4 for New York, 3.4 for Birmingham, 3.3 for Louisville and 3.1 per cent for Milwaukee.

Chicago also was fifth in the increase of nonmanufacturing rates, with a rise of 6.3 per cent.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

The Dodge Chicago plant, division of Chrysler corporation, won praise from the army air forces yesterday for its work in building engines for Superfortresses now bombing the Japanese. L. L. Colbert, general manager of the plant, received this telegram from Maj. Gen. B. E. Meyers, deputy director of the air technical service command at Wright field: "It is with a great deal of appreciation that I note you again exceeded your production schedule for January. On behalf of the army air forces I wish to commend you and the whole organization for making it possible to drop more bombs on the Japs. You are doing a great job. Keep up the good work. We need every engine you are producing."

L. L. Colbert.

Wallace Everette Pratt of New York, petroleum geologist and a director of Standard Oil company [New Jersey], has been selected as the first recipient of the Sidney Powers memorial award of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Ira H. Cram, association president, said.

James F. Pedder was appointed advertising manager and Ellsworth Gilbert sales promotion manager of the Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation, Lee A. Clark, assistant general sales manager of the Frigidaire division, said.

Lowell Niebuhr, formerly of Lowell Niebuhr & Co., has become associated with Leason & Co. and will specialize in over the counter trading in investment trust, industrial, public utility, and real estate stocks and bonds.

Col. George V. Rountree of Chicago yesterday was appointed head of the OPA's processed fruit and vegetable section. Col. Rountree, on leave from the firm of certified public accountants bearing his name, has been released from active army duty to fill the OPA post. His duties will include the pricing of canned fruits and vegetables of the 1945 pack.

Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation announced the following additions to the executive staff: L. F. Campbell, formerly with United Aircraft corporation and Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Corporation of Missouri, was made a vice president; E. A. Johnson and R. B. Moir assistant vice presidents; I. C. McVicar assistant secretary, and L. J. Malina assistant treasurer.

Willard S. French, president of Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, New York and Detroit advertising agency, will address the Chicago Federated Advertising club tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman.

The maritime "M" award will be bestowed tomorrow night on employes and management of Midwest Heat Service in the Continental hotel.

The Continental Electric company, Geneva, Ill., announced the promotion of John Hutchings from chief engineer to vice president in charge of electrical engineering.

Wyman-Gordon company, Ingalls Shepard division at Harvey, received its fourth star for the army-navy "E" flag.

John J. O'Brien & Co. of Chicago announced that George E. Rodgers has become associated with the firm.

Pricing Rules Bring Big Run of Light Cattle

Selling of cattle increased thruout the country yesterday as more farmers sent short-fed steers and heifers to market earlier than they had planned. The Chicago stock yards received 13,000 head, the largest Tuesday run since January, 1942. The two day total of 28,100 this week was the largest for a February Monday and Tuesday since 1927.

Cattle traders attributed the heavy marketing mainly to new price regulations which became effective Jan. 29. With an over-all ceiling of $18 per hundred pounds, they discouraged feeding steers to prime condition and encouraged farmers to sell their cattle at lighter than normal weights.

Average Weight at Low.

The selling was not considered a liquidation, altho average weights of cattle butchered were the lowest on record for February.

Cattle feeders were attracted to the Chicago market by the relatively high prices offered for medium to near-good stock. Broad demand held this class steady, altho declines of as much as 25 cents occurred in good to choice grades. No prime offerings arrived. The best available brought $17. Most steers sold from $13.50 to $16.25. Steady prices were paid for heifers, beef cows, canners, cutters, bulls, and calves.

Lambs Climb to Peak.

Hog supplies were larger than on Monday, but remained abnormally low. The 18,000 head total was the smallest for a Tuesday since Dec. 26. The two day total this week was the second smallest since October, 1943, when hog ceilings were established, and 63 per cent smaller than a year ago. All except some inferior light hogs and pigs brought ceiling prices.

Lambs rose 25 cents to the highest price level since last May and within 40 to 50 cents of the peak since 1929. The top was up 25 cents to $16.65 and compared with a 16 year high of $17.10, established last spring.

MEAT OUTPUT FALLS

Meat production in federally inspected plants last week was estimated by the war food administration yesterday at 288 million pounds, a drop of 7 per cent from the preceding week's total of 310 million pounds. Output a year ago was 433 million pounds. Cattle slaughter for the week was up 6,000 head from the preceding week, but calf, sheep and lamb, and hog slaughter decreased.

SELL BIG BLOCK OF CON. ILLINOIS SHARES AT $105

Five thousand shares of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company capital stock were sold yesterday in a secondary distribution at $105 a share by the Illinois company, Smith, Barney & Co., and Lee Higginson & Co. The underwriters said only that the stock came from an "out of town source."

The treasury asked for bids on approximately 1 billion 300 million dollars of 91 day treasury bills to be issued on a discount basis. Bids will be received at federal reserve banks and branches until Feb. 9.

Continental Oil company offered to purchase shares of Navarro Oil company, Houston, Tex., for $46.50 on condition that at least 80 per cent of 348,919 shares outstanding is offered for sale. The offer expires March 1.

PROCESSED EGG CEILINGS CUT BY 0.8 TO 3 CENTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Reductions in manufacturers' prices on processed egg products were announced tonight by the OPA.

Ceilings on frozen eggs were cut 0.8 cent a pound, dried egg yolks 2 cents, and dried albumen 3 cents a pound. All the changes are effective March 1 and apply for the remainder of the year.

The action resulted from a reduction in "current receipt" egg prices, announced last October, which lowered ceilings 1 cent a dozen during the 1945 spring period of large production.

BURNETTE ASKS FAIR BREAK FOR SMALL PLANTS

'Big Firms Fix Own War Job Terms.'

The government provided the larger war goods manufacturers with facilities, equipment, man power, and other aids, but offered little assistance to the small industrial operator, William A. Burnette, chairman of the board of the Burnette Castings company, Hartford, Mich., asserted yesterday in a reply to a questionnaire from the senate subcommittee on small business.

"In war work the big corporations have been in a position to fix their own terms," he charged.

"The government assumed the risk and left the working capital of these big corporations in a liquid state for post-war conversion. . . . supplied the orders, and set prices guaranteeing profit of 5 per cent or more.

Buy Far Below Cost.

"Then, in addition to these other advantages, the government gave them first options to buy up these new plants at a fraction of their original cost."

By contrast, the Burnette company twice was refused building and equipment loans by the War Plants corporation and got a $50,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation only after officers pledged their personal assets as security, Burnette said.

It was so difficult to get business, asserted Burnette, that he asked prime contractors for the castings with which other manufacturers were having difficulties.

"With this offer to take their headache orders, they simply could not turn us down," he said.

Lost in Shuffle.

"During the last of 1944 we actually lost about $40,000 in the shuttlecock between plans for allocations for civilian production one month, and the next month planning to get back into war production, as a result of war reverses and reversal of decisions on the part of the war agencies.

"We have during this war period expended and frozen $156,334 in fixed assets for buildings and equipment. Now, after we have paid our normal and excess profits taxes, and the proposed recovery by the renegotiation board, we would have $51,689 left. In other words, we would be $105,000 worse off so far as our current assets are concerned than we were. To keep our self-respect, we request the same consideration that our government has given to the big corporations."

'JUST HONEST BUROCRAT'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Asserting with a smile that he was just "trying to be a good, honest burocrat," Maury Maverick today asked congress to extend the life of the Smaller War Plants corporation of which he is chairman.

Maverick appeared before the senate banking committee in behalf of a bill which would continue the corporation for 18 months beyond its scheduled expiration on July 1.

His testimony that "Little business in America is suffering from a lack of long term loans and we should make more of them," led to a brisk exchange with Sen. Tobey [R., N. H.]. Federal reserve banks, the Reconstruction corporation, and SWPC all make loans to small business, said Tobey, but "you are the most liberal."

"That," said Maverick, "is an abused word."

"You certainly are a liberal in politics," asserted Tobey. He said the test was that Maverick, a former congressman, introduced in the house a bill to "pack" the Supreme court.

"I'm not saying that was a sin," replied Maverick, "but don't bring up the sins of my past. I'm trying to be a good, honest burocrat."

Plan to Change FM Channels Held Costly Setback for Radio

Adoption of a recent federal communications commission proposal to shift frequency modulation [FM] broadcasting from its present band of 42-50 megacycles to a new band of 84-102 megacycles would cause an unfortunate setback to the radio industry and heavy expense to thousands of radio set owners, J. J. Nance, vice president of Zenith Radio corporation, said yesterday.

J. J. Nance.

"The suggested change in frequencies would cancel out most of the radio industry's experience in FM, wipe out the existing nucleus of listeners, and delay FM's expansion by at least one year, probably longer," Nance told the Investment Analysts club luncheon in the La Salle hotel.

Latest and Most Expensive.

"Five hundred thousand radio sets, of the latest and most expensive models owned by the public, will be made useless for receiving FM if the new allocation of frequencies becomes effective. These new sets cost their owners more than 50 million dollars. Among them are the finest receivers the radio industry ever has built. These radios were purchased at a higher price because they would receive FM.

"If this change goes thru, these sets will become utterly worthless to their owners so far as their FM function is concerned since it will be impractical for service men to rebuild them in the field to fit the new frequencies."

Altho the industry could build new receivers, he said, it would be impractical to do so because broadcasters did not have transmitting tubes suitable for FM broadcasting on the proposed frequencies.

Would Be Back to Scratch.

This would mean development of new FM sets would have to wait until new transmitters were designed and constructed and FM would be back where it was in 1940, "starting from scratch," he said.

"The only argument advanced for moving FM is that if left in the present band stations might be subject to and cause some interference," Nance said. "Yet it is proposed that television, which is far more subject to interference than FM, be left in this portion of the spectrum and that 30 existing FM channels be sacrificed to make room for just one additional television channel. There are fewer than 10,000 television receivers in operation in the United States, compared with 500,000 FM receivers that would be made obsolete by the change."

Act to Assure Vets' Success in Business

The Chicago Association of Credit Men has added its facilities and services to those of banking groups, veterans' organizations, and community agencies which offer to assist returning service men and women to make the most profitable use of the government-guaranteed loans under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

The association, comprising manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, and bankers, has formed a war veterans advisory committee which includes 1,700 business executives whose experience ranges from "abrasives to zippers." Their job is to point out "business do and don't" to veterans who are starting enterprises.

How Committee Works.

The committee will work in this manner: After the veteran has obtained his loan and chosen his business, he is invited to ask the committee for advice. The committee then draws upon its membership for executives in the chosen field or in others closely allied. The executives then discuss all phases of the business with the veteran.

"Ample need exists for careful consideration by the veteran before investing his money and that of others in any business, particularly in the retail line," said C. L. Holman, president of the association.

"It is known that about 50 per cent of all individuals entering business fail within two years. It is the purpose of our association not only to encourage the veteran who is properly qualified to enter business for himself, but also to help him stay in business."

A. B. A. Joins Move.

Another Chicagoan prominent in G. I. loan activities is Chester R. Davis, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, and head of the American Bankers' association committee on service for veterans.

Thru the committee the A. B. A. has mailed to all banks copies of each of the three sets of loan regulations, home, farm, and business, together with digests of the rules and outlines of procedure. The committee also has been instrumental in assisting state bankers' associations to obtain passage of legislation which will enable state banks to participate in loan activities under the G. I. Bill.

NIAGARA SHARE.

Please give me a description of Niagara Share corporation's new preferred stock.—E. C.

Niagara Share, an investment company, is offering its new $4.50 cumulative convertible preferred stock in exchange, share for share, for its 25,000 outstanding shares of $6 class A preferred stock which has been called for redemption Mar. 31 at $105 a share.

The new stock, preferred as to dividend and assets, has been authorized in the amount of 25,000 shares, par $100, callable at $105. It is convertible at any time into seven common shares for each preferred share. The old preferred stock has no conversion privilege.

The company's net asset value of $16,757,000, reported as of Sept. 30, 1944, was equal to $670 a share of preferred stock. Net investment income for the nine months ended on that date was equal to $22.39 a preferred share. For the full year 1943 such income was equal to $23.28 a preferred share.

The portfolio consisted of diversified industrial and public utility common stocks and other securities. The two largest holdings were Niagara Oil corporation 6 per cent notes, valued at $2,625,000, and 32,300 shares of Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy [investment bankers] preferred stock, valued at $3,230,000.

Niagara has a debt of $4,857,000 in the form of secured long term bank loans.

WHEAT HIGHER ON MILL BUYING, SHORT COVERING

Prices of most grains advanced in early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and wheat, oats, and rye reached new high marks since mid-January. Wheat led the upturn. After a reaction from the peaks, wheat closed ¼ to ¾ cent a bushel higher, oats ⅜ to ¾ higher and rye ¼ higher to ⅛ lower. Corn closed unchanged to ⅜ lower and barley ⅛ to ⅝ lower.

Buying by mills combined with short covering was responsible for the strength in wheat, altho the fact cash wheat prices remained at the ceilings tended to restrict selling.

Because cash oats are at premiums of 12 to 16 cents over May and offerings are limited, buying of May by professionals and cash interests has been aggressive. Most of the rye and corn trade was professional.

Butler, Spiegel Report Larger Sales in January

Butler Brothers yesterday reported consolidated wholesale and retail sales in January were $8,390,716, an increase of 7.57 per cent over a year earlier. Spiegel, Inc., reported consolidated mail order and subsidiary retail sales were $3,128,112 in January. Sales of its retail units were not reported in 1944, but mail order sales alone amounted to $1,159,023 in January, 1944.

STOCK MARKET INDEX REGAINS ITS 7 YEAR TOP

Rails Assume Lead in Uneven Rise.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Renewed strength of rails helped pull the Associated Press stock average back to its 7 year peak today in the market's sixth consecutive rising session, altho numerous recent leaders were weakened by profit cashing.

The carriers started upward before midday as dividend hopes revived. Sentiment also was helped by an earnings statement by Union Pacific. Gains of fractions to two or more points were well distributed at the close, but many gains were reduced in the last hour. Of 968 issues traded, 422 advanced, 304 declined, and 242 were unchanged.

GIRL, 16, USES GAS IN ATTEMPT TO KILL MOTHER

Thwarted Romance with Soldier Blamed.

Bernice Reynolds, 16, a blue-eyed blonde, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to murder her mother, Lottie, 39, in their Aurora home as the result of a thwarted romance with an 18 year old soldier. The girl signed a statement, taken by Aurora police, admitting she turned on gas burners on the kitchen range in her home, closed the windows, and left her mother there to die Monday morning.

The mother, who had gone back to bed after her husband, Robert, a war worker, and another daughter, Dorothy, 18, a senior in Aurora's East High school, had left the house at 7:30 a. m. Monday, was able to stagger downstairs about 11:30 a. m., turn off the gas, and open the kitchen door. Her daughter Dorothy found her on the kitchen floor when she came home from school at noon.

Bond Fixed at $10,000.

Police who were called to the Reynolds home at 629 Fox st., Aurora, at first believed the mother had attempted suicide, but Mrs. Reynolds denied it. Finally detectives arrested Bernice Monday evening when she came home from work in an Aurora laundry. The girl was arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace J. W. Greenaway, who ordered her held for grand jury action and fixed bond at $10,000. Police said she would be taken to the Kane County jail in Geneva.

Police got the following story from Bernice: Last November she met Clarence Swope, 18, of Ottumwa, Ia., who was working in Aurora. Swope, who was to be inducted into the army on Jan. 31, left his Aurora job and returned to his home. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds had been divorced, but they were remarried last Wednesday, and on the same day Bernice left for Ottumwa, where she and Clarence wanted to be married.

Brought Her Back Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds traced Bernice, and last Friday they brought her back from Ottumwa. Mrs. Reynolds told police Bernice wanted to stay with Swope's parents but showed no resentment when she was brought home. Swope, meanwhile, had been inducted and had left Ottumwa.

In her statement to police, Bernice said, "It was my intention that my mother should die," and gave as her reason for the act, "I didn't want to live with her any longer."

(Story in adjoining column.)

Bernice Reynolds, 16, of Aurora, who was arraigned there yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to murder her mother.

MANY WORKERS REPORTED KEPT HOME BY COLDS

An epidemic of common colds and ailments of the upper respiratory system which has caused the absence of many workers from their jobs in the Chicago area was reported yesterday by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health. Most of the cases are not serious, but afflicted persons should go to bed and avoid complications, Dr. Bundesen advised.

Pneumonia and influenza cases have been fewer this year than during the same period in 1944, he said. From Jan. 1 to Feb. 6, 1944, there were 655 pneumonia cases, 160 deaths from pneumonia, and 18 deaths from influenza.

During the same period this year there were 455 pneumonia cases, 121 pneumonia deaths, and six influenza deaths, health department records showed.

3d Division Fire Marshal Wallace, 63, Retires Today

Fire Marshal Robert B. Wallace of the 3d division, whose retirement at the age of 63 is effective today, will be succeeded by Chief Earl Bauer, now acting marshal of the 1st division, who stands next in line in the department's civil service list. Bauer will remain in command of the 1st division until the return to duty of Marshal Dell White, who is ill, and then will move to the 3d division, the department announced.

MEXICO SEEKS EUROPEAN TRADE.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6 [AP].—A Mexican economic mission appointed by President Avila Camacho will leave late this month on a European tour, Excelsior said today. Gilberto Valenzuela, former minister to England, will head the mission, the newspaper added.

AVERS 5,500,000 CAN BE SPARED CANCER DEATH

Scientists now possess sufficient knowledge to save the lives of 5½ million of the 17 million persons doomed to die of cancer in the United States, Dr. Clarence C. Little, managing director of the American Cancer society, asserted yesterday in the Hotel Continental at a meeting of regional and state commanders representing 300,000 of the organization's field workers.

Primary purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for a five million dollar drive to be started nationally April 1 to carry on cancer prevention work and research.

The latter activity, Dr. Little explained, will include the establishment of detection stations and the award of subsidies to research workers in what he termed an all-out frontal attack on cancer.

Of funds obtained in the national campaign Dr. Little explained state groups will retain 50 per cent for education and assistance work and 40 per cent is to be earmarked for the national pool devoted to research. The remaining 10 per cent will go for the maintenance of the society's national headquarters and correlation of the cancer fight thruout the country.

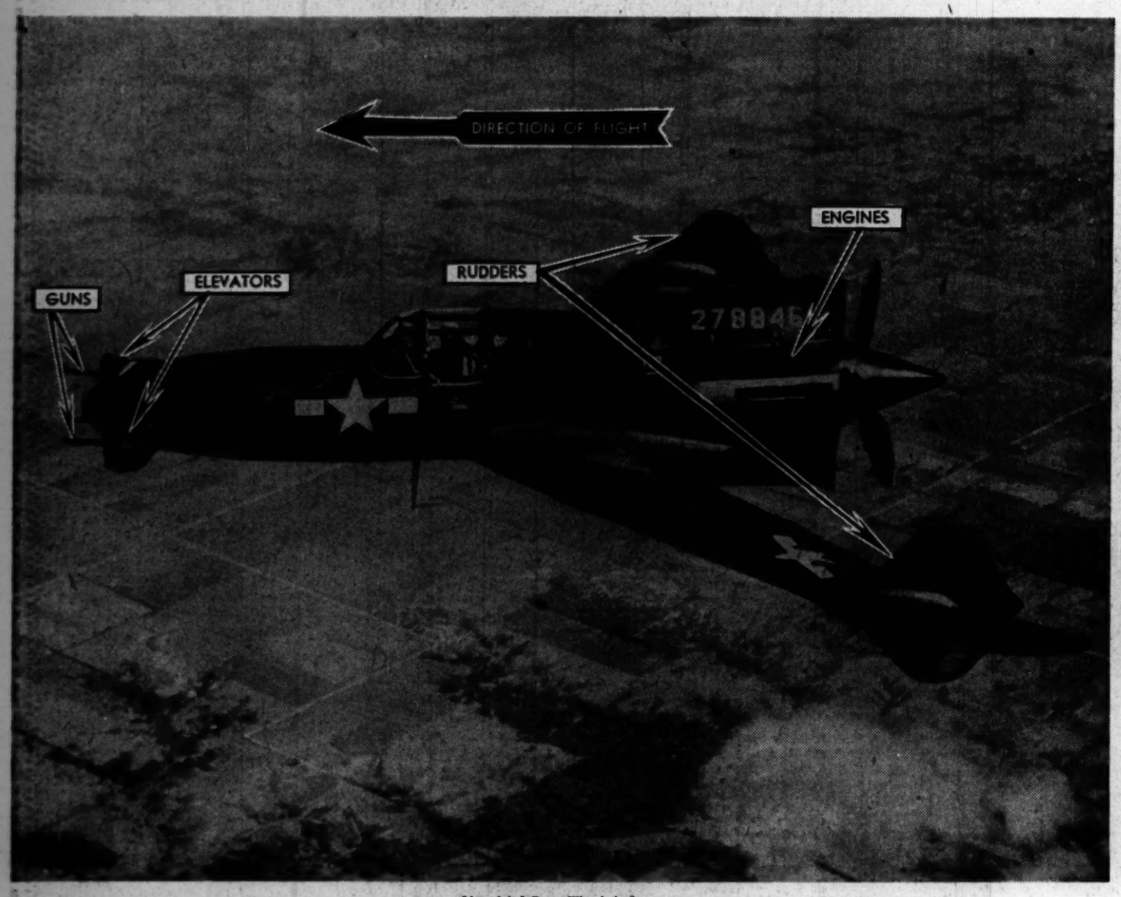
Corregidor Bombed by U. S. Planes—Jap Warship Goes Down—New Plane Flies Tail First, Engine in Rear



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Curtiss-Wright Ascender, experimental, unconventional fiighter plane which appears to fly backwards. The machine, which was cloaked in secrecy until yesterday, was first flown at Scott Field, Ill., a year and a half ago.

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Army Air Forces.]

Smoke from bursting bombs and fires set by them nearly obscures fortress island of Corregidor guarding Manila harbor as American bombers carry out their first raid on the Japanese base. The date was Jan. 24.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Berlin home guard parades during oath-taking ceremony, says Nazi description. One man carries "latest German anti-tank weapon—the tank horror," says caption.
